William Hohenzollern's Liability to Trial by Courtmartial as Viewed by Noted Authority on Military Law

Under Law of Nations, Recent Professor of Law at National Military Academy at West Point Says, He Should Be Arraigned and Judged for Violations of Laws of War.

> THERE can be no permanent peace for the ages to come until all the great criminal violators of the laws of war in this war shall, as an object lesson, be brought to the bar of military justice, before a military commission, and, if found guilty, duly hanged. In this category are the former German Kaiser and his son, the former German Crown Prince; also Von Hindenburg, Ludendorff, Admiral von Tirpitz, who controlled submarine activities, and submarine and other offenders, charged with violating these laws—ASA BIRD GARDNER.

WILLIAM II, King of Prussia and German Emperor, Commander in Chief and War Lord of the armies of Germany, recently hastily crossed, with his suite, from Prussia into Holland, all, it is reported, being in uniform and wearing their swords, war still existing.

Since then the Kaiser has formally abdicated as King and Emperor and ostensibly assumed civilian attire, and it is asserted he is, therefore, immune for crimes alleged to have been committed with his knowledge and approval and in violation of the laws of war during the recent belligerent operations.

The Netherlands Government has accordingly just appointed a board of three civilians, one of them a professor, to inquire into the status of this military fugitive, as if such inquiry were necessary or such a board competent for the purpose.

In a speech delivered last week at Newcastle by that truly great man, Lloyd George, Prime Minister of England, concerning the responsibility of the late North German Emperor for the invasion of Belgium, in violation of its solemnly guaranteed neutarlity, he remarked that he had consulted some of the greatest jurists of England and that they had unanimously and definitely arrived at the conclusion that, in their judgment, the former German Emperor was guilty of an indictable offense for which he ought to be held responsible, and Attorney-General of England, Sir Frederick E. Smith, has since expressed the same opinion.

The Premier further said that "the Entente Allies have got so to act that men in the future who feel tempted to follow the example of the rulers who plunged the world into war will know what is waiting for them in the end."

A Warning for the Future

With his thoughts upon the subject, and realizing what dire sacrifices have been endured by the Entente Allies in the cause of humanity and vindication of the law of nations, he added that "somebody has been responsible for the deliberate plotting of a great war that has taken the lives of millions of the best young men of Europe. That the submarine warfare did not mean only sinking ships, but it was a crime against humanity in that it sank thousands of harmless merchantmen, which acts were rank piracy and that the pirates must receive punishment.

After alluding to the dreaful treatment of prisoners taken by the Germans and other atrocious acts in violation of the law of nations, he declared that "we must see by the action we take now, just, fearless and relentless, that it is a crime that shall never again be repeated in the history of the world."

Thus spake Great Britain's Premier, fully realizing that the idea of "punishment," in so far as America and the Entente Allies are concerned, is solely to deter others from committing like offenses.

The "laws of war" constitute that branch of the law of nations which relate to belligerent operations on land or sea, and those who probably are best qualified to administer such laws and to determine as to violations of the same are the men whose duty it is to comply with them and who imperil their lives in belligerent operations and primarily suffer from their violation.

The eminent jurists whom Premier Lloyd George consulted are civilians and, as might have been expected, they could only see to a preliminary inquiry first before a civil magistrate, then an indictment by a grand jury of civilians, and then trial of the accused for an offense against the laws of war by a petit jury of civilians.

Military Tribunal the Proper One

The Military Commission of sworn, duly commissioned officers of the army is the tribunal designated in acts of the Congress of the United States to take cognizance of and jurisdiction over violations of the laws of war and administer stern and impartial justice according to the nature and degree of the crime.

The continued and successful attempts in the United States during the present war to relegate such offenses to indictment by a grand jury of civilians and trial by a petit jury of civilians followed, on conviction, by slight punishments by Federal courts for violation of such laws, when, under the laws of war death is the penalty, have only encouraged instead of deterred others from committing like offenses, resulting in losses of many lives and destruction of millions of war service property in factories, warehouses, and when being shipped.

All this procedure was taken on the false assumption that, as the United States civil courts were open, such trials must be had there, despite the fact adduced in evidence that the German War Lord was actually and covertly waging war in the United States, not only through commissioned officers, but through other agencies.

To determine whether he is amenable to justice reference must be had, not to civil law with incidental indictment for crime, but to the law of nations and jurisdiction given thereunder.

The Christian nations of the earth established this code by common consent, and it is the international common law of intercourse between them for peace or war.

In the Constitution of the United States the law of nations is recognized as an integral part of our laws, as much so as if specifically enacted.

Thus, in Article I, section 10, Congress is given power to define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas and offenses against the law of nations.

Law of Nations Fundamental

This power is, however, but a limited one. Congress may define the tribunal which shall try piracies on the high seas, but cannot define, at will, what such piracy shall consist of, because the law of nations does that; but it may define piracy committed on the American sea coast or its inland waters.

As to piracy on the high seas, there is but one sentence on conviction, and that is the penalty of death under the law of nations, and the Federal Court trying such cases is acting as an international tribunal and agent to administer justice for all the nations, because pirates are the enemies of all mankind, and any nation may try them for this crime.

Such crime does not come under the category of offenses against the United States for which the President by Article II, section 2, paragraph 1, is invested with a pardoning power.

The law of nations is further recognized in the Constitution of the United States (Article II, section 3), where the President shall receive Ambassadors and other public Ministers.

Such persons and their respective suites are sacred in their persons and protected under the law of nations and their respective official residences at the capital, Washington, are deemed for the time, to be foreign territory, and no act of Congress is necessary for such purpose.

Thus, if a secretary of embassy should deliberately shoot and kill a citizen on a street of New York City, such act would be murder under New York law, and the municipal policeman, who witnessed the act and, sworn to apprehend all such offenders in his precinct, nevertheless, when proceeding to do so, and the secretary hands him his card and satisfies the policeman of his official status, the law of nations intervenes, and the United States Government, taking up the subject with the secretary's own country, he is required to return to be tried in that jurisdiction.

Military Tribunals Recognized

Returning to consideration of the present status of the late German Kaiser and whether he may properly be accused of any violation of the laws and usages of war, it is to be remarked that, as it is a time of war, such offenses cannot be classed as "political" where extradition may be refused, unless a treaty for extradition exists.

A violator of the laws of war is an enemy to mankind and any belligerent nation waging war where the alleged crimes have been committed may assume jurisdiction to try the same by military commission and no neutral Power, where the accused has taken refuge, can decline to extradite him for trial because the whole proceeding is under the law of nations, and it is the duty of the belligerent to enforce the laws of war and bring offenders against them to justice.

The neutral country, wherein the fugitive has sought refuge, is equally under the law of nations and concerned in their enforcement, and cannot lawfully make its territory an asylum for such offenders.

For the armies of the United State, officers and Evil Memory of Congress of Vienna

Which Ended the Napoleonic Era

A Warning to the Versailles Council

Prof. Edmunds Points Out the Pitfalls of That Scandalous Aggregation of Secret Agreements by Which Peoples Were Bandied About as Pawns in the Games of Ambitious Rulers—Why Entente Statesmen Are Determined There Shall Be Nothing of the Kind Today.

By STERLING E. EDMUNDS,

Lecturer on International Law, St. Louis Univresity Law School and Until Recently an Attache of the State Department.

> IT was foreordained that any settlement based upon a mixture of the fact of conquest, prescriptive royal title and a balancing of aggrandizement, would contain little promise of permanency; in fact, never in the history of the world, remarks Prof. Martens, has so vast a fabric been so completely demolished in so short a time. Holland and Belgium were disrupted in 1830; Poland disappeared into Russia about the same time; Germany became a new empire under the hegemony of Prussia, with Austria, the old leader of the confederacy, eliminated. Austria lost practically all of her Italian territory; the new kingdom of Italy swallowed up the kingdom of the two Sicilies, Lombardy and the Ecclesiastical State; Savoy and Nice were united to France, which in turn lost Alsace and Lorraine; the little republic of Cracow was extinguished, all within the space of 60 years. Great Britain, Sweden and Norway and Switzerland—the last named having been neutralized—alone escaped visitations of violent revolution, marking the dawn of a new era in which the rights of peoples, as distinguished from the rights of Kings, became the dominant principle of national as well as of international action.—PROF. EDMUNDS.

THE only gathering in the world's history comparable to the approaching congress at Versailles, in the magnitude and complexity of the international political problem confronting it, was the Congress of Vienna of 1814-15, which so illy served Europe and the world in its settlements following the Napoleonic wars.

That the coming congress intends to profit by the wretched example of the former one is evident from the declarations of principles iterated and reiterated by all of the responsible statesmen of the Entente Powers, and particularly by President Wilson in his address to Congress on Dec. 4, 1917. It will be recalled that he said on that occasion:

"We are seeking permanent, not temporary, foundations for the peace of the world, and we must seek them candidly and fearlessly." But before any such foundations could be laid, he added, autocracy must be shown the futility of its claims to power or leadership in the modern world. Then:

"We shall be free to base peace on generosity and justice to the exclusion of all selfish claims to advantage, even on the part of the victors." Statesmen have learned, he said, that public opinion in self-governed states is a controlling force.

"No representative of any self-governed nation will dare disregard it," he declared, "by attempting any such covenants of selfishness and compromise as were entered into at the Congress of Vienna."

It is interesting to review these "covenants of selfishness and compromise" as indicative of the kind of peace which is not to be expected.

It will be recalled that all Europe had been engulfed in war, with but a few brief truces, disguised under the names of treaties of peace, from 1792, when France started the conflagration by declaring war on Austria, until the abdication of Napoleon upon the entrance of the grand allies into Paris 22 years later, in 1814. The United States herself was twice drawn in, first against France and later against England.

Embarrassing Secret Agreements

With the banishment of Napoleon to the Island of Elba and the placing of the Comte de Provence on the French throne as Louis XVIII, the grand allies—Great Britain, Prussia, Austria and Russia—concluded with France the preliminary peace of Paris on May 30, 1814. France, after having occupied the greater part of the continent of Europe, was stripped by this treaty of all her conquests made since 1792 and reduced to her ancient limits. It gave Malta to Great Britain and made other preliminary distributions, while referring to a general congress, to meet in Vienna within two months, the work of concluding definitive treaties.

But the grand allies concluded among themselves also a separate treaty, containing a number of secret articles, in which they reserved to themselves the partition of the former French conquests.

When the congress opened in November, more than a hundred sovereigns, Princes and plenipotentiaries were on hand, ready to receive any crumbs that might fall from the peace table. France, as thoroughly discredited as Germany is today, was fortunate in having as her representative the resourceful and able Tallyrand. Although the grand allies had no intention of consulting other states in the distribution, Tallyrand so skillfully played one against the other that he soon raised France to a position of equal influence among them, and not only included himself on the principal directing committee, but also procured places for Spain, Sweden and Portugal.

The congress, as such, never met; the directing committee was the congress, and the procedure provided for carefully chosen select committees to deal with special problems that arose. Thus, one such committee was charged with the organization of the federal compact of Germany; another with the affairs of Switzerland; a third with those of Italy; a fourth with Poland and a fifth with Saxony.

The extravagant claims of Russia to practically the whole of Poland, including the Duchy of Warsaw, created by Napoleon, and of Prussia to the whole of Saxony, drew those states into a coalition of mutual support, of which Tallyrand availed himself to form a counter league of France, Great Britain and Austria. In the mutual fear of each of the over-aggrandizement of the other, a deadlock resulted, which became so acute as seriously to threaten a renewal of the war among the allies. In fact, France Great Britain and Austria executed a secret alliance.

As Russia had reconquered Poland, the Russian claim was founded squarely on the right of conquest as giving a sufficient title. So Prussia laid claim to Saxony, supplementing the ground of conquest, however, with that of political interests.

Talyrand made these claims the occasion for a most powerful state paper in which sound moral principal was more or less confounded with the royal sophistry of the period.

"Certainly," he wrote in his historic note, submitted Dec. 19, 1814, "when the treaty of May 30, stipulated that the definitive result of the labors of the congress should form a real and parmanent balance of power, it did not mean to sacrifice to the establishment of this balance the rights it was intended to secure; it did not intend to throw into a common mass all territories and all nations, to be afterwards divided up in certain proportions. It intended that every legitimate dynasty should be preserved or restored, that every legitimate rights should be respected, and that the vacant territories, that is to say those destitute of sovereigns, should be distributed according to the principles of the political balance, or what is the same thing, according to the conservative principles of the rights of each, and of the repose of all.

"It would, moreover, be a strange error to consider as the only elements of this balance those quantities which are computed by political arithmeticians. 'Athens,' says Montesquineu, possessed the same internal forces when she reigned with such glory and when she served with such shame. She had 20,000 citizens when she defended the Greeks against the Persians, when she disputed the supremacy with Lacedemon, and when she attacked Sicily; she had still 20,000 when Demetrius Phalareus counted them as slaves in a market exposed for sale.' The balance of power would, therefore, be a vain word, if we lay out of the case, not that ephemeral and deceptive form produced by the passions, but that true moral force which consists in justice, which, as between nation and nation, constitutes the first of virtues.

"Penetrated with these principles, the King has prescribed as an invariable rule for his Ambassadors, to inquire first what justice prescribes, and never to depart from this rule in any case, or for any consideration whatsoever; not to subscribe to or acquiesce in any arrangement contrary to it; and among possible legitimate combinations to choose those which may most efficaciously contribute to the establishment and maintenance of a true balance of power.

Indictment of Confiscation of Poland

"Of all the questions to be discussed at the Congress, the King would have considered that of Poland as the first, the greatest, the most eminently European, and beyond comparison the most important of all, if it were possible to hope, as much as he desired, that a people so worthy of interesting all others by its antiquity, its valor, the service it had formerly rendered to Europe, and by its misfortunes, could be restored to its ancient and perfect independence.

"The partition by which Poland was erased from the list of nations was the prelude, partly the cause and perhaps, to a certain extent, the excuse for the violent changes to which Europe has been subjected; but when the force of circumstances, prevailing against the most noble and the most generous inclinations of the sovereigns to whom the former Polish provinces are subject, has reduced the question of Poland to a mere affair of partition and boundaries, which

Handicaps From Which They Suffered, Particularly Their Chief, Field Marshal Haig, Who Was Constantly Hampered by Politicians, Only Made Them More Determined—Their Great Work Not Always of a Kind That Could Be Measured, but It Redounded in the End to Nation's Greatness.

By FRANK H. SIMONDS.

The Post-Dispatch's Military Critic and Author of "The Great War" and "They Shall Not Pass."

> IF the great glory is to Foch, as it was in our Civil War to Grant in the North and to Lee in the South, it seems that Haig must deserve the praise that we in the North gave to Sherman, which France gives to Petain in the present hour. That the British will reckon their commander with Marlborough and Wellington seems likely; certainly, they have no other names which permit comparison—FRANK H. SIMONDS.

THE ending of the war has been so different from all expectations and the problems of peace are so complex and so compelling that, almost without realization, the military aspects of the great struggle have been dismissed. We have been dimly conscious of the achievements of the French commanders, as each in turn entered a lost city at the head of a victorious army and the batons of French Marshals were bestowed upon Petain and Castelnua, as they had already been bestowed upon Joffre and Foch. Pershing has had his generous share of praise, and his country will continue to demonstrate its satisfaction in his achievement.

But, on the whole, probably with absolute justice, the honors of the celebration of victory have been divided between the French army and the British fleet, and while French troops reoccupied Metz and Strasbourg amid the acclaim of the world, the same audience has witnessed the incredible spectacle of the German battle fleet approaching the British coasts and surrendering without a shot, giving itself up still undamaged by battle—a spectacle that has no parallel in modern history.

And so, between these two wonderful and contemporaneous events, men have forgotten almost completely the achievements and the individual claims upon our praise of the men who made and led the British army to ultimate victory after a period equal in length to that of our own Civil War, and filled with the same disappointments which the North suffered through that long and terrible time. Yet for Haig and his subordinate army commanders there is due some mention in the present moment, even when the achievements of Foch, Petain, Castelnau, Mangin and Gouraud are still too recent to be but memories. And in this article I mean to review briefly the achievement of the most conspicuous of the British Generals.

Haig Hampered by Politicians

Of Haig, it is perhaps hardest to write, because all the burden was his, and no man knows now exactly how great that burden was. Politicians interfered with him. Last spring, when the heavy blow fell upon his armies, bringing temporary disaster, it was political dictation which had compelled him to stretch his line to such an extent that it was thinly held at vital points, and it was political influence which had deprived him of necessary reserves. So much we know.

Aside from controversial points, however, certain facts are obvious. Of all allied commanders Haig is the oldest, in point of service as chief, as he is, I believe, the youngest in years. He came to command in 1915, when French went home after Loos, when the new British army had only begun to come to France and the real organization of victory was still to be made. The army that fought at the first Somme in 1916, in Artois, Picardy and Flanders in 1917, at the Somme and in Flanders in defeat and then in victory, in supreme victory in the present year, was of his making.

Before he commanded armies, the reputation of Sir Douglas Haig was made in battle. He was the outstanding figure of the first Ypres, which was fought mainly under his immediate direction. When French went home there was no one else thought of to succeed the Boer veteran. In the great Somme campaign of 1916 the British army, under Haig's direction, learned its business. It was a costly lesson, the mistakes were many, but at the end of the campaign the army believed itself superior to the German; it felt that it had learned its job.

His Army Heard His Appeal

The next year the opening victory was complete. Arras was a real achievement. Vimy Ridge a genuine military triumph. But afterwards Haig's campaign was manifestly impeded as he loyally endeavored to aid Neville, who had failed and was failing. The British campaign was sacrificed, delayed, the blow in Flanders came too late, although it had begun with the great success of Plumer. About this Flanders campaign men talked as they talked about Grant's campaign from the Rapidan to Cold Harbor. It was terribly costly; it did not bring immediate success.

Then Russia collapsed and the Germans came west to Picardy, with the road made easy for them by political interference. Haig was defeated and Foch came to command. One day we heard the memorable appeal of Haig to his army, fighting with their backs to the wall; the appeal of a General to his men, heard and obeyed. The German wave was halted.

Men said then that Haig should come home, but the politicians, perhaps aware with whom the burden of blame rested, permitted him to stay; and after that came, on Aug. 8, the victory which started the Germans back from Amiens; next the success of Byng, which forbade to the Germans a stand behind the upper Somme. Then the blow of Horne, which broke a portion of the Hindenburg line. Finally, the great success of Oct. 8, one of the far-shining achievements of the whole war, which smashed the Hindenburg line forever and began the last phase of the war, the rapid collapse of German resistance.

If you take the achievement of the British army between Aug. 8 and Nov. 11, when it forced its way from the outskirts of Amiens to Mons, you will find upon examination it is one of the most splendid records in all military history.

Foch and Haig Great Team

I am not seeking to apportion praise, I do not pretend to know what Foch did and what Haig did, but under Foch's supreme command the British army, rallying from terrific losses and heavy defeat in March and April, in three glorious months smashed its way forward over innumerable obstacles, which included the far-famed Hindenburg line. It is clear that if Haig had not locally co-operated with Foch the victory would not have been possible. It is clear that however brilliant the startegy of Foch, if it had not been intelligently and efficiently interpreted no such success would have followed.

Therefore, if the great glory is to Foch, as it was in our Civil War to Grant in the North and Lee in the South, it seems to me that Haig must deserve the praise which we of the North gave to Sherman, which France gives to Petain in the present hour. That the British will reckon their Commander in Chief with Wellington and Marlborough seems likely; certainly they have no other names which permit comparison. But by comparison Haig's task was gigantic; he took the huge British volunteer army when it was little more than a mob and fashioned out of it an effective instrument; he suffered severe defeats and even severer disappointments in his use of it, but he ultimately led it to complete victory, which would have been totally impossible had the British army been unable to do all that it did accomplish. Haig's problems were far different and more difficult than those of Joffre or Petain; they had armies at their hands, organized for contemporary warfare and provided with staffs trained in the tasks before them. Haig had nothing; two-thirds of his work was construction, and it had to be done in the heat of battle and under the stress of great campaigns. In the face of all obstacles he brought a victorious British army back to Mons Nov. 11, and I believe his achievement will grow rather than diminish in the eyes of men as his real task is more clearly perceived.

Plumer First of Haig's Subordinates

Of Haig's subordinates, I suppose common consent would award to Plumer the first place. His army held the old Ypres salient all the time from the close of the second battle in 1915 to the moment when it broke all the restraining barriers and swept down into the Flanders plain in October, insuring the recovery of Lille and the liberation of the Belgian sea coast. At all times his professional attainments were acknowledged by the severest critics, and I remember an acquaintance of mine heard Joffre assert that he was one of the two great Generals of the war.

Among Plumer's achievements was the clearing of the Messines Ridge in June, 1917, which was a

The Italo-Jugoslav Issue.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The occupation of Trieste, Gorizia, part of Carnolia, Istria, Dalmatia, together with numerous islands along the Dalmatian coast by the allied troops, among which the Italian troops seem to be predominating, in consequence of the armistice terms signed between the commander of the Austro-Hungarian army and the allies, has given the Italian chauvinists in America an opportunity to launch a great agitation in order to convince the American public about Italy's "rights" to annex the above-mentioned territory. The Italian-American news bureau at Chicago, for instance, is feeding the American press with all kinds of "news" about the "redeemed Italians and their historical and ethnographical rights to be united with their Italian brethren." It is a pity that quite many Americans, as they exist in the involved territory, have already taken the Italian claims as just and indisputable.

The provinces claimed by Italy have a major Jugoslav population. The Italians are fond of stating the figures of Italian majority and Jugoslav minority in population of Trieste, Gorizia and other cities of the littoral, but they prudently keep silent about the figures of population in the country as a whole. Here are the official statistics of 1910, Austro-Hungarian statistics, which are by no means favorable to the Slovenes and to the rest of the Jugoslavs:

The Italian population of all islands of the Dalmatian archipelago numbers 1563, and the Serbo-Croats 116,227 souls.

One glance at the above figures will convince anyone what is the racial character of the country involved as a whole, and that a few cities like Trieste and Goritza, with their Italian majorities, cannot be separated from the surroundings regions, therefore constituting an Italian minority of the country. But judging from the Italian claims, they (the Italians) would apparently make the whole Jugoslav territory adjacent to the ethnographical status of the named cities, and in order to liberate something over 300,000 Italians they would subjugate 1,000,000 Jugoslavs.

The proposed annexation of the Jugoslav territory by Italy will, by no means, contribute to a permanent peace, but on the contrary, it will leave for Italy "Slavo Irredenta" costing her an untold amount of trouble, with no prospect of solution other than as it is proposed now —self-determination!

Let the people decide! Let the issue be settled in the only just and democratic way, as proposed by President Wilson. Let the plebiscite of the inhabitants of Gorizia, Trieste, Istria, occupied part of Carniola, Dalmatia and Dalmatian Islands, upon the basis of universal, secret and equal suffrage, both sexes to be eligible, and under the supervision of an American commission, decide whether they want to belong to a free republic of Jugoslavs or to be annexed by a foreign nation.

Another Memorial Suggestion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The best memorial to our boys who have given their lives to save the world to civilization and humanity would be a wide and beautiful avenue, preferably in Forest Park, lined with trees, each bearing the name of a dead soldier. This plan has been proposed elsewhere, and is the most dignified and appropriate proposition yet brought forward. I confess that I should be very greatly humiliated if St. Louis should erect a memorial building with borrowed money. The only way possible would be a bond issue, unless public-spirited citizens contributed the necessary amount, and then it would not be the gift of the whole people. The humblest and poorest man or woman might rightly claim a part in such a memorial as I have suggested.

Closed Schools Best.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

We certainly do agree with Dr. Starkloff's idea about the closing of schools. Small children have not all got sense enough to think while coughing or sneezing to turn their heads or cover their faces with their handkerchiefs, but sneeze right in other children's faces. Just look at all of the influenza cases after the schools opened up! I hated to hear about them opening. Before school was open a week my little girl came home sick, and, of course, it was the influenza, and had a very bad case. Before long I had three of the family down with it. This is an answer to Robert W. Barrell's letter. We hope he will wake up and come to his senses.

SEEDS OF WAR IN TRADE.

Former President Taft reminds the Entente Powers that the morale of their troops and the unity of their peoples rested upon the righteousness of their cause in a war to end "the hideous immorality and unmorality of militarism, to restore stolen goods and to further the establishment of Governments in accordance with the will of the governed."

On the basis of these war purposes and aims Mr. Taft urges Great Britain not to seek the German colonies in Africa. The return of territories taken from France and Italy and other proposed readjustment of national boundaries represent justice and equitable racial or national limits, not aquisition of war spoils.

The protest against Great Britain's acquiring land from the vanquished is in effect a protest against all schemes of spoliation or profiteering on behalf of any of the victors, as contrary to the spirit which infused the anti-German belligerents and the professed objects for which the war was fought to a finish.

It is gratifying that an American of Mr. Taft's standing and influence and a leader of the party in opposition to the President, is voicing American sentiment against any form of spoliation in the peace settlement which it is hoped will be the foundation of a league of nations to enforce peace based upon justice.

It is of the utmost importance that American public opinion be sound and vigorous on all points involving ambitious schemes to retain or obtain mastery on sea or land and to despoil defeated nations either through acquisition of land or excessive money indemnities which will lay crushing burdens upon them, or economic advantages which will subject them to practical slavery and impoverishment. No nation will exist under a curse of spoliation and injustice; no nation will long keep the peace without the means of comfortable living and the opportunity for prosperity and development in all legitimate lines. A league of nations to enforce peace, based upon unjust peace settlements and adjustments, would be a mockery and a farce.

While America asks no territory and no land, there are elements in the country, not only sympathizing with the blood lusts and money lusts of European peoples, but seeking industrial and trade advantages as spoils of war. We have our own profiteers of victory whose schemes would be as deadly to lasting peace as the ambitions of imperial militarists or the greeds of land grabbers and money grubbers.

The seeds of war are as prolific in efforts to despoil and crush peoples through economic and special trade privileges as in political slaveries or racial and national ambitions and oppressions. We must set our faces against all forms of profiteering though the war fought to end war. Let us keep our hands clean and our consciences clear of any attempt to profiteer through victory or to use our power over the vanquished to fill our coffers with goods taken by force or stolen under the forms of law.

American public opinion should be a bulwark against war greeds of all kinds. It should be an irresistible moral force strengthening the hands of the President and of all those who stand for equity and good will in future international relations.

A BUREAUCRATIC OUTRAGE.

Two weeks ago the Post-Dispatch expressed amazement that the ruling against the manufacture of non-alcoholic malt beverages, based upon war conditions and designed to meet war emergencies, should stand after the war is over and every condition that prompted the original order has been reversed. Amazement is changed to indignation that the order, which interferes with legitimate business, blocks business activity when business activity in every possible line is so desirable, destroys business organizations and throws thousands of men and women out of employment still stands against the protests of Chambers of Commerce, individual business men and labor organizations. Every reason cited by the President for the order has fallen to the ground. There is no shortage of labor, but a surplus, no shortage of coal, but a surplus, no strain on transportation, no draft on food supply. It is gross discrimination.

Arbitrary bureaucracy could not go beyond this outrage. The Washington authorities should awake to the real situation, to the great wrong involved in unnecessary and unreasonable interference with business activities. They should awake before industrial and commercial conditions become intolerable. The order should be rescinded at once.

PLANS FOR SOLDIERS.

The Kansas Agricultural College reports that it has received inquiries from soldiers concerning the purchase of farms, the men saying that when they leave the United States service they wish to become their own masters.

This has caused the Conference of Farm Bureaus in Kansas to memorialize the Federal Government to hasten arrangements for credit to discharged soldiers. It is suggested that the present farm loan credit system be extended so that an honorably discharged army or navy man can borrow from the Government 75 per cent of the value of the land that he buys. Also the conference demands that any credit extended by the Government be apportioned to States according to the number of men in the military service.

While these steps are being taken, the Kansas Agricultural College is listing the farm lands for sale and the large tracts available for division into individual farms.

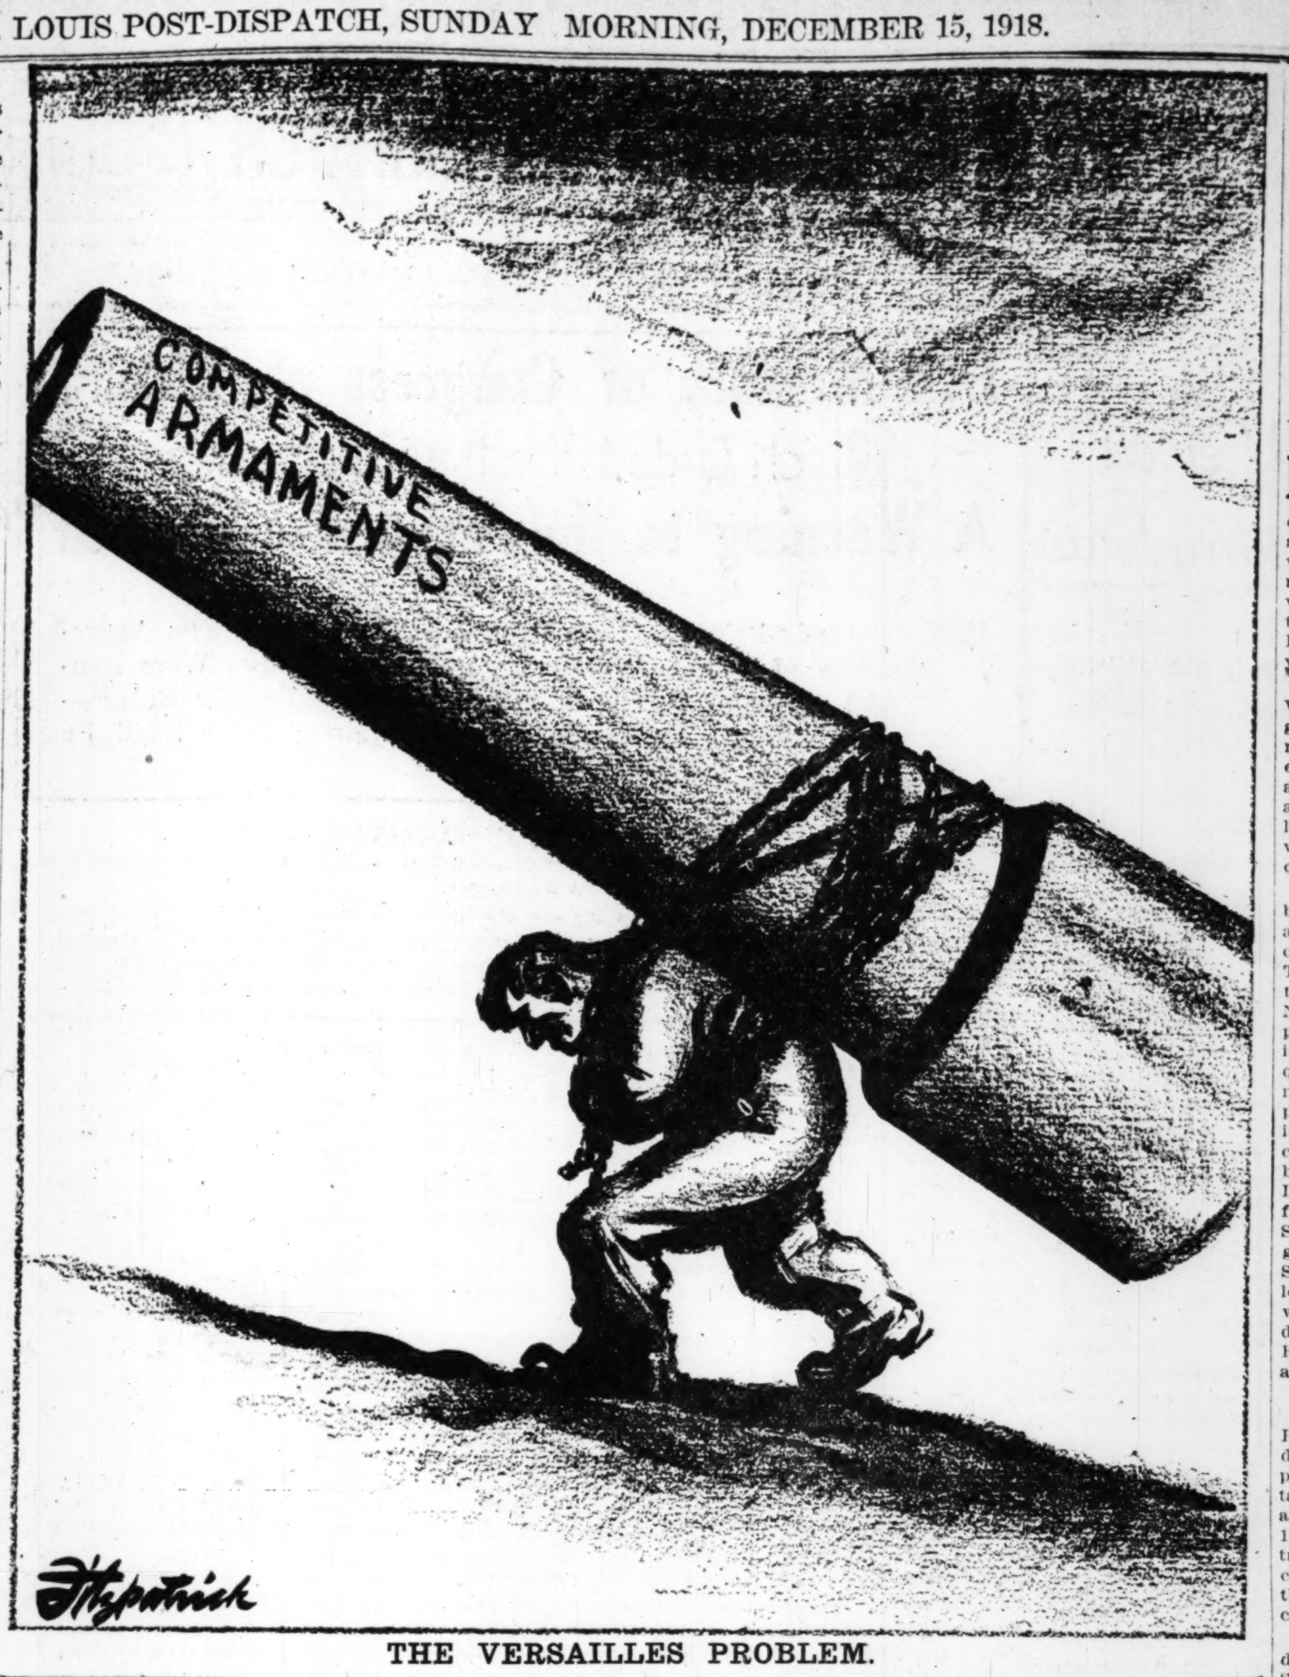
ACID TEST FOR GERMAN EVENTS.

A London press report, said to be based on late facts of significance, asserts that "the revolution in Germany is being managed by officers of the German high command, with a view to eventually causing its collapse and the triumphant return of the former Emperor."

Are suspicions of this kind so far-fetched? We know that the revolution in Russia was managed by "officers of the German high command," not only in its inception, but in its subsequent course. That was at a time when the two countries were at war and great hostility existed in Russia against all things German. Ought it not to be much easier for the experienced high command to get up a personally conducted revolution in Germany itself, where a large percentage of the people are devoted adherents of the high command and practically all the people habituated to its orders? Resort to camouflage has been made on such a prodigious scale that even domestic revolt may naturally be believed to be only staged and a continuation of pretense.

But if it is a "managed" revolution, can it be "managed" indefinitely and prevented from becoming unmanageable?



THE VERSAILLES PROBLEM.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspaper and periodicals on the questions of the day.

A FIRST REQUISITE.

[illegible] the Christian Science Monitor.

ONE of the most urgent problems demanding attention at the present moment is the adjustment between capital and labor. It is a problem which is calling for solution in practically every civilized country, and every civilized nation will solve it, in detail, in its own particular way. In these circumstances it is particularly welcome to find, amongst those who will undoubtedly take a lead in its solution, a disinclination to rush into detailed programs, and a determination not to fall into the trap of envisaging the "complete millennial state." These persons realize that progress is in itself "a lamp unto the feet," and that it always casts its light at least one step ahead.

The great demand is to discover the first requisite and, this once admitted and established, to make advance from that point. It is just these considerations which render the recent courageous statement by Lord Robert Cecil on the subject especially welcome. Lord Robert has sought for and has found the great first requisite, which he describes as "the union of classes." And he goes on to enlarge upon that text by pointing out the undeniable fact that no nation can afford to sacrifice any one class without loss to the community as a whole. Lord Robert, however, does not leave the matter here. Given that dominating demand of good will, he goes on to outline a broad constructive theory, and declares that, in his opinion, the best hope in the solution of the labor problem is to "follow the analogy of the land question." He points out how the land question has been solved, again and again, by making the population owners, or part owners, of the land, and he would apply this theory to all industries. He does not, for a moment, take refuge in such a half measure as divisional profits, which he dismisses as but one stage in the right direction. "If the worker is to be really part owner," he says, "he must have a share not only in the profits, but in the property and management. At the same time," he adds, "the capitalist is entitled to his share also, and to deny this would be an approach toward Bolshevism."

Lord Robert's opinion, of course, opens a vast field for discussion. What makes his proposal so distinctly valuable at this time is that it insists upon the indispensable prerequisite of good will, and indicates the desirability of having a constructive policy, in some measure already tested, a policy which does not embrace merely this class or that class, but all classes.

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

"GERMANY spent $7,500,000 for propaganda in the United States, and she got for it what the little boy shot at," Mr. Antwine said.

"She did, however, accomplish one thing with it. She forever discredited a few people in this country who sought to do something for her, and she has left in our midst many unhappy people whose status might have been happier had their judgment not been impaired by her insidious advances.

"What the whole campaign illustrates is how little Germany knew this country. It would not have availed her anything had she spent ten times the money she did for propaganda in the United States. It was a dunderheaded business from the beginning. The people of America had made up their minds about the European conflict before Germany sent over a dollar. The invasion of Belgium enlisted the sympathies of this country with the allies at the outset. By that act alone Germany served notice on the world that she was not to be bound by international law in prosecuting the war, and the world was against her. Every subsequent act of hers confirmed its conviction that Germany was an outlaw and an enemy of society. The extent to which the world actually joined in her suppression was by no means the extent to which its sympathies lay with the allied side. No such abhorrence of any nation had ever arisen in the world.

"What resulted from the effort to enlist sympathy for Germany in America must remain a salutary influence among nations always. Right alone wins allies—might never. There is a passion for money, goodness knows; but it is nothing like the passion for right.

"The Germans admitted to themselves in the end that money spent for propaganda in America had been wasted. It had been worse than wasted—it had done Germany positive harm. As a matter of fact, this country was never neutral in the war. It preserved the form of official neutrality, but its heart was always on the side of those who fought for liberty. How else could a great free country like this feel? The Germans could not see that. They thought that by sending over millions of dollars and enlisting the sympathy of a few shameless hirelings they could create sympathy for international outlawry and the horrible practices of barbarism. There possibly have been bigger fools in history than those men were, but we venture to say that so many damphools never had occurred in one place at the same time."

THROUGH THE OZARKS.

IMAGINE good roads through the Ozarks, a truly beautiful region of bright rivers and blue vales which at this time is for the most part inaccessible except by train! There could be wayside hotels and tourists everywhere in the Ozarks, towns could blossom, crops could be marketed, farms could be made modern, and one of the great playgrounds of the Mississippi Valley could be opened there forever by the magic of good roads. One wonders how long it is to be before Missouri finds that out and does something about it. No country can develop from within. If the Ozarks are ever to be anything more than the scrub oak country they are now the world without must be gotten in there to bring them out. It is difficult to describe the difficulty of getting about now in much of that country. Possibly it is partially illustrated by the story of a gentleman whom we saw coming out of the hills on the Frisco train the other night. He said he started for the station that morning in an automobile which turned upside down on the way out.

"Didn't it hurt any of you?" he was asked.

"O, no; we're used to that. We know how to get out," he explained.

This, too, in the fall—when the roads are as a rule at their best. When the good roads movement hits the Ozarks it will be very much as it is when rain falls on a desert.

Now that we have had officially listed all those who were the emissaries of the Kaiser in this country during the war, why can't we have an official list of those who proved themselves nothing worse than cranks. We want to see Col. George Harvey get some sort of recognition.

SAAR COAL MINES TO FRANCE, SIMONDS SAYS

Former Ownership Claim and Justice Dictates Such a Settlement of Problem.

By FRANK H. SIMONDS,
Author of "The Great War" and the Post-Dispatch Military Critic.

IN recent days there has been frequent reference to the question of Saar Coal Districts in the foreign dispatches. The inclusion of a restricted area of German territory within the confines of Alsace-Lorraine in the armistice terms has provoked the suspicion in German quarters that it is the purpose of the French to extend their frontiers beyond the limits of Alsace-Lorraine.

This is in effect familiar ground. When the Russian revolutionists began the publication of secret treaties more than a year ago, it was asserted that Great Britain and Russia had agreed that France should have, in addition to Alsace-Lorraine, certain limited areas along the Saar River, which were the seat of a flourishing coal industry.

As the question is bound to be debated in the future it is worth examining now before the issue can be clouded by propagandist activity. The territory involved is rather less than that occupied by the city of New York. It came to France as a portion of the province of Lorraine in the reign of Louis XV, not by conquest, but by international agreement, which gave a Polish King the province of Lorraine for his lifetime, in return for renouncing the Polish crown. At his death Lorraine passed by agreement to France. In fact Lorraine had been French long before this time, but with the death of Stanislas, French frontiers were legally extended to and beyond the Saar River below Saarbrucken, Saarlouis, the birthplace of Marshal Ney, was the important fortress in this district. At the moment of the French revolution France thus held a considerable area across the Saar.

How Prussia Got Fields.

When Napoleon abdicated, in 1814, Prussia, eager to acquire the coal districts of the Saar, succeeded in persuading the victorious nations to take from France and give to her all the regions across the Saar. In 1815, after Waterloo, when a new treaty was written, France had to cede further territory, this time on the west bank of the Saar, and including Saarlouis.

By these two annexations, Prussia deprived France of nearly all the Saar coal region. The next step was to acquire the great iron districts in Lorraine and those close to Metz. This was accomplished after the war of 1871 by the seizure of still another and far more considerable portion of Lorraine, including the French-speaking districts about Metz.

When they drew the new frontier of 1871 the Germans drew it to include all the known iron regions of Lorraine. But after 1871 great iron deposits were discovered just across the French frontier, above the town of Briey. As a consequence, all through that period in the war in which the Germans believed themselves victorious they openly declared their purpose to annex all the Briey iron districts at the close of the war. They occupied them almost at the outbreak of the struggle.

We see then a relatively ancient dispute revived. In 1814, as a result of a victorious war, Prussia took half the Saar coal region. In 1815, after Waterloo, she took the other half. In 1871, after another successful war, she took half the iron fields and in 1914 she planned to take the balance.

Mines in North Wrecked.

Now what is proposed, if it be proposed, and we have no official French statement as yet, is to complete the reintegration of French territory by the reunion to France of territory seized more than a century ago, when Prussia entered upon her predatory career in the West. She had been stealing Polish territory for half a century in the East. So much for the legal aspect of the French claim.

But in addition is the fact that during the present war the Germans have deliberately and wantonly wrecked all the great French coal mines of the north about Lens. They have blown up some and turned rivers into others. American engineers have estimated that it will take from three to five years to get the mines working again and some are irretrievably ruined.

The purpose of this destruction is obvious. The Germans sought to destroy French industries by depriving France of coal and also to make French factories dependent upon Germany for coal rationing. As it stands now, they have been so far successwul that years will pass before the French can again rely upon the northern coal mines even for a portion of their supply.

French Have Old Claim.

Therefore, nothing seems more in accordance with justice than that the French should be permitted to take from Germany the coal supply needed because of German devastation. In addition French claim to permanent possession of the coal regions rests upon former ownership, interrupted only by forcible annexation following sucessful German attacks.

We have, on the other hand, to face the fact that the inhabitants of the districts affected are German and would doubtless choose German rather than French citizenship. There is, then, a plain conflict of principles involved which will require judicious settlement. Fortunately the area affected is excessively small, and the population inconsiderable.

But it is essential to guard against German propaganda which will be loosed to catch the uninformed and unwary with the assertion that France is embarking upon imperialistic and annexationist operations. Nothing could be less just or accurate. French claims are impressive; they are fortified by German conduct in France in the present war, and they deserve American sympathy.

M'ADOO URGES CITY TO SUPPORT RAIL CONTROL

Assures Purchase of River Fleet Will Be Completed as Has Been Planned.

In giving assurance yesterday to St. Louis that the project for the equipment of the Government River Service to New Orleans with six modern towboats and 40 steel barges would go ahead, Director-General McAdoo of the Railroad Administration suggested that St. Louis business organizations give support to his proposal that Federal control of railroads be extended five years.

He said unless the extension was made a reasonable opportunity could not be afforded for a fair test of "the value of unified railroad operation along with co-ordinated inland waterways operations," and the experiment on the Mississippi River would not hold out much promise. Reversion to private control soon, he pointed out, would give the railroads a chance to throttle river lines as they had in the past.

Equipment Assured.

It was stated at the Railroad Administration in Washington yesterday that while contracts for 40 barges ordered for the Mississippi had not yet been signed, the Director-General had taken the attitude that the Government had definitely been committed to the deal.

The Director-General telegraphed to the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' Exchange and to James E. Smith, president of the Mississippi Valley Waterways Association, in response to their protests to him Friday, when it was reported to them that an effort would be made to get him to cancel contracts for $6,170,000 worth of new equipment for the river. The effect of such action would have been to kill the river project, as successful operation with the present makeshift equipment was not hoped for and could not be accomplished.

McAdoo's Response.

The text of McAdoo's reply follows:

I don't know how you got your information, but there is no truth in the report that contracts for barges for the Mississippi River have been canceled. Since the Railroad Administration was committed some time ago to the purchase of these barges, of course the contract will be carried out.

It is proper that I should call your attention to the fact, however, that unless Congress shall extend the period of Federal control so that a reasonable opportunity may be afforded for a fair test of the value of unified railroad operation along with co-ordinated inland waterways operation, the experiment of the Mississippi River may not hold out much promise.

I doubt if Mississippi River operation can produce satisfactory results if the railroads should be turned back soon to private control. The old methods of railroad competition with waterways transportation will be revived, and it is probable that the waterways experiment may not be able to survive that competition.

I suggest these phases of the problem because, as an American citizen, whose earnest interest in proper waterways development has been manifested frequently, I think your business organizations in St. Louis should consider very seriously the importance of extending the period of Federal control of railroads as I have just proposed, in order that a fair test of unified operation of the railroads may be made, and that along with it the inland waterways may be developed, and a fair opportunity given to demonstrate the usefulness of such development.

Service Successful.

The telegram of the Merchants' Exchange to McAdoo stated that several St. Louis grain firms were enlarging or preparing to enlarge their elevators to ship by river.

It is known that, even with the unsatisfactory five towboats and limited capacity barges the River Service now is operating, the return in freight charges as compared to the cost of operations has been greater than was thought possible when the service was opened. Regular sailings have been maintained since Sept. 28, a condition not existing before in any river service, and the tonnage that has gone downstream has been satisfactory. The tonnage upstream has been restricted in volume by the fact that the use of ships in war service virtually left New Orleans without imports, but now that shipping is about to be revived, a great tonnage is expected to begin coming to that port, a portion of which will inevitably come to the river.

"It is very gratifying to receive this positive statement from Director-General McAdoo that the contract for the barges will be carried out," said Jackson Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce. "The information that came to us that attempt were being made to prevent the carrying out of the contract was from such an authentic source that it was deemed necessary to wire our protest to Mr. McAdoo; naturally, I am pleased to know that no matter what attempts are made to prevent the consummation of the contracts, the Director-General will not permit them to be successful.

"The chamber will naturally give due consideration to that portion of the Director-General's telegram relative to the extension of the period of Federal control. Just what action will be taken, I, of course, could not even anticipate."

Two Junior League members who are working for "Bundle Day" next Saturday...

Arrangements Are Being Made in All Sections of the City for a Grand Revival of Gaiety Just as Soon as Health Restrictions Are Modified.

DESPITE the fact that postponements of scheduled events figure prominently in the social world, nevertheless plans are being carried on for a rush of functions, social, benefit and of the social-patriotic kind, to be given just as soon as the authorities permit. Judging from the health reports from day to day there is every reason to believe that the hour when restrictions are to be lifted, is not far off—possibly this week. Postponements for health's sake are after all but intermissions for pleasure's sake, and so it is to be expected that society will soon again take on a semblance of its former gaiety.

The musical tea scheduled for tomorrow at the Hotel Statler for the benefit of the Social Service Department of the St. Louis Children's Hospital and which would have been the occasion of one of the largest and most fashionable gatherings of the season has had to be again postponed, but it is hoped to set the date some time in January.

A SPIRIT of good humored raillery prevails througout the city over "Bundle Day," which the Junior League will inaugurate next Saturday for the rummage collection for the Allies Shop at 610 North Broadway. On all sides one hears laughing comments of how unusual a tag day is without any money consideration attached. Almost every one has something stored away which can be brought downtown Saturday and a general overlooking of old clothes closets is scheduled for the week.

All you are asked for is something that you are no longer using and clothing for men, women and children is in demand, and if there are any old toys lying around tuck them in the bundle too.

No bundle will be too small to be welcomed if it is only one little article, such as a necktie, you will be cheerfully tagged. Collection stations will be on the principal downtown corners and Junior League members wil be out as early as 7:30 in the morning to tag the first comers in the business districts.

A street parade on Thursday is being arranged by Miss Roberta Lewis to arvertise "Bundle Day" and several unusual stunts are promised in connection with it.

All donations of "Bundle Day" will be sold in the Allies' Shop to deserving people at reasonable prices and the proceeds will go to the far reaching welfare work of the Junior League among the poor children and sick of St. Louis and to the American Fund for French Wounded. Mrs. Robert Holland Jr., president of the Junior League, and Mrs. C. R. D. Meier have the arrangements of the day in charge.

Among the large list of members who will assist are Mrs. George Conant, Miss Jane Shapleigh, Miss Georgie Elliot, Miss Katherine Pierce, Mrs. Sears Lehmann, Mrs. Leighton Bridge, Miss Roberta Lewis, Mrs. Fenimore Cooper, Mrs. Audenreid Whittemore, Miss Mildred Orthwein, Mrs. C. E. Bascom, Mrs. Knox Taussig, Miss Florence Hayes, Mrs. Jim Wear, Miss Harriet Price, Miss Annie Laurie Warmack, Mrs. Briggs Hoffman, Miss Matilda Overton, Miss May Foster and Miss Hannah Jane Foley.

THE news of Miss Adele Carter Nichols' engagement to Dr. H. Carlyle Pollock was one of the interesting announcements of the week, the betrothal being made known to intimate friends of the bride-to-be by receiving an American Beauty rose with the cards of Miss Nichols and Dr. Pollock attached. Miss Nicholas is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mathews Nichols of 4059 Westminster place. She is a graduate of Lenox Hall and has been very popular in her set and is the possessor of great beauty. Dr. Pollock is a graduate of the University of Michigan, later specializing in orthodontia at New London, Conn. He is a member of the University Club and the M. A. A. and resides at the former club.

SOCIETY is looking forward with interest to the forthcoming concerts of the St. Louis Pageant Choral Society to be given at the Odeon on Jan. 14 and March 11. Cora Libberton, soprano, who will be heard in "The Witch's Daughter," and Carl Busch's "The American Flag" at the first concert, is a favorite with the choral organizations of Chicago, and Corp. Finlay Campbell, who appears in Charles Sanford Skilton's entirely new setting for Whittier's poem, and also in Fay Foster's new composition, "The Americans Come!" is a hero of Hill 60, in Belgium, where he received 33 wounds, leaving, however, his wonderful voice unimpaired. The Pageant Chorus and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra are the sole performers in Edmund Clarence Stedman's "Hymn of the West," set to music by John Knowles Paine. The works to be produced are by American authors and composers, carrying out the national purpose of Americanization in and through music, therefore making it eminently fitting that the "first production anywhere" of Skilton's "Witch's Daughter" should be in St. Louis with a reputation now established as a city "the first in Americanism." Among those actively interested in furthering these concerts, the second of which is Verdi's "The Manzoni Requiem," are Mmes. Clay E. Jordan, Percival Chubb, Paul Bunn, George O. Carpenter, Jonathan Rice, R. McK. Jones, George F. Tower Jr., Lizzie H. Drey, Charles A. Stix, Francis G. Eaton, H. N. Davis, B. J. Taussig, F. B. Chamberlain and Miss Sarah L. Tower.

D. M. Strauss, milliner, announce their final cleanup of all winter hats at $5 to make room for the new California and Southern resort hats now arriving.—ADV.

While the Little Theater movement is general all over the country, there are very few cities which have children's theaters, and St. Louis is to be one of the limited number. The initial performances of the Children's Dramatic Club is planned to be given at the Artists' Guild on Dec. 27 and 28. The project is launched by Miss Alice Martin, Miss Marguerite Breen and Joseph Solari, and such a combination speaks well for the future of the club. Only plays of decided merit will be presented. The children will be trained to the highest degree of artistic skill, and each play will be artistically staged and costumed. "The Dancing Princesses" will be the first offering, with a cast of 25 in fairy roles, small groups of rehearsals having been held for some time and a gathering of the younger, as well as older, cognoscenti, is promised for the performances.

Lieut. and Mrs. Chester McPheeters reached the city Friday from Garden City, L. I., where Lieut. McPheeters has been stationed and for the present are with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. McPheeters of 5244 Cabanne avenue. Mrs. McPheeters was Miss Leonora Woodward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fife Woodward of 6103 Florissant avenue. Her marriage took place last September in Baltimore, where Lieut. McPheeters was stationed, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Moulton Green, former residents of St. Louis.

The Bellerive Country Club has sent out notices of its annual Christmas dinner dance for members and guests which will take place Monday evening, Dec. 23, at 7:30 o'clock.

Miss Marion Bridge, 23 Westmoreland place, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hudson E. Bridge, and Miss Isabel L. Mauran, 46 Vandeventer place, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lawrence Mauran, have sent out invitations for a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club Thursday evening, Dec. 26.

St. Louis women whose husbands, sons and brothers in the American expeditionary forces have been beneficiaries of the work that the Salvation Army has been carrying on in France since our entrance into the war, are planning a city-wide Christmas thanks offering that is calculated to place the different Salvation Army charity campaigns in St. Louis on a substantial financial basis for the year to come, in appreciation of their services to our men during the fighting period abroad. Mrs. A. C. Meyer of Hawthorne boulevard has been chosen head of the campaign by the women sponsoring it and the days chosen are three of the days preceding Christmas, Dec. 21, 23 and 24.

Committees of society women and girls will be stationed in the various hotel lobbies, office buildings and other places of general public assemblance to solicit funds, and this will take the place of the usual "Keep the Pot Boiling" collection that has been solicited on downtown

Try Pineapple
Jiffy-Jell

Pineapple is a flavor which must be sealed to keep. We seal it in a vial.

We use half a ripe pineapple to make the flavor for one Jiffy-Jell dessert. So you get a wealth of this delightful taste.

Jiffy-Jell comes ready sweetened. The bottle of flavor comes in the package. And it costs a trifle. One package makes instant dessert for six.

Hair On Face
DeMiracle

Ordinary hair growths on face, neck and arms soon become coarse and bristly when merely removed from the surface of the skin. The only common-sense way to remove objectionable hair is to attack it under the skin. DeMiracle, the original sanitary liquid, does this by absorption.

Only genuine DeMiracle has a money-back guarantee in each package. At toilet counters in 60c, $1 and $2 sizes, or by mail from us in plain wrapper on receipt of price.

FREE book with testimonials of highest authorities, explains what causes hair, why it increases and how DeMiracle devitalizes it, mailed in plain sealed envelope on request. DeMiracle, [illegible] Ave. and 129th St., New York.

$420,000 Raised Thus Far Contingent Upon Completion of $500,000 Endowment Fund.

Saving of $420,000 already subscribed to Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., hinges upon additional subscription of $80,000 this month. The campaign for $500,000 as an endowment and equipment fund has been in progress for several months, and pledges have been obtained upon the condition that the entire sum be raised by Dec. 31.

The Rev. M. E. Melvin, general manager of the campaign, says that the undertaking rests now upon St. Louis. The canvass of St. Louis is to be of the quiet order, and it is expected to save the undertaking.

Dr. Melvin has brought to the city his assistants, the Rev. A. Y. Beatie, Rev. C. P. Foreman, Rev. C. P. Browning, R. K. Axson and M. L. Evans. Local aids include the Rev. John F. Cannon, the Rev. John W. McIvor, B. F. Edwards, Drs. W. I. Carroll and G. A. Hulbert, John F. Greene and B. H. Charles

RUTH COBB, NURSE, OF UNIT NO. 21, IS HOME

Has Three Gold Service Stripes and a Great Enthusiasm for Work of Her Associates.

By MARQUERITE MARTYN.

With three gold service stripes on the sleeve of her Red Cross uniform, Miss Ruth Cobb, member of that famous Hospital Unit No. 21, has returned and is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. S. Cobb of the Buckingham Hotel.

In spite of the harrowing scenes of which she has been a part in the vast hospitals at Rouen, the young nurse has gained somewhat in weight, and is anything but depressed by her experiences. The glories of Unit 21, the distinction with which the organization many times has been singled out, severally and individually, evidently far outweigh the memory of nights spent in dugouts or in the wards at the mercy of German aerial bombs of the long, long shifts when hospitals were overtaken by the retreats of last spring and other agonizing experiences. At any rate, she preferred, in an interview, to dwell upon the achievements of other members of the unit.

Tribute to Miss Stimson.

"Miss Stimson, who went as our head nurse, probably is the most distinguished woman of the whole war," said Miss Cobb with enthusiasm. "As chief of all the nurses of the A. E. F., she has more than 10,000 nurses under her direction. Col. Murphy as chief of our medical and surgical department, becomes really the connecting link, the liaison officer, between the army and the Red Cross. Dr. Schwab is now in charge of the largest neurologist (which means shell shock), hospital in France. Dr. Veeder, you know, succeeded Dr. Murphy in command of the unit. And Maj. Clopton, with his mobile unit, Clopton's circus we called it, because it traveled in tents, with 20 selected nurses, and Dr. Fred Abbott and Dr. Ewebach, at the Argonne front, had a fine opportunity, and though I do not know what has been heard from them, they undoubtedly distinguished themselves, for they are everyone of them bricks."

All her memories seem to be of the brighter side of the war. She mentioned a play given upon some occasion by enlisted men of the unit. "It was called 'C'est la guerre.' The words were by Sergt. Burns and the music by Private Dakon. It was such a success that it ran for four nights and two matinees and the whole area attended, even the British appreciating the humor in the piece. It really ought to be given here for the people at home when the boys return."

"Life to Be Tame."

"Life is going to be very tame hereafter," was the only remark bordering on pessimism. But if she persists in belittling the hardship and heroism of her own work, one has only to confront her with letters possessed by her mother, which are a minute record of her life in the hospital. Some brief extracts of these letters arranged for before the nurse was ordered home appear in the Magazine section of the Post-Dispatch today. In their simple narrative of events as they were happening they are convincing of the severity of a Red Cross nurse's trials.

Miss Cobb was a graduate nurse of Washington University, with two years' experience, before she went to France. That she is the cherished daughter of parents amply able and eager to provide for her, seems to make her devotion to a most arduous profession all the more exemplary.

The Secret of Social Success

Are You Losing Your Influence—Your Power to Charm? Do You Realize How Much Really Depends on a Woman's Looks?

NO woman should grow old before her time or permit the appearance of coming age to handicap her socially. Gray hair is the bugbear of many a woman and should be avoided. Nothing ages a woman so quickly as gray, streaked with gray or faded hair, and if this condition is making you look older than you wish—do as many others have done and use La Creole.

LA CREOLE HAIR DRESSING is the most popular Hair Color Restorer in use among society women of America today. It is a safe, delightful preparation which uniformly restores gray, streaked with gray or faded hair to its youthful beauty and lustre. La Creole does not dye the hair—this is guaranteed. It simply restores the original color in a natural way and keeps the hair dark, lustrous and beautiful.

LA CREOLE HAIR DRESSING will not stain the scalp, wash or rub off, nor does it give the hair that greasy or dyed appearance which is so very noticeable. It is easy to apply by simply combing or brushing through the hair each night before retiring, and the results will delight you surprisingly. La Creole is positively guaranteed to do all that is claimed.

La Creole is for sale by all good druggists and toilet counters everywhere or sent direct for $1.20 by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.

MEMORIES OF VIENNA ARE WARNING TO VERSAILLES CONGRESS

the three Powers interested have discussed with each other, and to which preceding treaties made, France a stranger, nothing more is left for her, after having offered to sustain the most equitable claims, than to desire the three Powers to be satisfied and to be so herself.

"The question of Poland can thus no longer have, either for France or for Europe that pre-eminence to which it would have been entitled in a different state of things; and the question of Saxony has become the most important of all, because there remains no other question, where the two principles of legitimacy and the balance of power are both involved to the same extent, as in the disposition proposed to be made of this kingdom.

"In order to establish the legitimacy of this disposition it must be shown that Kings can be lawfully subjected to judicature in any case, and especially that they can be judged by those who seek to deprive them of their possessions; that they can be condemned without having been heard, and that their families and subjects are necessary involved in the sentence of condemnation pronounced against them.

"It must be shown that—

"The principle of confiscation, which the most enlightened nations have banished from their municipal codes, ought to be incorporated into the general law of Europe, as if the confiscation of a kingdom were less odious than that of the humblest cottage.

"It must be shown that—

"Nations have no rights distinct from their sovereigns, and may be likened to flocks and herds attached to the globe that sovereignty is acquired and lost by the fact of conquest; that the nations of Europe are united to each other by no other moral ties than those which unite them to the islanders of the Pacific; that they live among each other under the mere law of nature, and that what is called the public law of Europe does not exist; since although all the civil societies of the earth are wholly or partially governed by usages which constitute laws, the customs which are established among the nations of Europe, and which they have universally, constantly and reciprocally observed for three centuries, do not form a law for them; in a word, that there is no other law but that of force."

Tallyraud apparently indicated a willingness on the part of France to resign herself to Russia's ambitions in Poland, but weeks dragged on, with the two groups as far apart as ever. Suddenly the congress was electrified by the news of Napoleon's return from Elba and the flight of the French King. In the midst of this common danger the Generals again took the field while the diplomats continued to negotiate in an atmosphere better calculated to permit agreement.

Lord Castlereagh, the British plenipotentiary, finally yielded to Russia's claim on the condition that Poland be constituted as a distinct kingdom, attached to Russia under a common sovereign. Saxony was divided about equally between Prussia and the Saxon King. The Pope was reinstated in all of his possessions, with the exceptions of Avignon and Venaissin, which were given to France. Some of the smaller Italian districts were given to Austria, while the rest of Italy was parcelled out to French and Austrian Princes. Norway was taken from Denmark and presented to Sweden, while Denmark was compensated with some German districts, including Lauenburg. England had acquired Malta and other islands, the Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon and other dependencies. To France were restored her colonies in America, Africa and Asia. The Spanish Netherlands (Belgium) were added to Holland, forming the United Kingdom of Netherlands, in spite of racial differences in language, religion and economical interests. It being found impossible to restore the German empire, a Diet was created as the central Government of the German states.

On June 9, nine days before Waterloo, the great treaties making over the map of Europe were signed.

It was foreordained that any settlement based upon mixture of the fact of conquest, prescriptive royal title and a balancing of aggrandizement, would contain little promise of permanency; in fact, never in the history of the world, remarks Prof. Martens, has so vast a fabric been so completely demolished in so short a time. Holland and Belgium were disrupted in 1830; Poland disappeared into Russia about the same time; Germany became a new empire under the hegemony of Prussia, with Austria, the old leader of the confederacy, eliminated. Austria lost practically all of her Italian territory; the new kingdom of Italy swallowed up the kingdom of the two Sicilies, Lombardy and the Ecclesiastical State; Savoy and Nice were united to France, which in turn lost Alsace and Lorraine; the little republic of Cracow was extinguished, all within the space of 60 years. Great Britain, Sweden and Norway and Switzerland—the last named having been neutralized—alone escaped visitations of violent revolution, marking the dawn of a new era in which the rights of peoples, as distinguished from the rights of Kings, became the dominant principle of national as well as of international action.

It may be said, however, to the credit of the Congress of Vienna that two principles enunciated by it have lived and grown in their application to the benefit of succeeding generations, the first of which was a recognition of the freedom of navigation upon international rivers and the second its declaration in favor of the abolition of the slave trade.

Dr. Clagett Takes Change.

The Rev. W. H. Clagett, D. D., has been asked to take charge of the services of the Carondelet Presbyterian Church while the church is seeking a pastor as successor to the Rev. F. B. Cleland, recently resigned. Dr. Clagett will preach at both services today.

How to Keep Strong and Healthy

Matter of Precaution—Take Tonic of Iron, Herbs and Roots.

If your health is perfect this may not interest you. If your health is not perfect, logically you are either sick or "partially sick." If sick, you need a doctor's advice and medicine. If "partially sick" you surely will benefit by taking a real medicine tonic, containing no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. If you are weak, nervous, tired, sluggish and get no strength from your food you need a tonic.

If neuralgia pains, headache, backache, stomach distress assail you—a tonic is your crying need. If irritable, hysterical, sleepless and you worry and fret without reason you need a tonic. If you are thin, anemic, "bloodless" and ill nourished; if you catch cold too easily; if you tire with slight exertion and you are melancholy because of your inability to live and enjoy life as others do, surely a tonic of iron, root and herb extracts will help you.

Thousands like you, have found strength and cheerfulness by taking three grain Cadomene Tablets, the tried formula of a good physician.

If "partially sick" you may increase your risk of fatal ailments attacking your weakened vitality. Be sensible and wise by toning up your health; right now is the time to begin. Ask your druggist for Cadomene Tablets and take as directed by the label.—ADV.

SNIFFLES, SNEEZES, HOARSE WHEEZES

Banish them by using Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey.

Thousands recommend it. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey isn't an experiment, but a cough and cold remedy that has steadily grown popular because it is quickly effective.

For lingering colds or coughs or fresh attacks its balsamic and healing antiseptics are sure to be beneficial. It brings speedy relief from phlegm-congestion, inflammation, tickling bronchial tubes. Good also for hoarseness, coughs due to grippe, and kindred ailments. Economical—a bottle goes a long way. 30c, 60c and $1.20.

ENDS STUBBORN COUGHS IN A HURRY

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all their air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Frank writes: "I have been taking salts to purify my blood and cure my skin of itching and pimples, but don't get much benefit. Please prescribe for this."

Answer: I advise Three-Grain Sulpherb Tablets (not sulphur Tablets), composed of sulphur, cream of tartar and vegetable extracts that remove constipation and purify the system. Take this treatment for several months for best results.

"Patient" writes: "I want your free advice. I seem to have gone all to pieces. I am irritated and annoyed by dizzy moments, fickle appetite, no strength and life has no pleasures for me any more."

Answer: There are thousands who live too fast and then find themselves in your plight. The nervous vigor has been deranged. A tonic invigorating medicine called Three-Grain Cadomene Tablets will afford aid to Nature by supplying more food energy and give your system a chance to recuperate, when calm nerves should take the place of shattered nerves.

"Laborer" asks: "I am so affected with painful kidneys that I cannot work regularly. My sleep is disturbed. Backaches and often have chills and fever, making me real sick for a day."

Answer: A good tonic, soothing and neutralizing medicine for such complaints is Balmwort Tablets. Try them and continue a few weeks and I am sure you will write me of your recovery.

The Doctor's Advice
by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood streets, Dayton, Ohio, including self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled by any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Ford" writes: "I have suffered with a bad cough for some time and I am also weak and tired most of the time, which I think is due to the severe coughing. Can you give me a remedy?"

Answer: Yes, your weakness is due to the coughing, but you should be well relieved by using the following: Get a 2½-oz package of Essence Mentho-Laxene and make according to directions on the bottle, then take a teaspoonful every hour or two until the cough is cured. This makes a full pint of the very best and safest cough syrup. If your druggist does not have Mentho-Laxene, have him order it for you of the wholesale firm.

Mrs. S asks: "My scalp itches terribly, is feverish and a great amount of oily dandruff is present. What is good for this?"

Answer: First shampoo the hair and then apply plain Yellow Minyol about once a week as per directions. This relieves the itching, overcomes the dandruff and makes the hair beautifully glossy and vigorous. Obtain in 4-oz. jars of druggists.

NOTE. For many years Dr. Baker has been giving free advice and prescriptions to millions of people through the press columns, and doubtless has helped in relieving illness and distress more than any single individual in the world's history. Thousands have written him expressions of gratitude and confidence similar to the following:

Dr. Lewis Baker. Dear Sir—I feel it as a duty to write you. Four years ago my husband had a bad cough and found no relief from all cough medicines we could try. We finally tried the Mentho-Laxene prescription and made it up as cough medicine and it quickly cured him. It also gives me great relief from asthma, from which I suffer in winter time, as you know here in Oregon we have it so rainy instead of snow. I send stamps and coupon for your great "Guide Book, Health and Beauty." Thanking you, I am.

Yours truly,
MRS. M. H. VAN WART,
Lents, Oregon.

Talk of High Cost of Medicine

"Although I paid only $2.00 for 2 bottles of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, I wouldn't take $100 for what 2 doses have done for me. My partner also has taken a dose with wonderful results. He was threatened with an operation for stomach and bowel trouble, and is sure he will be all right now. We both suffered from indigestion and bloating with gas." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. GENERALS WHO LED THE BRITISH ARMIES TO GREAT VICTORY

reliminary stop in the Flanders ampaign.

It was one of the finest examples of scientific local offensive, comparable only with Petain's two thrusts at Verdun in 1916. It was characterized by a marvelous co-ordination of various arms and marked by such a clear evidence of accurate intelligence work that Plumer's chief intelligence officer, Harrington, won immediate promotion. As a result of the preparation, Plumer's troops advanced over the famous Messines "Whitesheet" Ridge with incredible small losses and abolished for the time the old Ypres salient. Later, when Gough had made a mess of the Paschendaele offensive, Plumer took over and brought order out of chaos. When Italy was overwhelmed at Caporetto, Plumer was sent to command the British reserves, which were hurried south and did admirable work. His is a record that has no trace of failure, even temporary.

Rawlinson's Fine Record.

Only less conspicuous is the record of Rawlinson. It begins with the command of the immortal Seventh Division, which arrived in Flanders in October and in less than a month was reduced from 12,000 to 2000. Its share of Ypres is forever memorable. At Loos Rawlinson was less happy, but he reappears in command of the Fourth Army at the first Somme and holds this post of great importance throughout the battle. After that he disappears for a time, to reappear after Gough's defeat in March, commanding the Fourth Army again. He deals the great stroke on Aug. 8, which was the beginning of the long series of blows leading to the final scene at Mons.

He was Haig's personal friend and choice; he shares with Haig criticism in certain phases, but he shares equally with his chief the credit for the ultimate success in which his victory of Aug. 8, and his share in the breaking of the Hindenburg line on Oct. 8 are brilliant details.

Another General whose fortunes have been steadier is Horne, who commanded the First Army from 1916 onward. An artillery officer, his contribution to the first Somme was very great. He was a rising soldier from that moment and his army was always held highly. Against him fell the second German blow in April of this year, and his front was temporarily pierced, owing to the unexpected and complete collapse of the Portuguese. But he held on, managed to hold Givenchy and the high ground west of La Basse until the great danger was past.

Even more conspicuous was his success in late August, when he attacked north of the Scarpe and broke the Drocourt-Queant line, insuring the ultimate fall of both Douai and of Cambrai. The extent of this success was totally unsuspected. It was the first sure promise that the Hindenburg line would not stand, and it was a success which held out the first hopes of a decision in 1918.

Byng's Brilliant Generalship.

Rather more brilliant is the record of Byng. He was a distinguished officer before he won Cambrai in 1917, but this victory gave him a place which he has held ever since. In a sense, this victory marks a turning point in the war. It was not properly followed up, which means that Byng did not receive the support which he needed to make his first success permanent. This was because the success overran all expectations and the British army had not the necessary reserves. But Cambrai proved that by restoring the element of surprise it was possible to break through and that by use of tanks surprise could be had, since they would take the place of long sustained bombardment in clearing the way for the infantry.

It was by the use of the lessons of first Cambrai that the allies won the campaign of 1918 and the war. Mangin's great counter offensive at the second Marne was founded upon the use of tanks. Each successive British and French thrust thereafter employed the same method. The German used a variation of the surprise tactics in his earlier successes, but without the tank, relying upon secret concentration and great numbers. But it was Byng who abolished the long-standing belief that trench lines could not be broken, and his discovery was one of the very greatest of the conflict.

In the spring, at a critical moment when Gough's army had fallen, Byng broke the German effort to extend the dislocation of the British front. He held Arras and Vimy Ridge in the face of a tremendous attack, which the Germans abandoned after 48 hours. Still later, in August, he made a successful drive from the old Somme line eastward to Bapaume, which terminated German hopes of holding the allies west of the Hindenburg line for the balance of the campaign.

Plumer, Rawlinson and Byng, these are the outstanding figures under Haig. They bear the same relation to their commander that Gouraud, Mangin, Debeney and Berthelot bear to Petain; for Castelnau and Fayolles, who commanded groups of armies brilliantly, the British army supplies no counterpart, since authority was not thus delegated.

Outside of the European field there are two British Generals who claim attention, Maude of Bagdad and Allenby of Jerusalem and Samaria. Of the former it is to be said that taking the Mesopotamian command after the surrender of Kut El Amara, and following a shocking and scandalous failure, he rivaled the best achievements of Kitchener in the Khartum campaign and conducted a colonial campaign in a fashion which must remain a model for all the future. Unhappily, he died just after he had taken Bagdad and before he could enjoy the full fruits of his great labors. But he remains one of the great figures of that long and splendid succession of British colonial leaders. He gave Britain Mesopotamia and he ended all apprehension as to India. His warfare was the kind in which Britain has always led the world, and, apart from Kitchener, he can have no rival.

Of Allenby there is a record in the West as well as in the East. He commanded a cavalry brigade in the Mons campaign. He held the Messines Ridge with a thin facade of horsemen in the critical days of Ypres, before the French aid came. After that he commanded the Third British Army, afterward to go to Byng in the battle of Arras, in which he took Vimy Ridge, cleared Arras and pushed down into the Flanders Plain. The success of the spring of 1917 was the great achievement of the British in the war up to that time.

Later, when the British commander in Egypt failed at Gaza and the Palestine campaign was in danger, Allenby went East. He restored the situation and presently the world heard of him in Jerusalem. This was a ray of light in a dark period. But Allenby's great triumph was to come, when last September he crushed two Turkish armies in Samaria, captured the bulk of their forces and made the surrender of the Turk inevitable. This was one of the most complete victories in history. It resulted in the clearing of Palestine and Syria, the fall of Damascus, Aleppo and Beirut and the elimination of Turkey from the war. It will stand side by side with d'Esperey's success in Macedonia, won at the same moment and resulting in the surrender of Bulgaria.

Nevertheless, the laws of war and trials for offenses thereunder by military commissions, are distinctly recognized. Thus, Article XV enacts that:

"The provisions of these articles conferring jurisdiction upon courts-martial shall not be construed as depriving military commissions, provost courts or other military tribunals, of concurrent jurisdiction in respect of offenders or offenses that by the law of war may be lawfully triable by such military commissions, provost courts or other military tribunals."

Other United States articles of war (80, 81, 82) directly recognize the jurisdiction of military commissions and another article (115) gives authority to the president of a military commission to appoint a reporter to record its proceedings, and an interpreter when necessary.

Among the violations of the laws of war for which persons may be punished are:

Firing on undefended localities.

Pillage, destruction or waste of property and land where no military necessity requires it.

Ill-treatment of prisoners of war.

Use of cruel, barbarous and agonizing methods of destroying life—unusual and reprobated in civilized warfare.

Piracy on the high seas, including the submarine warfare on hundreds of harmless merchantmen of all nations, sinking them and often drowning crew and passengers and innocent women and children.

Sinking of Lusitania an Example.

The sinking of the Lusitania was an example. For this murderous and dreadful act the German Emperor decorated the commander of the submarine, and all Germany applauded. Pastor Baumgarten, although characterizing it as an act of gigantic cruelty, nevertheless, in a sermon, "gave himself up to honest delight at this victorious exploit of German defensive power."

The late German Emperor was war lord and Comamnder in Chief of all the German armies and constantly inspected them and followed their advances in Belgium and France.

He witnessed the awful ravages they committed, without the military necessity therefor, which he could have prevented, but apparently, in his published declarations, gloated over them.

There can be no permanent peace for the ages to come until all the great criminal violators of the laws of war in this war shall, as an object lesson, be brought to the bar of military justice before a military commission, and, if found guilty, duly hanged.

In this category are the former German Kaiser and his son, the former Crown Prince; also Von Hindenburg, Ludendorff, Admiral von Tirpitz, who controlled submarine activities, and submarine and other offenders charged with violating these laws.

As before remarked, the United States entered this war in vindication of the law of nations, so dreadfully and atrociously violated. Our officers and soldiers in the Expeditionary Forces abroad best know, because they have periled their lives in the cause for which their country went to war, the dreadful and horrible outrages committed by the boches on persons and property and the deliberate devastation and ruin of churches, cities, villages and cultivated lands, and the seizure of all machinery in factories in Belgium and Northern France and removal of same to German factories, to destroy future commercial competition.

The Decimation of Belgium.

President Wilson in his address to Congress on Dec. 2, 1918, on this subject said:

"Many of their factories are razed to the ground. Much of their machinery is destroyed or has been taken away. * * * Their markets will be taken by others if they are not in some special way assisted."

These acts were perpetrated under sanction of commanding officers and with approval of the German War Lord.

No maudlin pity nor pacifist sentiments from those surreptitiously amenable to German propaganda, or otherwise, nor declarations from any socalled "League of Free Nations Association" of men and women who, if qualified for military duty, would not be in the field, can be tolerated to prevent or interfere with the administration by the United States and Entente military authorities of stern and righteous military justice upon these great criminals before a military commission, and, on conviction, their execution by hanging.

That the United States is bound by such rule of action was illustrated in our Civil War, where there were trials by military commissions, and after active belligerent operations had ceased by capitulations of armies, and before proclamation of peace. The writer, for example, was president of a commission required to investigate whether two officers of rank, then on parole, had the year before violated the laws of war.

As to ill-treatment of prisoners of war, the officer who had been in charge of the military prison at Andersonville, Ga., was tried by military commission, found guilty and hanged, while the officer who was in charge of the military prison at Salisbury, N. C., was happily acquitted.

The Accounting With the War Lord.

Now, the survivors of that greatest war our country has been engaged in, measured by total losses in killed and wounded, as comrades, arm in arm, have sent their sons and grandsons to fight, and, if necessary, die together, in vindication of the law of nations and destruction of militarism.

Sternly they think of our gallant young Americans who have suffered inconceivable tortures and lingering deaths from liquid fire or from having been gassed, and with no dissentient voice join in the expectation of due military justice being meted out to these criminal German violators of the laws of war.

Holland cannot lawfully refuse to extradite the late war lord, who, in addressing his army blasphemously said:

"Let them perish—all the enemies of the German people! God demands their destruction! God, who by my mouth, bids you do His will."

As Premier Lloyd George pointed out, the punishment of this man for violations of the laws of war, by the sentence such laws impose, will be a lesson to all rulers in the future.

Private Sentenced to 17 Years.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Private W. B. Hunt of the Eighty-sixth Infantry has been sentenced to combined sentences of 17 years for several offenses, chief among which was wearing the uniform of a Lieutenant and posing as such officer.

Dr. Kenneth K. MacAlpine

Adjunct Professor For 16 Years

New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital

Says That Nuxated Iron

Is in His Opinion the Most Valuable Tonic, Strength and Blood Builder Any Physician Can Prescribe

Probably no remedy has ever met with such phenomenal success as has Nuxated Iron—over three million people annually are taking it in this country alone. It has been used and highly endorsed by such distinguished men as: Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former Secretary of the Treasury and Ex-Governor of Iowa; former United States Senator and Vice Presidential Nominee Charles A. Towne; United States Senator E. S. Johnson; Judge G. W. Atkinson of the United States Court of Claims of Washington; Judge Samuel S. Yoder, Statesman, Jurist, formerly Surgeon-Major in the Army; U. S. Commissioner of Immigration Hon. Anthony Caminetti, and others.

WHAT DR. MACALPINE SAYS:

"During sixteen years as Lecturer and Adjunct Professor of Special Surgery (Proctology) in the New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, I never had recourse to so valuable a remedy for building up the health and strength of debilitated, convalescent patients as Nuxated Iron. Severe tests recently made with Nuxated Iron have absolutely convinced me that it is a preparation of most extraordinary merit.

"If people would only realize that iron is just as indispensable to the blood as is air to the lungs, and be just as particular about keeping up a sufficient supply at all times, there would, in my opinion, be far less disease resulting from anaemic, weakened conditions. For years it was a problem with physicians how to administer iron in a form that could be taken up by the system and increase the red blood corpuscles without upsetting the stomach, blackening the teeth or producing other disorders almost as serious as the lack of iron itself. But the introduction of Nuxated Iron has done away with all objectionable features of the old mineral salts of iron and gives to every careful thinking physician a tried and valuable prescription which he can recommend nearly every day with benefit to his weakened and run-down patients. Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy and endurance into the whole system whether the patient be young or old. In my opinion Nuxated Iron is the most valuable tonic, strength and blood builder any physician can prescribe."

SPECIAL TO PHYSICIANS

Doctor. What Do You Recommend to Renew the Supply of Iron in the Blood of People in a Weak, Nervous, Run-down State?

Dr. MacAlpine, for 16 years Adjunct Professor in the New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, says the introduction of Nuxated Iron gives to every careful thinking physician a tried and valuable prescription which he can recommend nearly every day with benefit to his weakened and run-down patients.

Dr. MacAlpine's opinion is borne out by the endorsement of such physicians as Dr Schuyler C. Jacques, formerly Visiting Surgeon St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York; Dr. A. J. Newman, late House Surgeon of Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago; Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital; Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author, and others.

William R. Kerr, former Health Commissioner of Chicago, says Nuxated Iron should be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician in the country.

Now, Doctor, when you wish to prescribe a true tonic, strength and blood builder—one that puts the strength and energy into the veins of the weak, infirm, run-down and aged—why not try the same kind of iron—Nuxated Iron—that Dr. MacAlpine and other physicians have used with such success in their practice? Two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron taken three times per day after meals will often increase the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous, rundown folks in two weeks' time. Your druggist will refund your patient's money if it doesn't.

DR. KENNETH K. MACALPINE
Prominent New York Surgeon

WHO HE IS

Dr. MacAlpine graduated from the New York University Medical College, was Assistant Surgeon (Outdoor Dept.), Bellevue Hospital, formerly House Surgeon and for 16 years Adjunct Professor New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, which is the original and largest Post Graduate Hospital in the United States, a member of the New York County Medical Society, the New York State Medical Society, New York Physicans' Association and Post Graduate Alumni Association. Dr. MacAlpine, whose office is at 131 West 87th St., New York, is regarded as a leading American authority on Proctology and has lectured and operated before the Surgical Section of the New York State Medical Society.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE—Nuxated Iron which is used by Dr. MacAlpine and others with such surprising results and which is prescribed and recommended by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the old inorganic products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co., Johnson Bros.' Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Stores Co., and all other druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

"Brother Feels Sick! He Wants a Candy Cascaret"

To Mothers! You will avoid worry and trouble by giving your children Cascarets instead of nasty Castor Oil, Calomel and Pills. Children look upon Cascarets as Candy and never refuse them even when sick, bilious, feverish, constipated. Besides Cascarets cost only 10 cents a box.

Nothing else works the bile, sour fermentations and poisons from a child's tender stomach, liver and bowels like good old harmless Cascarets. They never gripe, never injure, never disappoint the worried mother. Give Cascarets to children aged one year and upwards. Directions on each 10 cent box.

ARMENIAN ARTIST'S PAINTINGS ON VIEW

The Most Impressive of C. Calusd's Canvases Here Are Marine.

Twenty-eight paintings by C. Calusd, a noted Armenian artist who has lived and painted in New York for the last six years, and one of whose paintings hangs in the White House, will be on exhibition at Strauss' Studio throughout this week. The artist is in charge of the exhibit.

Calusd made New York laugh at the discomfiture of the customs officials when, upon his arrival in this country in June, 1912, he evaded the payment of duty on 49 paintings by a unique scheme. The law provides that finished paintings are dutiable, but unfinished ones may come in free. Each of Calusd's pictures were completed with the exception of one corner, which was entirely innocent of paint, and, therefore they were not dutiable.

He was born in Constantinople, and studied under Valeri, court painter, until compelled, during a massacre of Armenians, to flee for his life to Bulgaria. There he won first prize and a diploma of honor from King Ferdinand at the national exhibit in 1899. He later moved to Rumania, and Queen Elizabeth (Carmen Sylva) became his patroness. He painted one picture for the then Princess Marie, now Queen of Rumania, who has proved one of the romantic figures of the world war.

Calusd shows, with great relish, a later clipping from a Constantinople paper in fhich the city takes credit for being the birthplace of the now famous artist. It adds, with huge irony, that he left Constantinople "because of political events." The "event," Calusd grimly points out, was the imminent prospect of his head being lopped off.

By this time, Calusd says, he liked the United States so well he decided to stay, and has since become a citizen.

The most impressive of the pictures on exhibit here are marine subjects. His seas are no mere sheets of crinkled glass, so often seen; they have a piquant "wetness" and green, translucent depts, with tremendous, heacing undercurrents that whip them into hissing froth against the rocks, until the beholder fairly feels the sting of salt spray in his face. There is a terrific energy in the breakers that are hurling the vessels on the reef in his "In Sad Plight," and in the whitecaps that toss the frail boatload of survivods in "Saved From the Wreck."

The latest and largest of his paintings, and one occupying the place of honor, bears the title of "Our Lord Protects the American Navy," and depicts a vast expanse of rough sea, with a line of battleships emerging into the middle distance, while over the scene rises a shadowy figure of Christ. While the seas are executed with characteristic power, the subject suggests an artificiality suited to popular feeling.

"Sunset on the Bosphorous" is all the name implies. The scene is dominated by a glorious blaze of soft colors spreading behind the great dome of a mosque, and almost absorbing the wealth of detail which the artist expended on shipping and shoreline. In this and other pictures, Caulsd attains great heights and far distances somewhat reminiscent of our own Berninghaus' Arizona scenes.

All the turbulence of the sea scenes have their counterpart in a number of Constantinople studies. Under the tall, slender, white columns sits the placid Turks, knees crossed, arms folded, gazing at—nothing. White domes and minarets rise sereneiy in the distance. The bosom of the water is scarcely ruffled. Nothing stirs. There is hardly a line of action in "T ehSecond Day of the Bosphorus." The picture breathes fatalism—what is to be, will be; tomorrow is another day.

"It must be so," the artist commented. "The painter has as great an obligation to be truthful as the historian. Who will say he is not a historian himself? He describes manners, atmosphere, the soul of a localtiy."

In proof thta he practices this, there hangs on another wall a New York skyline, seen through the morning mist. Tugs puff steam; one sees the hurried stream of traffic over Brooklyn bridge in the distance. There is vitality, force, "busyness" in the picture.

An entirely different sort of genius is displayed in "Bazaar of Sultan Ahmed," which is a feat of contrasting colors. The bright hues are as sharply drawn, and the contrasts as vividly emphasized, as in a stained glass window.

Many other evidences of the artist's versatility are to be found. He is not a painter of horses, he says, yet he has presented a superb Arabian, in "Arabian Horse Guide." The inspiration, he told the interviewer, arose from the fact that the horse depicted was his father's, a gift from the Sultain. Another feat of coloring is accomplished in a cock fight, and there are a number of thumbbox facial studies, all Oriental.

Minority Report in La Follette Case.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Further proceedings in the case of Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, looking to his exoneration, censure or expulsion from the Senate as the facts may warrant, are recommended in a minority report from the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee presented in the Senate today by Senator Pomerene of Ohio, Democrat, chairman of the committee. The report charges the Wisconsin Senator with violation of the espionage act by alleged mis-statements in his address before the Non-Partisan League at St. Paul, Minn. Sept. 20, 1917.

Men of the Army, Navy and Marines

Let us all pull together and pay our debts to the brave boys who have made the Supreme Sacrifice for our country!

EVERY ONE OF YOU CAN HELP

Without one cent of additional expense to you! As an aid in creating a big fund to build a suitable memorial in St. Louis as a tribute to your brave comrades who have given their lives that Liberty might live, The Weil Clothing Company will issue an order (payable in cash to the Treasurer of such a fund) to every honorably discharged Soldier, Sailor or Marine for an amount equal to 10% of his total clothing purchases at this store. Here's your opportunity to help a great cause! What is your answer?

The Weil Clothing Co. pledges ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS to this fund!

NEAR BEER RULE TO WILSON

Tumulty Promises to Wire Statement of St. Louis Labor.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, yesterday definitely promised the St. Louis labor delegation that he would cable a statement of their case to the President, setting forth labor conditions in St. Louis.

The delegation is urging the removal of the ban against the making of near-beer by breweries.

If your Child is Cross, Sick, Feverish and Constipated.

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is that they become clogged with waste, the liver becomes sluggish, the stomach is disordered and then your little one becomes cross, feverish and does not eat, sleep or behave naturally. Often the breath is bad and system "stuffy" with cold; the child has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste-matter, sour bile and undigested food pass out of the system, and you have a healthy, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," made by the California Fig Syrup Co., which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Look for name, "California." Accept No Fig Syrup but "California."—ADV.

ATTRACTIONS THIS WEEK AT THEATERS

"Flo-Flo" at American Is Musical Comedy With Pretentious Fashion Display.

A musical comedy affording a pretentious fashion display is "Flo-Flo," the successful John Cort production which arrives tonight at the American Theater. It will remain for eight days, including a performance next Sunday night.

"Flo-Flo" ran for more than 200 performances at the Cort Theater in New York last year. Some of its scenes are laid in a "Bride Shop," thus giving an opportunity for chorus girls as mannikins to parade in an array of gowns, evening wraps and other garments proper for the trousseau. There is a bit of plot, concerning an Oshkosh heiress, a childhood sweetheart and a bogus Count; together with songs and fun.

Among those in the company are Andrew Toombs, Rena Parker, James B. Carson, Thomas Handers, Arthur Millis, Leon Leonard and Edna Morn.

The Christmas week offering at the American will be the David Belasco production, "Tiger Rose," with Leonora Ulric at the head of the cast. The two Shubert theaters, the Jefferson and Garrick, are idle this week, but next week will present respectively "The Bird of Paradise" and the musical comedy, "Oh, Boy!" The former has been shown here numerous times, with growing popular favor; the latter was presented last season at the Shubert-Jefferson.

Valeska Suratt, erstwhile singer, dancer, exponent of extreme clothes and motion picture "vamp," attempts serious drama this week at the Orpheum, in "The Purple Poppy," a one-act play of Russian flavor. It was written for her and her company by C. V. de Vonde and Paul M. Potter, the latter the dramatizer of "Trilby." Other items on the bill are "Little Billy," a dimunitive comedian; Eddie Janis and Rene Chaplow, who have a musical debate, with violin and song, on the merits of classics and jazz, and Ray Fern and Marion Davis, in a revue of dances and songs.

GUSIKOFF SOLOIST OF TODAY'S "POP" CONCERT

Young Concertmaster to Play Mendelssohn's Tuneful Concerto in E-Minor.

Michael Gusikoff, talented young concert master of the Symphony Orchester, will make his first solo appearance of the season at this afternoon's popular concert at the Odeon, and will play in its entirety the melodious concerto in E Minor, for violin and orchestra, by Mendelssohn. Later Gusikoff will be soloist at a pair of the Friday and Saturday concerts.

A first-time number on today's program is the waltz from the ball scene in Tschaikowsky's opera, "Eugen Onegin," which was based on Pushkin's romantic poem of the same name. This opera, though almost unknown in this country, is one of the favorites in the Russian repertory. The complete program will be as follows:

Overture to Merry Wives of Windsor..Nicolai
Nocturne in C Minor..................Chopin
Concerto in E Minor and orchestra op. 64—Mendelssohn
Waltz from "Eugen Onegin'....Tschaikowsky
Panamericana ....Herbert
Shepherd's Hey ....Grainger

A special orchestral program, without soloist, has been arranged for the regular concerts Friday afternoon and Saturday night of this week. It has the appearance of a pan-Slavic program, for one of the composers is a Czech, another is a Pole, and the third number is Henry Hadley's "In Bohemia"—which happens, however, not to refer to the country but to the Bohemian Club, an organization of artists, in San Francisco. The program opens with the very popular symphony, "From the New World," by Dvorak, and is as follows:

Symphony No. 5, op. 95, From the New World ....Dvorak
(a) Adagio: Allegro molto,
(b) Largo.
(c) Scherzo: molto vivace.
(d) Allegro con fuoco.

Overture—In Bohemia ....Hadley
(First time.)

Fitelberg's work was played for the first time in America at the symphony concerts of Dec. 6 and 7, 1912, and is resurrected now in honor of the deliverance of Poland, of which the falcon is the national bird.

BARNETT ANNOUNCES UNITS OF MARINES SERVING IN FRANCE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The first complete list of Marine Corps units serving with the American army in France was made public today by Major-General Barnett, commandant of the Marine Corps, in his annual report to the Secretary of the Navy.

Following are the marine units in France: The Fifth, Sixth and Thirteenth Regiments, the First Machine Gun Battalion, the First, Second and Third Replacement Battalions, the Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth, separate battalions; First and Second Casual Replacement Battalions, First Separate Machine Gun Battalion and part of the Eleventh Regiment. The total up to the date of the report was 540 officers and 21,323 men.

Between April 1 and Sept. 1, 1918, the marine casualties totaled 23 per cent of their gross strength. Forty-four officers and 1116 enlisted men were killed in action and 76 officers and 2832 men were wounded.

"Only 25 men are known to be in the hands of the enemy," Gen. Barnett said. "It is considered that this constitutes a most remarkable testimonial to the magnificent morale and individual courage of the men."

INFLUENZA CAUSES NUMBER OF DEATHS HERE TO DOUBLE

IMPROVEMENT IN SITUATION SHOWN

3204 New Cases of Influenza Last Week, Against 6639 in Previous Week; Only 231 Reported Yesterday.

Influenza has caused the number of deaths from all causes in the 10 weeks since Oct. 7, when the disease appeared in the city, to be more than double the number of deaths for the same period last year.

Figures compiled by the Vital Statistics Bureau of the Health Department show that the number of deaths from all causes since last Oct. 7 is 4447, while the number of deaths from all causes for the same period last year was 2107.

The total number of deaths in the city from influenza since Oct. 7 now is 1702 and from pneumonia, 757. The total number of influenza cases reported in that time is 30,564.

Deaths last week were more than three times the number for the same week last year and established a record for both influenza and pneumonia fatalities since the opening of the present emergency.

The number of deaths from all causes last week was 677, compared with 207 for the same week last year.

Last week the number of deaths from influenza was 324 and from pneumonia 126, a record for both diseases since they became prevalent to a marked degree. The previous high number of deaths was week before last, when 263 persons died from influenza and 110 from pneumonia.

However, the number of new cases reported last week indicates that the situation is improving markedly, there being only 3204 reported, compared to 6639 week before last and 4280 the week before. Likewise, the figures for yesterday show still further improvement, there having been only 231 new cases tabulated for the previous 24 hours, whereas Friday there were 423. Another indication of improvement was that 600 terminations were reported yesterday.

When the Bureau of Vital Statistics closed at noon yesterday 29 influenza deaths and seven pneumonia deaths had been reported since 5 p. m. Friday. The number of deaths from 5 p. m. Thursday to 5 p. m. Friday was 39 from influenza and 18 from pneumonia.

SCHAFF ENJOINED FROM SUING FOR BONDS GIVEN BANKRUPT

Judge Dyer Rules That New York Correspondent Must Be Sued by Alex H. Brown & Co. Receiver.

Judge Dyer in the United States District Court yesterday made permanent an order restraining Charles E. Schaff of St. Louis, receiver for the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad, from further prosecuting his suit to recover the value of $22,000 worth of bonds which were held as collateral by Josephthal & Co., New York correspondents of the bankrupt St. Louis brokerage firm of Alex H. Brown & Co.

The Court ruled that all of the assets of the bankrupt firm should be turned over to its receiver, W. L. McDonald, and that any suit for the recovery of securities pledged for the firm's account must be instituted by the receiver.

Schaff alleged that he pledged the bonds with the Brown firm as collateral for stock trades and that without his knowledge the firm in turn put up the bonds as collateral with Josephthal & Co. He was told by the Court that the receiver for the Brown firm would be instructed to bring suit for the recovery of all collateral put up by the firm and the Court would protect the interests of all persons claiming prior ownership of such collateral.

JUDGE DYER ALLOWS 44 OF 88 APPLICANTS FOR CITIZENSHIP

Two of Foreign Birth Admit They Wanted United States Protection to Become Saloonkeepers.

Judge Dyer in the United States District Court yesterday denied citizenship to two alien applicants when naturalization officers testified that they had sought to become citizens for the purpose of obtaining dramshop licenses. The two were Bartelomeo Picassa, an Italian, of 3500 Laclede avenue, and Anthonis G. Melisaropulos, a Greek, of 800 Elm street.

Leon Lutzky, a German alien, employed by the Wagner Electric Co., was told his application would be investigated as a result of a letter written by his superintendent, C. B. Lord, in which Lord declared Lutzky was not in sympathy with our form of Government.

But 44 of 88 applicants were admitted. Eight were dismissed because of ignorance of our governmental institutions, and the others were dropped when they failed to appear in court.

Big Christmas Spectacle Arranged for the Children

NEARLY ALL OF FESTIVAL FUND MUST BE RAISED IN TEN DAYS

Nativity Play for the Coliseum Entertainment

The story of the Nativity is the groundwork of an elaborate spectacle which is being prepared for this year's Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Entertainment for poor children at the Coliseum.

The spectacle will be in two parts. The first will consist of a great Nativity processional, and the second of a series of dances illustrative of the Christmas spirit. Nelson Cunliff, City Park Commissioner, who is Chairman of the Festival Association's Entertainment Committee, has supplied the following scenario of the production:

The Stage.

"At the center of the stage a large Christmas tree, surmounted by a star; in front of the tree a little thatched roof, sheltering a manger.

The Actors.

"1. Three shepherds, in traditional costume, carrying crooks.

"2. The three kings, one of them of middle age, stalwart and brawny. He carries a staff, signifying the authority of rulership. The second king is very old. He is brought in in a litter and carries in his hand a golden ball or globe, symbolizing philosophic wisdom. The third king is a young man, garbed as an ancient soldier and carrying a sword.

"3. Attendants to these various groups, as follows:

"a. Following the shepherds a group numbering from 30 to 50 of workmen in ancient garb. They are divided into groups, each group carrying symbols of their occupations, as, for example, rude shovels and mattocks for tilling the soil, an ancient plow. If possible a pair of oxen drawing a cart. Then several men with water vessels, hanging from a bar, which they carry on their shoulders. In this group, also, women and children.

"b. Proceeding the procession of kings two heralds, a chamberlain, a camel driver to attend the camel on which the first king is riding, four litter bearers, then three negroes, carrying chests, which contain gifts of the three kings to the Christ child.

"4. Joseph and Mary.

Lighting and Music.

"From the east blue lights flooding the stage and the ramp on each side. From the west orange lights flooding the west side of the stage and ramp. A 60-ampere spotlight, directed exactly to the center of the stage.

"Music to be provided by a brass band and a body of singers.

Processional.

"Participants—50 women singers forming the angel choir, followed by 3 shepherds, 25 workmen, 15 women, 6 children, 2 heralds, 1 chamberlain, 1 camel driver, first Wise man, 4 litter bearers, second Wise man, third Wise man, 3 negroes bearing gifts.

Action.

"A fanfare of trumpets announces the beginning of the entertainment. To some stirring march of religious character the processional starts at southeast end of Coliseum and proceeds around to center north and down center to stage, separating at stage into two groups: on west side—workmen, women, children, shepherds. On the eas side—heralds, three Wise men with retinue.

Pantomime.

"Joseph and Mary take their places. Then, from the west come the group of workmen, women and children, walking up and over the stage, so that the shepherds, who follow at the end of the procession, are left standing at the left side of the stage. As they come in, the chorus sings a carol telling the story of the three shepherds.

"When they have reached their places and the song is concluded, a fanfare of trumpets is heard and the two heralds appear, marching down through the east arcade and up to the center of the stage. Here they blow a second fanfare and the band plays a march of regal character. The procession of the Kings enters, crosses the stage and groups on the west side of the stage. As they reach their places the chorus sings 'We Three Kings of Orient Are.'

"Then Joseph steps forward, raises his hands in benediction and the participants all kneel. The chorus may sing "Holy Night." Then the gift-bearers bring forward the chests and place them in front of Mary. As the Kings and shepherds kneel in adoration, Mary lifts the drapery that shields the child and a light begins to grow in her arms, until it reaches almost blinding intensity. During the adoration the chorus will sing something of the character of Rachmaninoff's 'Cheruninic Hymn,' with Gretchaninoff's 'Hallelujah.'

"At the conclusion Joseph, in pantomime, thanks the shepherds and the Kings and blesses them. Participants then rise with hands raised toward heaven in a song of hallelujah. In the meantime Joseph and Mary disappear off stage.

Wise Man Becomes Santa.

"Pantomime action on part of second wise man, who, after throwing off monk's cloak, reveals himself in a costume that presents him as perhaps the first Santa Claus. He gathers around him the children in the pantomime, picks up his pack and with the words 'peace on earth, good will towards men,' proceeds to the altar of Christmas gifts—a slight elevation in the center of the Coliseum—from which place he beckons to the various groups of children which are placed at intervals around the Coliseum. As each of these groups of dancers prepare to appear, two little girls bearing a banner with the name of the dance runs up to the altar of Christmas gifts and forms a part of Santa Claus' court.

"Then dances follow in this order: Christmas Spirits, Peace, Good Will, Joy, Holly, Evergreen, Mistletoe, etc.

"When finished each group falls back in its place, and at conclusion of all the dances a playground dance follows all around the Coliseum, with the procession of the participants in the Nativity pantomime finishing the performance, they having grouped themselves on their stage as spectators at the conclusion of their pantomime."

The Coliseum entertainments are ordinarily attended by 10,000 or more children.

Oscar Leonard, representing Jewish Educational and Charitable Association, superintendent of that organization.

Henry J. Bube, chairman Hall Committee, Levis-Zukoski Mercantile Co.

Miss Sara Elizabeth Edwards, chairman Lame Children's Committee, executive secretary for Missouri District, National Committee for Better Films.

Mrs. A. H. Sippy, chairman Basket Packing Committee.

William E. Taylor, business manager, manager of Want "Ad" Department, Post-Dispatch.

These men comprise the Executive Committee of the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association. Each chairman appoints from one to 65 associates annually. Not all of the associates for this year have been named. The full list will be published when completed.

SMALL CONTRIBUTIONS ARE ESPECIALLY WANTED; LISTS THROUGHOUT CITY

Unusual Efforts Will Be Necessary to Bring in Amount Needed to Carry Out Plans for Poor Little Ones and Their Families.

If Santa Claus is to visit all of the poor children and their families to which it is desired to send him this year, it will be necessary for the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association to raise almost $10,000 in the next ten days, or an average of nearly $1000 a day. The festival management believes this can be done if all persons willing to give small sums, where they can not afford more, can be reached.

Realizing that this year's fund is likely to be made up more largely than ever before of small donations, and to afford as many persons as possible an opportunity to contribute, the Festival Association is sending out an increased number of contribution blanks. The total number being distributed is over 20,000 and it is the aim to put one in every office and business concern, large and small, in the city. Any person desiring to aid the association's great annual hospitality to the poor should be able to find a blank near at hand in any part of the city.

No donation is too small. Even a nickel, a dime, or a quarter, will help to make some poor child happy with gifts or to give some poor family a substantial dinner on Christmas day.

Persons who desire to do so can send contributions direct to the Post-Dispatch by mail or can leave them at the Post-Dispatch office or at Christmas Festival headquarters, 310 North Twelfth street, on the ground floor of the Post-Dispatch Building. There are no other ways of making donations, as the Christmas Festival has no collectors of funds.

Preparations for the Christmas Festival are as well under way as it is possible for them to be at this time. Forty thousand gifts for the children have been arranged for, food for dinners which are to be delivered in baskets to poor families is being purchased and the Coliseum spectacle is being rehearsed. It is expected that the young women workers will complete their part of the distribution of contribution lists by Tuesday. The next day other young women will begin a canvass of all places where the blanks have been left to see that the blanks have not been mislaid or neglected and whether in any instances more blanks are needed. They will collect no money.

The packing of baskets will begin Thursday on the ground floor of the large building at the northwest corner of Eleventh and Olive streets. The work will again be under the direction of Mrs. A. H. Sippy, who will be assisted by a large corps of women volunteers. A part of the dinners in baskets will be taken in charge by certain organizations for families in which they are interested, and all of the others will be delivered to the homes for which they are intended by the Food Purchasing and Basket Distribution Committee, headed by Louis Nolte.

The annual expedition to Catawissa, Mo., for the Coliseum Christmas tree, will take place Thursday under the leadership of Nelson Cunliff, chairman of the Festival Entertainment Committee. He will be accompanied by members of the Executive Committee. The tree is again the gift of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., which as usual will light it free at the Coliseum.

Rice (pound)	.08	.09¾
Sugar (pound)	.07¾	.09¾
Coffee (pound)	.15½	.18½
Dried Peaches (pound)	.11	.16
Corn (can)	.10	13¾
Beans (can)	.09½	11¼
Soup (can)	.09	.11
Chicken (pound)	.20	.25
Bread (pound)	.07½	.07¾
Potatoes (bushel)	1.50	2.25
Onions (bushel)	1.85	2.00
Apples (bushel)	4.00	6.00
Candy (pound)	.16	.20

On the basis of these figures the Food Purchasing Committee estimates that the average cost of filling each basket will be about $1 more than last year, which will increase the total cost of the basket dinners at least $1000.

MACKAYE MASK FOR CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL

Municipal Entertainment This Year to Be "The Evergreen Tree" at the Coliseum.

Although, as in the past, a 60-foot Christmas tree, brilliantly illuminated with thousands of electric lights, will stand in Twelfth street, at St. Charles street, during Christmas week, the municipal Christmas entertainment and fete this year will be held at the Coliseum, Friday evening, Dec. 27.

The main feature of the entertainment will be a masque, "The Evergreen Tree," a story of the nativity, by Percy Mackaye, author of the masque, "St. Louis," which was presented in Forest Park four years ago.

The masque will be staged under the direction of Joseph Solari, assisted by Harry McClain; the costuming will be in charge of Miss Margaret Breen, and the music will be directed by Chorusmaster Frederick Fischer. The Pageant Choral Chorus of 60 female voices, the Knights of Columbus Choral Club of 60 male voices and the Symphony Orchestra will aid. About 160 men, women and children will take part in the stage assembly.

The principal speaking parts will be in the hands of John T. Sweeney, William T. Findly, V. P. Randall, Gustavus Tuckerman, Ray Holland, Joseph Gilman Miller, Percy Werner, Alma Briggs, Viola Goecke and Bessie McGuire.

Men in Service Invited.

All soldiers, sailors and Marines in St. Louis, Jefferson Barracks, Scott Field and at the Student Army Training Camps have been invited to attend the entertainment which is to be followed by a dance at which the Patriotic League will be represented by about 3000 young women. Candy, cigarettes, sandwiches and coffee will be served. All expenses at the Coliseum are to be borne by the War Camp Service Board and the Mayor's Committee.

During the afternoon preceding the entertainment the soldiers will be guests of the various clubs which will entertain them at dinner.

Mayor as Santa Claus.

The giant Christmas tree in Twelfth street will be skirted by 110 smaller trees ranged along both sides of Twelfth, from St. Charles to Olive street. Over 3000 varied colored electric globes, donated by the Union Electric Light and Power Co., will be used in decorating the trees. They will be lighted at 5 p. m. Christmas eve and will be on display until New Year's day. A committee headed by Mayor Kiel arranged to go to Cedar Hill today to select the trees.

Mayor Kiel will be Santa Claus this year to the children at the Industrial School, old folks at the infirmary and the patients at the tuberculosis hospital. He has instructed Supply Commissioner Thomas to purchase books, rair ribbons, handkerchiefs and candy for city's juvenile wards.

Portable Christmas trees, to be transferred from one hospital ward to another, will be part of the Mayor's treat to the patients at the Robert Koch Hospital. House slippers, fruit and tobacco will be among the gifts to the men and women at the hospital and infirmary.

PROFOUND PIETY IN WILL

Nickolaus Seibold of Alton, Ill., Left $50,000 Estate.

Profound piety is expressed in the will of Nickolaus Seibold of Alton. It was filed yesterday in the Probate Court at Edwardsville. The first paragraph reads:

"I, Nickolaus Seibold of the City of Alton, County of Madison and State of Illinois, considering the uncertainty of life, being of sound mind and memory and hoping that the God of Mercy through the blood of Jesus Christ will pardon me for my shortcoming, do make, declare and publish this my last will and testament."

CORDIAL GREETING TO WILSON EXPRESSED IN LONDON PAPERS

Times Compares Great Britain's Aims in East to Monroe Doctrine of United States.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—This morning's London newspapers express their cordial greetings to President Wilson upon his arrival in Europe. The Times remarks that Americans have every reason to be proud of the position which the President holds on the world's stage. The newspaper makes an earnest plea for a cordial and lasting friendship between Great Britain and the United States. It rebuts the notion, which it says is sometimes expressed in America, that Great Britain is out of sympathy with modern ideas of progress, is selfish and grasping in international affairs and is approaching the peace conference in that spirit.

Great Britain's aims in the East, the Times continues, are no more selfish than the Monroe Doctrine and, like the doctrine, are merely directed to acting as a civilized force. It adds:

"We should welcome America as one of the executive trustees of the conscience of Europe."

After repudiating the suggestion that British navalism is as bad as German militarism, the Times says.

"If America can show a way in which the navy can better discharge a duty to human liberty we would consider it all the more willingly, because it was advocated by her."

MANY GROUPS TO SING CAROLS CHRISTMAS EVE

Light in Window Will Bring Singers for Children's Aid Society.

With the war at an end, the committees of the Children's Aid Society, under whose auspices the Christmas eve carol singing is conducted each year, plan to make this year's observance the most notable since the revival of the custom in St. Louis.

Groups are being organized in all parts of the city to sing in the residence districts, the night before Christmas. That those who hear the carols may follow them, the St. Louis Art League, in co-operation with the aid society, has had thousands of copies of the words and music printed, and these are now being distributed.

The War Camp Community Service, which managed the open-air patriotic "sings" in the parks during the summer, is also enlisted in the preparatory work.

Dr. John W. MacIvor, chairman, has sent out a request for volunteers to organize bands of singers. Owing to the influenza ban and the closing of the schools, hundreds of children who had expected to sing will not be able to do so, have been deprived of this opportunity for service. The Christmas Carol Committee is making every effort to enlist adult singers and boys and girls over 16.

Songs Popular for Centuries.

The same old songs that have been popular for centuries will be heard as usual, though the selection will include a greater number this year and in addition the thanksgiving spirit resultant from the coming of peace will have a proper place in the musical expression. The hymns and carols particularly appropriate to the season, such as "Joy to the World," "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful," "O, Little Town of Bethlehem," "Hark the Night, Holy Night" and "Sing Noel" are specially featured in the book prepared for this year's observance, though the "Wassail Song" is not overlooked.

St. Louisans who appreciate this form of Christmastide observance have only to light a candle and place it in the window and the passing bands of carolers will respond. The offerings placed in the collection boxes carried by the singers will be turned over to the Children's Aid Society, to be used for the benefit of poor children.

This year the society, on account of the widespread prevalence of influenza, has been compelled to care for a large number of children, who, on account of sickness in their homes, had to be placed temporarily with private families. This work is still in progress and will have to continue.

Society Nonsectarian.

It has the co-operation of the Board of Education, Department of Parks and Recreation, Morning Choral Society, St. Louis Pageant Choral Society, Apollo Club, Knights of Columbus Chorus, St. Louis Symphony Society, Federation of Women's Clubs, Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, Women's Central Committee for Food Conservation and the Women's Council of National Defense.

FURLOUGHS AT GREAT LAKES

Half Who Stay in Service Will Get 5 Days at Christmas; Others at New Year.

Every man at Great Lakes will receive a five-day furlough during the Christmas holidays. Fifty per cent of the sailors will go home at noon Saturday, Dec. 21, returning Friday morning, Dec. 27, while the remaining half will leave Dec. 28, returning Jan. 3.

Men who have handed in applications for release from active duty will not be granted furloughs. Knights of Columbus, Y. M. C. A., Red Cross and other agencies are preparing to entertain the bluejackets who will be on the station Christmas day.

ALL SOLDIER CHRISTMAS BOXES SENT ON WAY WITHOUT DELAY

March Compliments Director of Embarkation on Success; 2,218,000 Parcels Shipped.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Gen. March took occasion today to compliment Brigadier-General Frank T. Hines, Director of Embarkation, and the embarkation service generally, in stating that all Christmas packages for the troops in France had been cleared from New York without delay or confusion.

With the sailing of the Matsonia and Pocahontas last week the army has sent six Christmas ships, carrying 2,248,000 Christmas packages. Gen. March said this number would assure every officer and man of the expeditionary forces of a package.

GERMANS MUST FURNISH SHIPS TO CARRY FOOD TO THEM

Marshall Foch Makes Announcement on Behalf of Hoover Concerning Cargoes.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Friday, Dec. 13.—Marshal Foch, says the dispatch from Treves, has anounced in behalf of Herbert C. Hoover, the American Food Administrator, that 2,500,000 tons of cargo space lying in German harbors must be placed under the control of the allies to supply Germany with foodstuffs. The ships are to remain German property.

YOUR DUTY TO BE ATTRACTIVE

Have Pretty Dark Hair

"La Creole" Hair Dressing is the original hair color restorer, and not a dye. Applying it to your hair and scalp revives the color glands of nature, and restores your hair to a beautiful dark shade or to its natural color. It is the only hair color restorer that will gradually darken all your gray or faded hair in this way. No matter how gray, prematurely gray, faded or lusterless your hair might be, "La Creole" Hair Dressing will make it beautifully dark, soft and lustrous. "La Creole" Hair Dressing will not stain the scalp, wash or rub off, and is easily applied by simply combing or brushing through the hair. Don't be misled into buying some cheap preparation.

USE

"LA CREOLE" HAIR DRESSING for gray or faded hair and retain the appearance of youth. Also used by gentlemen to impart an even dark color to their gray hair, beard or mustache. For sale by Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores, Judge & Dolph Drug Stores and all good drug stores everywhere. FOUR GARBAGE PLANTS SUGGESTED FOR CITY

Commissioner Talbert Suggests This Plan When Company Announces Quitting Its Contract.

The building of four garbage incinerating plants in different parts of the city was suggested by Director of Streets and Sewers Talbert yesterday, after he had received written notice that the Indiana Reduction Co., which is now disposing of the garbage, will relinquish its contract Feb. 13.

The company has been rendering the garbage at its plant at Dupo, Ill., free of charge and taking its profits from the sale of by-products. The city bore the expense of collecting the garbage and furnished a boat to tow it to Dupo. Until last June the company received 87 cents a ton for reducing the garbage. Its principal by-product is glycerine, which brought high prices during the war as an ingredient of explosives.

Favors Four Plants.

Talbert said that the city might buy the Indiana company's plant for $330,000 or erect a new one for $600,000, but he preferred, he said, a plan by which the city would be divided into four districts, north, south, east and west, with an incinerating plant in each district. The aggregate cost of building these plants, he believed, would be $500,600.

Included in the project is a plan for the city to haul ashes free of charge from residences and apartment houses and use the ashes as fuel for garbage incineration. Director Talbert said most ashes from family furnaces, when not sifted, contained enough unburned coal and carbon products to yield a considerable amount of heat under forced draft and this would be all the fuel needed for garbage incineration. The cinders which would remain could be used by the city for filling excavations.

Little Ground for Objection.

Director Talbert said he believed there would be no ground for objection on sanitary grounds to the establishment of incinerators in different sections of the city, as it was his opinion that such places could be made sanitary and could be operated without offensive fumes or odors.

No definite arrangement for the disposal of garbage after the abrogation of the Indiana Reduction Co.'s contract and before the adoption of a permanent plan of disposal has been made. It has been suggested that the city may make arrangements for the temporary use of the company's plant by paying the company for the privilege. The proposed new bond issue budget contains a suggestion for a $700,000 appropriation for a garbage reduction system.

COURT HEARS ST. LOUIS WEIGHING CASE SOON

Arguments on Merchant's Exchange Appeal at Washington Due This Year.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The case of the Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis against the State of Missouri, an appeal from the Missouri Supreme Court, is expected to come up for argument in the United States Supreme Court within the next two weeks.

The brief filed on behalf of the Merchants' Exchange alleges that the State court erred when, on Dec. 21, 1916, it found that the exchange was guilty of an unlawful practice in maintaining its own bureau for the weighing of grain received into and discharged from public elevators and warehouses in St. Louis. The lower court ordered that the exchange be "ousted of its usurped power of weighing grain" and charging a fee therefor.

Information against the Merchants' Exchange, it is related, was filed at the April, 1915, term of the State Supreme Court by Attorney-General Barker. The proceeding was based upon a State statute creating a Warehouse Commissioner of Missouri and providing that none except this commissioner and his deputies should have the right to weigh grain at public elevators and give certificates.

The Merchants' Exchange contends that the Missouri law is unconstitutional, in that it abridges the rights of the members to conduct their own weighing service. It is alleged also that the act interferes with interstate commerce and has been superseded by the grain standards act of Congress of Aug. 11, 1916.

The Merchants' Exchange declares that its weighing system is operated only in so far as members desire to avail themselves of its services; that this system is "vital to the transactions of the market," and that its recognized accuracy has helped to give the exchange an enviable reputation throughout the country. The weighing system is further described as essential to the transaction of business with other exchanges.

The brief asks that the decision of the lower court be reversed, with directions to dismiss the proceeding of the Attorney-General.

6,000,000 AUSTRALIAN RABBIT SKINS TO BE SOLD TOMORROW

A consignment of 6,000,000 Australian rabbit skins, the first shipment of its kind to be offered to the fur trade from an American center, will be auctioned tomorrow at the International Fur Exchange at Funsten Bros. & Co., Second and Elm streets. These skins were formerly sent to France and Belgium for treatment and then sold at London.

Philip B. Fouke, president of Funsten Bros. & Co., said the movement of Australian rabbit skins to St. Louis, instead of to European markets, indicates the firm position this city occupies as the world's fur center. The shipment, he said, is the forerunner of millions of dollars' worth of other Australian and New Zealand pelts and vast supplies of Russian sables, fox and other furs.

An embargo on fur shipments from far East countries was placed in effect last May by the War Trade Board as a result of war demands on shipping and has prevented the movement of Russian and Australian pelts to St. Louis, Fouke said. If the ban is lifted the consignments will begin to move here rapidly.

Tomorrow's sale will be attended by buyers from all parts of the world. The rabbit skins are used by both furriers and hatters. The latter remove the fur from the pelt by machinery and then convert it into hat felt. That St. Louis will continue to be the center for this new trade is certain, Fouke said, because of its geographical location, low freight rates and superior method of treating skins.

—Full Stocks
—Good Service

¶ At no Christmas season in the history of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney, over 68 years of merchandising, have we been better prepared with full stocks.

¶ Good service has been the keynote to our success and we are giving the full quota of service this season regardless of conditions.

¶ Congestion, even in normal times, has never been permitted in this store. Our aim has always been to offer comfort, service, ventilation and cleanliness to the buying public and none of these things are lacking.

¶ Vandervoort values and Vandervoort service go hand-in-hand. We consider that both are necessary and, even in spite of the prevailing market conditions, brought about by the past four years of war, we have maintained Vandervoort values—the best for the price, no matter what the price.

¶ In co-operation with the Health Authorities of the city of St. Louis we will not permit children under the age of sixteen years to enter the store until the present ban is lifted.

¶ Store Hours—9:00 A. M. to 5:30 P. M. Saturday we close at 6:00 P. M.

¶ Shopping in the early morning hours is far more pleasant and will aid greatly in maintaining best possible service.

CIRCUIT JUDGES COMMITTEE TO URGE NEW CITY COURTHOUSE

Mayor's Bond Committee Will Be Asked to Support Measure in Proposed Bond Program.

Circuit Judges in general term yesterday, after discussing the need of a new Courthouse, appointed a committee, composed of Judge Karl Kimmel and Judge-elect Robert Hall, to confer with the Mayor's Bond Committee to ascertain if it is possible to get a provision for a new building for the civil divisions of the St. Lous Circuit Court in the proposed bond issue plan.

Judge Taylor facetiously remarked that there were enough germs in the old building at Broadway and Market street to keep the City Bacteriologist busy for the rest of his life.

Farm Brings Record Price.

B. C. Hodges of Carrollton, Ill., has purchased an 80-acre farm from the Martha J. Taylor Smith estate, west of Carrollton, for $20,000, or $250 per acre, the highest price ever paid for land in that locality. The purchase adjoins Mr. Hodges' Ellendale Farm on the west and includes the old David Wright brick dwelling.

Santa Claus Headquarters Ten Days Before Christmas

To every little boy and girl,
St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Little Friend:

We feel for you. To think that at this glorious Christmas Time you cannot come down to the stores and see Santa. It's too bad. It's a downright shame that the nasty influenza is keeping you away, and won't let you see all the pretty and useful things that Santa has prepared for you this year. Our sympathy is with you.

Wouldn't it be a wonderful stunt to have a children's day at the stores before Christmas for the kiddies. All the papas and mammas and grown folks over 16 would stay in the house and let little Tom and Harry and Bill, and May and Jane and Elizabeth come downtown and see the sights. We know it would give you lots of sport. Gee, you would love the toys and things if this could be done. We're for it and we sure do wish you the Merriest Christmas you have ever had. You deserve it.

Sincerely the little folks' friend,

ALMOST ALL THE KILLED IN ACTION HAVE BEEN LISTED

Comparison of Summary With Totals Shows Remaining Casualties Are Mostly the Wounded.

ABOUT 115,000 MORE NAMES WILL APPEAR

Some 2000 of These Will Be Deaths From Wounds, a Similar Number Deaths From Disease.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—An official summary of casualties listed to date accompanies the list given out by the War Department tonight. When compared with the amended total casualty figures given out by Gen. Pershing Nov. 26, the summary indicates that nearly all those killed in action have been named in the lists; that some 2000 deaths from wounds and a like number from disease are still to be listed, and that about 110,000 wounded are still to be listed.

The number of killed in action already listed, according to the new summary, is greater, by a margin of 16, than the total number announced Nov. 26. However, the number in the summary includes 396 lost at sea, and the figures of Nov. 26 probably do not include these. It is known that a number of deaths in action are still to be announced. The number of "died from accident and other causes" is also greater than the announced total.

The figures in the summary of casualties listed to date, and in Gen. Pershing's totals of Nov. 26, are as follows:

	Listed to Date.	Total.
Killed in action...	26,379	26,363
Died from wounds.	10,042	12,101
Died of disease ..	14,424	16,034
Died from accident and other causes	2,014	1,980
Missing in action (including prisoners)	15,219	*16,453
*Approximate.
Wounded	79,216	189,955
Total	147,294	262,886

The summary of listed names does not include the Marine Corps casualties, of which a separate record is kept in connection with the lists. It was not announced whether or not the marine casualties were included in the total announced by Gen. Pershing, Nov. 26. The Marine Corps casualties listed to date are: Deaths, 1900; wounded, 2658; missing, 287; in hands of enemy, 287. The marine summaries do not distinguish between the different classes of deaths, as do the army summaries, and therefore exact totals under the different classifications for the two branches of the service cannot be made.

The list given out tonight shows 3771 casualties, divided as follows: Killed in action, 138; died from wounds, 118; died of diease, 216; died from accident and other causes, 18; died from airplane accident, 1; missing in action, 324; wounded severely, 1091; wounded, degree undetermined, 784; wounded slightly, 1081. These are included in the official numerical summary.

Names from Missouri and Illinois, outside of St. Louis and Chicago, and communities adjoining them, are:

Old Herbal Remedy Used for 40 Years in Relieving Diabetes

The most satisfactory results have been obtained in combating Diabetes by observing certain dietary rules and the judicious use of Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy, an herbal preparation of 40 years' successful sale.

Following is a letter from a grateful user:

"This letter is the best proof that I am still alive. Your medicine is a miracle to me. My weight was reduced from 157 to 114 pounds when I left the hospital. I left there Aug. 6th in despair. Hundreds of people that knew me said I would never live to return to my studio. After leaving the hospital, I saw your "Ad" in the paper. I began its use and at once commenced to improve, and now everybody is saying to me that I look better than ever before. I tip the scales at 132 pounds and I am back working again to the astonishment of all. I feel splendid and people say I am looking better every day. I must tell you that every word I have written is true, and I can prove it by hundreds that knew of my condition. Jules Friquet, 511 West First Street, Los Angeles, Cal."

Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is made from herbs and other beneficial ingredients and has been on the market 40 years, a true indication of its value. Get a bottle today.

SPANISH INFLUENZA MORE DEADLY THAN WAR

Said That Epidemic Cost More Lives Than American Loss in Battle. Danger Not Over. Great Care Necessary to Prevent Further Outbreak.

The appaling ravages of Spanish Influenza in this country are perhaps best realized by the statement recently made, that more deaths have resulted in little more than a month from this disease than through our whole eighteen months participation in the battles of the European War.

Our greatest danger now, declare authorities, is the great American tendency to forget easily and to believe the peril is over. Competent authorities claim the coming cold weather is very apt to bring a return of this disease and there should be no let-up throughout the Winter months of the following easily observed precautions, remembering that Influenza is far easier to prevent than cure.

Influenza is a crowd disease, avoid crowds as much as possible. Influenza germs spread when ignorant or careless persons sneeze or cough without using a handkerchief. Cover up each cough or sneeze. Do not spit on the floor, sidewalk, in street cars or public places. Avoid the use of common drinking cups and roller towels in public places. Breathe some reliable germicidal and antiseptic air to destroy the germs that do find lodgement in your nose and throat.

Remember, no safer precaution against Influenza could be employed in this manner than to get from the nearest drug store a complete Hyomei Outfit, consisting of a bottle of the pure oil of Hyomei and a little vest-pocket hard rubber inhaling device, into which a few drops of the oil are poured. You should carry this inhaler about with you during the day and each half hour or so put it in your mouth and draw deep breaths of its pure, healing germ killing air into the passages of your nose, throat and lungs.

By destroying germs before they actually begin work in your blood, you may make yourself practically immune to infection.

All these suggestions about Spanish Influenza are equally true in the prevention of colds, catarrh of nose and throat, bronchitis and even pneumonia. Don't become careless. Do your part. Keep the germs away. You may save yourself a seriousness illness and the loss of several weeks work.

FOR CHRONIC RHEUMATISM

Many people who have considered themselves incurable after spending hundreds of dollars on Specialists, Baths, Baking Processes, etc., and who have experimented with other remedies, have at length found relief from the tortures of rheumatism by taking Prescription A-2851—a Time Tested Remedy free from opiates or narcotic drugs.

Mr. C——, a Preacher and Master Mason, suffered from rheumatism in a very aggravated form. He took Prescription A-2851, and says: "It has done a wonderful lot of good. It has stopped all pains and rheumatic troubles, and I am up and going everywhere, and have gained 12 lbs. of flesh. I am highly pleased with the results."

Prescription A-2851 has been successfully used for 54 years. EIMER & AMEND, Third Ave., 18th to 19th Sts., New York. —ADV.

Get Rid of Pimples—Quick

By Using Stuart's Calcium Wafers—Natural Little Blood Purifiers That Work Like a Charm.

SEND FOR FREE TRIAL PACKAGE

Don't despair if your face is covered with pimples, blotches, liver spots, or your body is covered in spots with tetter, rash, boils, etc. Just use Stuart's Calcium Wafers for a short time and see how quickly you will clear up your skin.

Pimples and eruptions of all kinds come from the inside. The blood casts out the impurities it contains and thus pimples, boils, etc., appear. Cleanse the blood, stop the poison from developing in the blood tissues and pimples will vanish as if by magic.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers give in a short time a complexion that rivals the ideals of an artist to produce. By cleaning out the pores, throwing off all skin discolorations and blood impurities, they do their work of beauty building almost before you can believe it.

Get a 50-cent box of these wonderful wafers from any druggist anywhere.

All Fat People Should Know This

The world owes a debt of gratitude to the author of the now famous Marmola Prescription, and is still more indebted for the reduction of this harmless, effective obesity remedy to tablet form. Marmola Prescription Tablets can now be obtained at all drug stores, or by writing direct to Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Av., Detroit, Mich., and their reasonable price (75 cents for a large case) leaves no excuse for dieting or violent exercise for the reduction of the overfat body to normal proportions.—ADV.

STOLEN AUTO FOUND THROUGH FILM SHOWING LICENSE TAG

Theft Is Traced Through Same Means, to Fred Krenning, Sentenced Dec. 4, Under Another Charge.

A stolen automobile was recovered through a photograph film of the license plate, and the theft, through the same means, was charged to Fred Krenning, alias Fred Fulton, of 3025 Leffingwell avenue. The automobile belonged to T. P. Bond, 3825 Westminster place, and was stolen last August. Krenning was indicted Friday on a charge of burglary and larceny in connection with it.

Krenning had the film in his pocket when he was arested a month ago in connection with the theft of another automobile. He was convicted Dec. 4 of the other theft and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

Detectives Ising and Reinwald held the film to the light. It revealed the back of an automobile license plate plainly visible. The number was 37220. Police records disclosed that Bond's stolen auto was 137220. When the automobile was found in a garage in Amherst place it was discovered that the figure had been scratched off. Krenning did not explain how he happened to have a snapshot film of the stolen car.

Junior League Workshop Closes.

Part of the course of the School of Occupational Therapy will be given in the Junior League workshop, where handweaving and wood carving and turning are taught to patients as part of the cure. The products of the workshop, handwoven bags, baby blankets, rugs and toys, are on sale at the Allies Shop, 608 North Broadway, at the Allies Tea Shop, Washington and Grand avenues, and at the Junior League workshop in the Children's Hospital Building, King's highway and Forest Park.

PAPE'S! BREAKS A BAD COLD—TRY IT

Use Pape's Cold Compound to cure colds and grippe in few hours—No Quinine.

It is a positive fact that Pape's Cold Compound taken every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, or stomach or limbs.

It promptly relieves the most miserable headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness, and rheumatic twinges.

Get a small package of "Pape's Cold Compound" from your druggist and take it with the knowledge that it will positively and promptly cure your cold and end all the grippe misery; without any assistance or bad after-effects and that it contains no quinine—don't accept something else said to be just as good. Tastes nice—acts gently.—ADV.

for Her "Victory" Xmas

This is the year of useful gifts

PATRIOTIC women will resent useless gifts this year. And well they should.

Housewives will prefer those things which will save. Save time, work and money.

And what woman who takes pride in the appearance of her home will not appreciate something that will make her furniture brighter, cleaner and prettier.

That is the mission of

O-Cedar Polish

Making things brighter, prettier, cleaner. And at the same time saving work, time and money.

So give her O-Cedar Polish. A gallon or a quart if you can, but surely a 25c or 50c bottle. She will appreciate it.

Why Lowney's chocolates are still scarce

WE have supplied millions of packages of Lowney's for our boys in Europe. A million American sailors have helped to consume them. With the war over, those boys won't immediately lose their candy appetites, so we must continue to supply part of your Lowney's Chocolates to the boys "over there."

In the meantime, we want you to know that

1—Lowney has supplied chocolate products to all departments of the Service in unequalled volume, and that the Lowney standard of quality required no change to meet the Government's exacting standards.

2—This war experience has brought home a lesson on the food value of chocolate candy. Chocolates lessen the craving for alcohol and supply real energy in place of alcohol's deceptive "feeling" of energy.

3—Uncle Sam has made chocolate and candy a part of the official ration for overseas troops—a half pound every ten days.

4—Moderate quantities of chocolate and candy should constitute a real and wholesome part of our national diet. In moderate quantities they are splendid health-giving and energy-giving foods, both for adults and children.

FINALLY: with better supply of labor and expanded facilities, we expect that we can soon take better care of you. But, please, do not be too impatient if the nearest Lowney agent is not fully supplied.

PIMPLES ON FACE CUTICURA HEALS

In Blotches. Itched and Burned. Lost Sleep.

"For over a year I was bothered with small pimples on my face and neck. The pimples were hard and festered and enlarged to the size of a match head. They were in blotches under my chin and on my face they were scattered. They itched and burned sometimes causing loss of sleep. I got a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I then purchased more, and I used three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Ointment when I was healed." (Signed) L. S. Caide, 806 W. Grimes St., Fairfield, Iowa.

If you have a poor complexion improve it by using Cuticura Soap daily and Cuticura Ointment occasionally.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. H, Boston." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c.

Check and Abort a Bad Cold

In Five Hours With MENTHO-LAXENE

You Buy It Concentrated and Mix With Pint of Syrup

Doubtless every reader recalls having neglected a slight cold until in 24 hours it settled into a "Bad Cold" and then about 72 hours of distress, discomfort, if not weeks of bronchitis or pneumonia or catarrh. Now confess, if you've had such an experience, and take time by the forelock by preparing to check and abort colds, coughs, catarrh, difficult breathing, watering eyes and painful headaches.

It can be done, by taking Mentho-Laxene either in its raw state—ten drops to the dose—or by making a granulated sugar syrup and mixing a pint bottle or jar. A pint will last a whole family for a long time and keeps every member free from the distressing after-effects of a bad cold. Mentho-Laxene is guaranteed to please or money back by The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio, and any well stocked druggist can supply you. Don't take a substitute. There is really nothing to compare with Mentho-Laxene.—ADV.

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore, cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., Block 557, St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and the information necessary—ADV.

MENNE RETAINS WILFLEY TO RESIST DUNN TAKING OFFICE

Democratic City Treasurer Contends That Successful Republican Is Barred by State Law.

Henry C. Menne, City Treasurer, a Democrat, yesterday retained former United States Senator Wilfley as counsel in his contention that John W. Dunn, Republican, elected at the November election as his successor, is not eligible to hold the office, because at the time of his election he was chief deputy City Collector.

Menne cites a State law which says no Sheriff, Marshal or clerk or collector, or deputy of any such officer, shall be eligible to the office of treasurer of any county.

Dunn resigned as deputy collector yesterday. He has received his commission from the Secretary of State as City Treasurer and plans to take over the office Jan. 1.

Wilfley yesterday said he would advise Menne not to surrender the office until the point as to Dunn's eligibility is settled.

RECONSTRUCTION COMMITTEE TO BE NAMED BY MAYOR

Body Will Aid in an Advisory Capacity to Meet Readjustment Problems.

Mayor Kiel yesterday announced his intention to appoint a body to be known as the Mayor's Reconstruction Committee to act in an advisory capacity in aiding the city to meet the changes which will come with after-the-war readjustment.

Subcommittees will be appointed with the following titles: Social Welfare, Employment Service, Social Hygiene, Housing, Community Spirit, Waste Reclamation and Americanization.

The Mayor expects to announce the appointments to the main committee early this week.

Navy to Be Liberal With Holidays.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Instructions have been issued to naval commanders ashore and afloat to grant holiday leave as liberally as possible to all the men in the naval service. Secretary Daniels said today those who do not obtain leave over Christmas will receive special consideration on New Year's.

NURSE WRITES PARENTS OF CORPORAL'S DEATH

Jacob H. Wolf, F Co., 354th Artillery, Succumbed to Gas Gangrene in Paris Hospital.

A touching letter relating incidents of the last hours of their son, Corp. Jacob Henry Wolf, 26 years old, of F Company, 354th Infantry, and details of his funeral has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolf, 3805A Sullivan avenue, from a nurse of the Base Hospital in Paris where he died. The letter follows:

"Dear Mrs. Wolf—How I wish that I might be with you to tell you all about the last days of your fine son who was with us here. Letters are not very satisfactory I know, but I shall try to tell you all that I can. I hope to be able to see you some time and tell you more. Henry came to us last Wednesday. He had been wounded by shrapnel in the hip at about 3 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 10. The wound did not seem so serious but it was infected by gas and gas gangrene set in very rapidly. He had not been sick and he did not look so big and athletic as he lay there talking. He was so cheerful and conscious almost until the last. When the nurse asked him how he felt he said 'Oh, I will be back with the company soon and the way I will tear into the hun.' He had no idea that death was near and just fell asleep at 8:45 a. m. Thursday morning.

"This morning, Friday, we carried your son to the little burial plot. Six of his comrades acted as pallbearers and another sounded taps as they lowered the casket covered with the glorious flag that he loved so well. As I stood there at the grave I thought of you whom I have never seen. How I wanted you to see it all. I watched the little French boys tending their cows in the lovely green fields nearby. They took off their little caps in reverence and stood at attention like the soldiers all during the service. They all love our good American boys, and such graves as we made today will seal that friendship for all time to come. Chaplain Smith conducted a beautiful service for your boy. We put his identification tag and his Masonic emblem on the little cross at his head and then we left him to sleep with his friends all about him.

"The little cemetery lies in the green valley of the Meuse all surrounded by trees and radiant with wild flowers. I have never seen such color in all my life as there is in the fields of France. The scarlet poppies grow all about where your son lies. I shall enclose you one from the ones I put on the little mound. I shall go often and keep the flowers fresh for your dear ones at home.

"If only I could do more for you all. Please let me know if there is anything I can do. I am a representative of the Home Communication Service of the Red Cross. I want to do all I can for the mothers and fathers who give us such sons. If you could be here you would be more proud than ever to have had such a son to give for your country. For here we know what men they are. How proud you would be to have seen the neatness and order of his kit, and the gentleness of his manner. Such boys trained in such homes are the ones who will win this war for democracy.

"I want you to know that our hearts are with you at this time and we want to do all we can as coworkers in the big cause.

"Your friend,
"ELIZABETH ANDREWS,
"A. R. C., Base 42, A. P. O.731."

NEW TRIAL GRANTED IN BOYLE ESTATE CASE

Judge Frey Holds Plea Based on Payments to Mother Should Not Have Been Dismissed.

Circuit Judge Frey yesterday granted a new trial to the plaintiff on one count of the petition in the case of the administrator of the estate of Mrs. Emeline Boyle, widow of the Rev. Joseph Boyle, who died 46 years ago, against the estate of her son, the late Judge Wilbur F. Boyle. This count related to the amount of money Judge Boyle paid to his mother for her maintenance while he was managing her husband's property as trustee. Judge Frey concludes that the total sum for which there should be an accounting against the son's estate is about $25,000.

The suit was based on two counts. The first one attacked Judge Boyle's right to dispose of realty on McPherson avenue, just west of Boyle avenue, before his mother died, as her husband's will provided that she should have a life interest in this property and at her death it was to go to the son.

Judge Frey's predecessor, Judge English, decided last October that Boyle's action in selling the McPherson avenue tract was legal, in view of the evidence, and in this ruling he is upheld by Judge Frey, who heard the argument on the motion for a new trial.

Judge English also dismissed the second count, on the ground that there had been delay in filing the suit, but in this he is reversed by his successor, who finds that a claim of a mother against a son ought not to be barred by the statute of limitations, provided the son is her attorney, her real estate agent and her trustee, as in the Boyle case. The Court finds that the evidence indicates Boyle paid to his mother about $900 a year from the earnings of the property he had in charge as trustee for her.

The property, invested at 6 per cent, he computes, should have netted a greater sum than $900 a year. The period involved in the management was from 1877 to 1907, when Mrs. Boyle died, and the Judge estimates that the principal amount to be accounted for is approximately $13,000, with interest at 6 per cent. He does not, however, render judgment for this sum, simply holding that the count should not have been dismissed.

Judge Boyle died in 1911, leaving a valuable estate to his daughter, Miss Sidney E. Boyle. The suit was not started until after he and his mother had died. His estate was represented by his former law partner, H. S. Priest.

STATE FUEL BOARD TO KEEP CONTROL UNTIL NEXT MARCH

Old Zones Will Be Continued as Sources of Supply, Administrator Announces.

State Fuel Administrator Crossley announced today that the Fuel Administration, both State and national, will remain in existence until next March in order to prevent demoralization of the coal industry and to protect consumers from unreasonable, excessive and unfair practices, which he says might ensue if all regulations were removed.

Crossley declared the zone limits established when the Administration was formed will continue and consumers must secure supplies from the districts announced early in the year. Any rearrangement of supply and consumption districts, he said, would throw the entire system out of order.

Because of a lack of sufficient labor and the prevalence of influenza in the Pennsylvania anthracite district production of that coal has been below the requirements, he stated. This prevents the removal of the ban on shipments of anthracite to this part of the country.

Liberty Bonds Taken at Face Value

Our landlord and creditors have called "halt." They've sounded the death knell of our career. Saturday night, December 21st, at 9 o'clock, the curtain will come down on our mercantile life. We want to come out of this business tangle with some ready cash in our pockets. We have an enormous stock still on hand, and have cut the very life out of the prices, so that we'll be assured of selling the greatest portion of these seven floors of fine merchandise. Never in the history of St. Louis has Furniture and an immense additional stock of Rugs and Stoves been sold at such slaughtered prices. We must sell the last nickel's worth of the Scarritt-Comstock Furniture Corporation stock this week. Just think, this old honored concern whose history dates back more than 75 years will see its doors closed here Saturday night. They were ordered by the Circuit Court to do so, to satisfy their creditors. Come—everybody come—to this feast of bargains. It's the last week.

St. Louis Seaman Saw Surrender of First of German Surface Fleet

Clarence Bley, 4521 Union Avenue, Writes Parents He Was in Foretop of the U. S. S. New York, Flagship of Our Squadron.

An account of the surrender of the first section of the German high seas fleet is contained in a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bley of 4521 Union avenue, from their son, Clarence Bley, who witnessed the surrender from the foretop of the American battleship New York, on which he was a seaman. The New York was flagship of an American squadron which was one of those which met the German ships, and herded them into the port of interment.

He also tells of a visit made to the New York the day before the surrender by King George, the Prince of Wales and Admiral Sims.

The letter was written the day of the surrender, after censorship regulations had been lifted. It contains descriptions of exciting dashes made by American and British squadrons of the Grand Fleet to intercept the German fleet when it occasionally ventured out of its base during the preceding months. Excerpts follow:

Details of Surrender.

" For the past two weeks our Commander in Chief had been in communication with the Germans to arrange for them to turn over their fleet to us. Last week a German light cruiser, the Kroenigsberg, came into Rosyth (a town in Scotland which was the Grand Fleet's southern base) and arrangements were made to turn them over. This morning at 3:30 we got under way, and at 5 o'clock general orders were sounded, and we went to our battle stations.

"We were the leading division, so the foretop was instructed to keep a sharp lookout for the German ships. We knew just where we were to pick them up. This location was due west of the Firth of Forth, and about 100 miles out to sea. The weather was hazy and visibility was low, so we had some time picking them up.

"They were to surrender five battle cruisers and nine battleships, and were not to carry any ammunition, and were to be manned by reduced crews. But after those numerous 'scraps of paper,' how could we believe them?

Men at Battle Stations.

"We didn't know but that instead of those 14 ships, they would have their whole high seas fleet out, with plenty of ammunition on board that they were willing to send over to us on the double. On every ship in the Grand Fleet this morning every man was at his battle station; every gun—anti-aircraft, secondary and main battery—was loaded and ready to fire if the Germans made one crooked move.

"At about 7 o'clock we received instructions that all turrets would be trained fore and aft, and not on the enemy, just to show them that after all the dastardly things they had pulled, we still had a little confidence in them.

"We picked them up in the fog at 9:20, about 12,000 yards off our starboard bow, and in an instant every other ship in the fleet picked them up, and right here is where the tense moment was. As yet we could only see six of their ships in the fog, and we were all guessing like mad just how many ships they did have, and whether their intentions were to come to us peacefully or otherwise.

"The first ship I spied had her turrets trained fore and aft, and everything seemed all right, but on looking at the ship next after her in line, it appeared, through the glasses, that her turrets were swinging over into our direction. The rest saw it, too, I suppose, but on second look I could see that she was only changing her course to starboard a little.

A Tense Moment.

"The fog then settled down thick, and we lost them completely, but about 20 minutes later it lifted, and the whole array was spread before us.

"It doesn't seem possible that I was really fortunate enough to witness anything like that little affair that was staged this morning. As far as the eye could see, the sea was covered with every description of war craft, and I suppose the Germans, when they saw what their 14 ships were up against, would have decided to be real peaceful, no matter what their intentions had been.

"Let me say right here, that whatever the Huns are and have been, they have got some ships. Those 14 we saw this morning were as trim looking as anything I have ever seen and I have seen a few ships since I have been over here, believe me.

"The old Sixth Battalion Squadron (an American squadron of which the New York was flagship) had a very important position—just abeam of the Germans. The Fifth Battle Squadron was on their port side and they were entirely surrounded by the grand fleet. At 2 o'clock this afternoon we got back to Rosyth and the German ships are lying just a little to seaward.

"King George, Admiral Sims, the Prince of Wales and a lot of others were on board yesterday and, for the first time in the history of our navy, the British Royal Standard was flown from the mainmast. Yesterday the King reviewed the entire grand fleet, which was the occasion of the visit.

"About the fleet—we have gathered right here the most powerful array of fighting ships the world has ever seen. Here is Britain's grand fleet, comprising 37 superdreadnaughts, about half as many battle cruisers, about 100 light cruisers, submarines, destroyers, hospital ships, colliers, aircraft ships, supply ships. We have, at a rough guess, about 40 ships at this base; last, but not least of which comes the American Sixth Battle Squadron of five superdreadnaughts, the New York, Wyoming, Florida, Arkansas and Texas.

"And right here let me say that though we are a small percentage of the whole, what we have is all there, from cutwater to counter. There is an immense steel bridge spanning the Firth of Forth and about 90 per cent of the fleet lies inside this bridge, but outside of it lie the Fifth and Sixth Battle Squadrons, known as the "Bloody Squadrons," for whenever the grand fleet puts to sea these squadrons lead the entire fleet. As we are the flagship of the squadron, you see where we would have been if the Huns had ever gotten up courage enough to come out and fight.

Battle Arrangement.

"The entire fleet was always led by the British superdreadnought Queen Elizabeth, of which you have surely heard, and right behind her steamed the good old New York. Every squadron was screened by eight destroyers, four on each side, to ward off possible submarine attacks.

"That was the way our battle formation looked when we put to sea time after time, every week, in quest of the Germans. There was always a great fan of destroyers ahead of us, and, as far as the eye could see, ships, ships, ships!

"The bitterest disappointment we had was not getting to try out our guns against the German fleet instead of targets towed by tugs. Imagine men under one to four hours sailing notice, hour after hour, week after week, with little recreation, and firmly believing a fight was inevitable, and you can see how we felt.

"We had submarines lying over at Kiel, stationed there for scout duty only, and it was their duty to inform us just what the Germans were doing. Now, don't get an idea that the German fleet never came out, for they came out often, and when we did these subs would signal us, and we would get under way, and try to cut them off from their base.

Many Futile Chases.

"We would steam into the North Sea in battle formation at top speed, but it was a hard 24-hour steaming for us, and they always got back in time. One morning we thought sure we would see action, but we got there just in time for our light cruisers to see the tail end of their fleet haulships, repair ships and every kind ing behind the German mine barrier, and we were some 10 miles behind the cruisers, so, after waiting outside 12 hours for them to change their mind and come out, there was nothing to do but turn around and go back.

"This happened time after time. We would make these wild dashes into the North Sea in an endeavor to cut them off when they came out, but it always was useless.

"On Oct. 8 we got under way for Scarpa Flow (the northern base of the Grand Fleet, in the Orkney Islands) to fire our 14-inch guns at targets. We were to fire on the morning of Oct. 12, but we got word that three German battle cruisers were reported 30 miles off the Scottish coast, near Aberdeen. We got under way, for it was reported they were trying to make for the Atlantic, and believe me, if we ever pushed this old packet ,we pushed her then.

"The wind was terrific, and at times it looked as if the tops of the waves were even with the tops of the masts. The old boat rolled to her life lines, and her decks were continually awash. She rolled so far sometimes it looked like she never could balance herself again.

"And cold! Say, imagine a fellow at the North Pole in his B. V. D.s, and you will know how I felt, and we were on watch 20 hours out of the 24. During the afternoon of the 13th our wireless men heard the Germans speaking to one another, but we never did get them, and never did know where they went, so they probably got back to Kiel.

"We gave it up, and while standing in to Scarpa Flow, we got an awful jolt, and thought at first we were on the rocks. A diver was sent down, and found that two blades were knocked of our starboard propeller. After a conference of Admirals here, and a Board of Investigation, it was found that we had struck a German submarine.

"After that we put into dry dock, and found an accumulation of scratches and bumps along our bottom, and the character of these proved beyond a doubt that it had been a sub. The channel was not dragged, because the tide was so swift there that a sunken sub would have been washed out to sea.

"If this letter had been written while the censorship was on, I would have got a general courtmartial, and they would have just locked me up and thrown away the key."

Street Railways in Receivers' Hands.

DES MOINES, Io., Dec. 14.—Declaring it had not funds with which to meet liabilities, the Des Moines City Railway Co. was placed in the hands of receivers today. Failure of the City Council to permit the company to charge 7-cent fare was said to be a reason for receivership.

Wounded the Third Time.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb.—Corp. Byron Aarries of this place was wounded Nov. 1, a note to his mother says. This was his third wound received in battle. He is in the marines. A brother, Mike Arries, has been wounded once.

HEAD OF ARMENIANS APPEALS TO COUNTRYMEN

Gen. Torcom Wants the Support in the Work Taht Is Now Going on in Armenia.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Friday, Dec. 13.—Gen. Torcom, head of the Armenian Military Mission which is soon to visit allied countries, has issued an appeal to his countrymen asking for their support of the work now going on in Armenia. The appeal follows, in part:

"In December, 1917, the Russian armies on the Caucasus abandoned the Armenian front. On Jan. 31, 1918, we proclaimed at Erzerum, in the presence of troops, the population and provincial Armenian delegates the independence of Armenia. We placed these countriesu nder the protection of four allied Powers—Great Britain, United States, France and Italy.

"Deserted by the Russians, betrayed by the Georgians and attacked on all sides by the Turco-German forces, Kurds, Tartars and 20 other races intent on our extermination, we have fought with a handful of gallant soldiers for the independence of our coutnry.

"We also had ourtraitors. Adventurers from Tiflis, actuated by Russian revolutionary doctrines, and thirsting after power, did not shrink from hateful treacnery.

"I now come to you charged with a sacred trust and mission. I bring to you the Armenian flag. My mission is to gather round this flag, which has become the emblem of our suffering, our faith and our burning thirst for liberty, an Armenian army of 100,000 men. We must help our glorious allies to take possession, from the Mediterranean to the Black Sea, of all Armenian countries where our martyrs are to be counted by hundreds of thousands.

"Armenia does not wish to die. She desires at least to take her place which has been so dearly bought, among civilized peoples."

GERMANS IN CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

About Fifth of Cantonments to Be for Teuton Populations.

By the Associated Press.

MUNICH, Dec. 13.—The Czecho-Slovak Government, according to advices from Prague, plans to placate the German element which it proposes to incorporate to present to the national assembly a bill providing for the division of Czecho-Slovakia into 25 cantons, four or five of which would include German language territory. The cantons would be largely independent except in such matters as railroads and the postal service.

Standers, Walkers, "Gets-It" for Corns

World Has Never Known Its Equal.

"What will get rid of my corn?" The answer has been made by millions—there's only one corn-remover that you can bank on, that's absolutely certain, that makes any corn on earth peel right off like a banana skin—and that's magic "Gets-It." Tight shoes and dancing even when you have a corn need not disturb you if you apply a few drops of "Gets-It" on the corn or callus. You want a corn-peeler, not a corn-fooler. You don't have to fool with corns—you peel them right off with your fingers by using "Gets-It." Cutting makes corns grow and bleed. Why use irritating salves or make a bundle of your toe with tape or bandages? Why putter and still have the corn? Use "Gets-It"—your corn pain is over, the corn is a "goner" sure as the sun rises.

GETS-IT FOR CORNS

Corn-Pain Is Eased—the Corn Is Doomed!

"Gets-It," the guaranteed, money-back corn remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. Manufactured by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill. Sold in St. Louis and recommended as the world's best corn remedy, by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Pauley Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co. and Lowell Drug Store.—ADV.

STATE TEACHERS' MEETING POSTPONED FOR SECOND TIME

Important Legislative Program, Including Raise in Pay in Rural Schools, Deferred.

The postponement of the Missouri State Teachers' Association meeting, which was to have been held Dec. 26, 27 and 28 in St. Louis, defers consideration of the most important program ever undertaken by the Legislative Committee of the association.

The items on this program to receive special attention by the association were educational recommendations to the Committee on Revision of the State Constitution; a State-wide compulsory attendance law; a lengthening of the minimum public school term for rural schools and increase in the minimum salary paid the rural school teacher.

This second postponement of the meeting makes it doubtful whether the meeting can be held this school year, but it may meet next spring.

Miss Tillie Gecks, a primary supervisor in the St. Louis public schools, is president, and the first woman who has held this office in the history of the association.

Civic League Postpones Lecture.

Because of the influenza situation, the George C. Sikes lecture, which was to have been held under the auspices of the Civic League tomorrow, has been postponed until the first week in January.

How This Tire Service Promotes Truck Economy

There are a lot of places where money can leak out if anything is wrong with your truck tires.

And the resulting losses are not only noted in too-high tire-mile costs but, as well, in inflated mile-costs of operating and maintaining trucks and of carrying goods. Some of your tires may be responsible for excessive truck repair bills or for too many breakages of merchandise handled, or they may be inadequate in size for your loads and wear out too fast. We recommend the right type and size of tire.

We supply Goodyear S-V Solid Tires, Goodyear Cushion Tires and Goodyear Pneumatic Cord Truck Tires.

If tires are applied without proper examination of wheel alignment, condition of springs and brake adjustment, undue tire wear may result from several causes. We inspect wheels, springs and brakes when changing tires.

And if tires are neglected after application, the injuries they receive on the road will frequently develop rapidly and cause their failure.

Further, to save truck time, we render night and Sunday service. Are you not interested in knowing all the details of this complete truck tire service?

HARRY NEWMAN TO BUILD MOTOR TRUCKS

Arrangements Completed to Manufacture a Full Line of Worm-Drive Models From 1 to 5-Ton Capacity.

The motor car trade was completely surprised yesterday by the announcement by Harry Newman that he had perfected arrangements for the building of his own truck. It had been known among a very small circle of intimates that for months he had been quietly making his plans to be consummated as soon as war conditions were eliminated.

With this end in view he had been in touch with the principal parts makers of the country so that complete specifications were ready and production could go forward without delay. The first of the new trucks will be completed about Jan. 15.

A complete line of five sizes will be manufactured, ranging in size from 1 to 5 ton capacity. It is not Newman's idea to incorporate in these models a single feature that has not already proven a success.

In fact the truck will be assembled from the standard units of the country's largest parts makers. The specifications call for such recognized units as Timken-Detroit worm drive rear axle, Continental Red Seal motor, Stromberg carburetor, A. O. Smith frame, Borg & Beck clutch and Gemmer steering apparatus. Each of these units has won for itself a name second to none in its particular field.

Name Not Announced.

At the present time Newman is not giving out the name which the truck will bear as the necessary steps to protect it have not yet been completed. Factory facilities have already been secured and production at the present time is under way, according to his statement yesterday.

Newman will head the company himself, and has not announced who his associates are. His present business will continue under the name of Harry Newman, Incorporated, who will handle the distribution of the new product in this territory while the manufacturing company will attend to the national distribution.

Since his entry into the motor car business two years ago today, Newman has always been a great believer in the future of the motor truck business and from the first has handled trucks. Early in the year he gave up entirely the passenger car business, announcing at the time that he would in the future concentrate his efforts upon trucks and allied lines.

Prices Are a Surprise.

It was an additional surprise when the prices were announced yesterday, for they are revolutionary for worm driven trucks. They are as follows: 1-ton, $1590; 1½-ton, $1890; 2-ton, $2290; 3½-ton, $3290, and 5-ton, $4190.

"I was actuated to this course," said Newman yesterday, "by the fact that a distributor who handles the factory product is required to devote his best energies in exploiting and bringing into public view, the product of manufacturers who pay little heed to the distributors' permanent advantage.

"The dealer is left unprovided for in case of change by dealer or factory. This new plan of ours is the first instance in St. Louis of this procedure, and our new concern will have a world-wide field in which to exploit its product.

"We have used exceptional care in the choice of our units and the result is the usage of absolutely standard units, made by the largest manufacturers of their kind in the world. This means that a motor truck buyer is permanently insured against any trouble in securing parts at any time in the future."

Building Only Closed Cars.

Last week R. C. Frampton, general manager of the Hudson-Phillips Motor Car Co., received word from the Hudson factory that for the next few months the factory would confine their production to closed models and that he could not expect to receive additional open cars for the next 90 days at the minimum.

Many thought that this was the important announcement which Mr. Frampton intimated he would make during December, but he states that within the near future he will reveal something which is sure to attract attention from the motoring public.

Vincent Returns to Packard.

Commended by the President of the United States for his services to America in time of national need, and vindicated on all his acts in the speedy production of a military aviation engine for the United States forces, Lieutenant-Colonel Jesse G. Vincent has received an honorable discharge from the army and has returned to take charge of Packard engineering, the work he left in June, 1917, to enter Government service.

Increases Gasoline Efficiency.

A new product, known as Gas-Pepp, is being placed on the market by the Bollinger Motor Brush Co., 3213 Locust street. The new product is a tablet which, when dissolved in the gasoline tank, is claimed to increase the efficiency of the gasoline 25 per cent.

One of the big advantages, according to Mr. Bollinger, is the greatly increased ease of cold weather starting. In this connection they have called it the "self-starter tablet."

Joined Cole Sales Force.

Ernest C. Collins, who has been in the real estate business for many years in St. Louis, has joined the sales force of the Cole-St. Louis Auto Co. Collins is a member of the St. Louis Quartette which recently went to France to sing to the soldiers.

Fred R. Smith, formerly with the Hutchinson Shoe Co., has also joined the sales force of the Cole-St. Louis Auto Co. Smith has made sales of six machines since his connection with the company.

The St. Louis-Cole is holding a preinventory sale of new cars, making very low prices on some excellent vehicles.

AUTO NOTES and GOSSIP.

William J. Geisler has severed his connection with the Republic Motor Truck Co. of Missouri, for which he was sales manager, and has joined the Dorris Motor Car Co. in the capacity of special representative of the transportation department.

Sergt. Max A. Wiltinstein who was formerly with the sales force of the Welling Motor Car Co., Olympic and Crow Elkhart distributors in St. Louis, has resumed his position with that company after spending some time at the Machine Gun Officers' Training School at Camp Hancock, Ga.

S. G. Hoffmann, president of the S. G. Hoffman Magneto Co., is expected to return to his business in St. Louis within a week. He has been serving as a Lieutenant in the army at a Florida Aviation Camp, where he was magneto and ignition expert.

E. G. Ewell, department manager for the Allen Motor Co., spent two days with the Mound City Buggy and Auto Co. last week.

W. B. Riley, sales manager of the Jordan Motor Car Co., was in St. Louis last week visiting the Mitchell Automobile Corporation, Jordan distributors.

The installation of 10 U. & J. carburetors was announced this week by L. B. Tebbetts & Co., 2125 Locust street, distributors for Missouri and Southern Illinois, by the Manewal Baking Co. of St. Louis, and the East Side Packing Co. of East St. Louis.

Last week's sales by the Mitchell Automobile Corporation were: Dr. Edwin Schisler, Mitchell Club Sedan; M. Finkelstein, Jordan Brougham; Charles Kurlander, Jordan Brougham; Harry Novak, Jordan Sedan; Mrs. Ross W. Judson, Jordan Sedan; A. D. Gates, Jordan Suburban Seven; J. L. Babler, Jordan Sport Marine; J. G. Hartman, Mitchell Coupe.

The Kardell Motor Car Co. is showing the new Reo sedan, the first to reach St. Louis, at its sales room, 3145 Locust street.

The Motor Products Co., 5 North Second street, has been organized to manufacture the Kopper Head spark plug. The officers of the company are J. A. Owen, president; A. H. Wyres, secretary, and A. Koopman, vice president and sales manager.

The newest equipment for the Hudson car is a sun visor lined with green to protect the eyes of the driver from glaring sunlight.

Positive assurance has been received by the Weber Implement and Auto Co. from the manufacturers of the Moline Knight car that the price of the car will not change before May 1.

J. C. Barcus of the Barcus Automobile Co. has received word from the manufacturers of the Auburn car, that no change in the price of that car will be made before July 1.

The Twin City Co. of Minneapolis, distributors of the Twin City Farm Tractor has opened a St. Louis branch at 1820 Locust street with R. W. Cruikshank as manager.

The Good Roads Committee of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce memorialized Congress, suggesting the desirability of retaining the road building and motor corps of the present army in service for the construction and repair of Government highways and for the protection of rural lines and in conjunction with rural free delivery.

Roy D. Chapin, president of the Hudson Motor Car Co., has returned to his business after serving as chairman of the Highways Transport Committee of the Council of National Defense.

W. J. Carter of the Liberty Motor Car Co., who has been ill with pneumonia at the Lutheran Hospital, is rapidly recovering.

Harry G. Mock, business manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, attended the meeting of the Highway Congress at the Congress Hotel in Chicago, Dec. 11 and 12, as special representative of the National Automobile Dealers' Association.

Marien in New Line.

Charles A. Marien, who has had a long experience in the automobile business in St. Louis, has become vice president of the H. and H. Machine Co., 4200W Easton avenue. The company specializes on cylinder grinding and the making of special parts for automobiles. The other officers of the company are H. Haacke, president, and R. Howdeshell, secretary and treasurer.

ASK CONGRESS FOR FAIR AUTO TAXATION

At a meeting of the directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce the directors voted to ask Congress in the new revenue bill to refrain from discriminating against the automobile industry by placing any greater tax on it than is put on any other industry. The clearly proven merit of the passenger car as well as the truck during the war period and the energetic manner in which the automobile industry took on war contracts to an amount exceeding $1,000,000,000, warrants, in the judgment of the leaders of the industry, a position under the taxation program commensurate with the standing of the industry and its relation to other industries. At present it is planned to place a tax of 5 per cent on the sales of automobiles and automobile parts by manufacturers, in addition to the usual corpo tion taxes and excess profits ta which apply to business generally.

Performance Counts

You see the familiar hood of the MACK everywhere! Through the congested streets of the big city, and away out on the open road. Down by the River Front and up across the mountain making hauls that a few years ago only a heavy freight train could accomplish. Where there is hard hauling being done, you see the big MACK hood.

A MACK truck makes a schedule a certainty; its great power gets heavy loads through—roads or no roads. It will earn you profit and satisfaction.

Commend Thief Prosecutors.

The National Automobile Dealers' Association is taking an active interest throughout the country in making the stealing of automobiles an unprofitable occupation.

The association, recognizing that police officials and attorneys are being paid by their respective communities for the performance of their duties, nevertheless takes into consideration that whenever results are attained in the successful prosecution of thieves, credit should be given in the form of encouraging letters commending the officials for the strict performance of their duties.

Eecerpts from two letters from prosecuting officials proves the wisdom of this. "I deeply appreciate this compliment and it is indeed gratifying to have one's efforts commented upon favorably." "It is very refreshing for a public officer to receive such a letter. We trust that our continued efforts will merit your praise."

No Change in Nash Prices.

"There will be no changes in the prices of Nash passenger cars and trucks before July 1, 1919," is the statement made by President C. W. Nash to a big meeting of Nash distributors from all parts of the country held at the Nash Motors plant at Kenosha beginning Thursday, Dec. 5, attended by Manager Quigley of the St. Louis distributing agency.

This statement is bound to be read with interest in automobile circles everywhere, as it is another indication that automobile prices in the reconstruction period of the first six months of 1919 will be generally maintained.

The developments of the past 10 days indicate that the majority of the leading manufacturers will maintain their prices and this seems to be particularly true among the manufacturers who have held their prices down during the uncertain conditions of war. In most cases the reductions have been made by companies which, during the war period, have made several large advances in price.

The Nash company, while it, during the war period, was on practically a 100 per cent war basis, furnished the Government while on this basis, only regular peace-time products of the Nash factory. Accordingly, they are among those companies which are in a position to almost immediately resume quantity production of their own products for the general consumer trade.

Guarantee Prices Till June.

The Weber Implement and Automobile Co. received word last week from both the Maxwell and Chalmers factories absolutely guaranteeing the present price of both cars until next June.

Some time ago the factories advised Mr. Weber that they anticipated no immediate reduction in price, but they are now going a step farther and authorizing their dealers to give a written guarantee to each purchaser.

In addition to assuring the public that there will be no change in price, they point out the work of their engineering department in completing perfections on the present models during the time when such a large part of their production capacity was devoted to war work.

Buy if You Need a Car.

"The war did not destroy the appetite of the public for buying motor cars and peace will not," says J. C. Kardell of the Kardell Motor Car Co., Dort distributor in St. Louis.

"'Shall I buy an automobile?' should be answered by another question. That is as to whether the automobile is needed. If it is, then buy it. Above all remember that 'business as usual' will help most in the transition period of demobilization and getting from a war to a peace pasis just as it did in 1917 when we were getting from peace to war."

To Distribute Quaker Tires.

The general distribution in St. Louis and the Southwest, for the Quaker tire manufactured by the Quaker City Rubber Co. of Philadelphia, has been placed with Frank W. Bradley, Century Building. Negotiations were completed by J. T. Moore, sales manager of the company, Friday. Bradley will place local agencies and will appoint a distributor for the Southwest. The Quaker tire carries a guarantee for 5000 miles. Bradley also represents A. W. Rosen & Co., manufacturers of automobile electrical accessories.

Announcing New Models

—and Immediate Delivery

NEVER has a more important automobile announcement been made—Lexington starts off the after-the-war era a distinct leader on three separate counts:

First, you can get Lexington cars right now when you need them.

Second, you can get new models. This is the important fact. Why is it that Lexington is in the enviable position? You will find this reason is one of the best arguments for your owning a car built by this institution.

Prior to the war-curtailment of output every Lexington car was sold before built. There is no stock of old models on hand to be disposed of before designing and producing up-to-date cars.

In addition, Lexington builders had looked far ahead and anticipated today. They prepared with a large inventory of materials.

On top of all this, Lexington enjoys wonderful production advantages because of its affiliation with ten large factories devoted to specializing in motor car parts.

This alliance permits quicker production, it makes possible many manufacturing economies, and a co-operation that produces better designed and better built cars.

Third, Lexington leads in giving greater value per dollar; a better performing car because of exclusive improvements; a better looking, easier riding, and longer serving car.

It is both desirable and good business for you to own a new car, one that is ahead of the times.

Let us acquaint you with the many advantages of the new five-passenger Touring Car with two auxiliary seats, and seven other new Lexington open and closed models.

It is only fair that we should caution you that, in spite of our wonderful production facilities, the war-accumulated demand for better grade cars will tax us to the utmost—we urge you to act now while immediate delivery is possible.

A Bright Idea

Give Him a DIETZ for Xmas

IF he lives in the city a Dietz is his friend; when he goes to the cellar to fix the furnace, get wood for the fireplace, or the potatoes and preserves that the housewife keeps below stairs.

IF he owns a wagon, truck or automobile, he will find a Dietz useful many times when the electric lighting system fails.

IF he lives in the country, he can't live without a lantern and if he is the kind of man who knows what's right, he knows that the Dietz is the standard lantern light of the world.

IF he is a little man, his heart will swell with pride if he gets a Dietz for Christmas, for the possession of a lantern is the final proof that a boy is grown up—big enough to take care of himself—big enough to be trusted—and if the lantern is a Dietz he knows that you have bought him no toy but a real man's lantern.

There are five million Dietz lanterns sold every year—more than twice as many as all other makes of lanterns combined.

The reason for this is due to the Dietz cold blast lantern patents which control the making of lanterns which give a pure white flame—the strongest light given by any lantern.

Dietz lanterns can be bought in every Hardware Store, General Store or the House Furnishing Departments of any Department Store in the United States.

CROWDER FAVORS SELECTIVE DRAFT FOR U. S. POLICY

Provost Marshal General Talks to Retiring Members of 189 Draft Boards in New York City.

AMERICAN SELECTS AS GOOD AS BEST

System Called "Very Essence of Democracy," Volunteer Method Chivalrous and Wasteful.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—"Taps" to the volunteer system of raising armies in war time by the United States was sounded here tonight by Provost Marshal-General Crowder, in an address to the retiring members of 189 New York draft boards. He earnestly advocated that the selective service system should become the permanent method of raising American armies in the future.

Gen. Crowder declared that the selective service law had enabled the Government in this war to register 23,740,000 Americans, put into the field nearly 3,000,000 fighters and to have in readiness to entrain on Nov. 11, when the armistice was signed, 2,000,000 more soldiers, all within a period of 18 months.

It would be a "calamity," he said, for the United States to revert to the volunteer system in view of such a successful test of selective service, adding that the American drafted men had shown the valor, aggressiveness and initiative of the most seasoned troops.

Selects Equal of Any.

"What of the army you have raised?" asked Gen. Crowder, referring to the drafted men who had been sent overseas. "The answer comes back from France in no uncertain terms.

"These men you have sent to the colors have proved themselves the equals in aggressive fighting and soldiery bearing of the veterans of France and England."

Gen. Crowder said that the selective service law had responded "so smoothly and so well to our dual from of State Government and national control that it would be calamitous if it should not become a recognized part of our governmental system for the raising of armies in time of war."

He contrasted the draft methods of the United States with those of England and showed how this country had profited by the mistakes made by the British, who after three years of trial with the volunteer system and the disorganization of industry, were obliged to adopt conscription

Pointing out that when Germany hurled her challenge to the democracies of the earth it became necessary for those democracies, for self-preservation, to organize their resources as she had done and "make every man a soldier" active or reserve, Gen. Crowder declared this test had been met.

Reviews England's Experience.

He referred to the efforts of Lord Kitchener to raise an army and of the first gallant 100,000 who were sent across the English channel, "knowing how to die but little else in the awful carnage that awaited them."

He touched briefly upon the great drain upon the flower of England's manhood and how, after the factories, schools, offices, farms and mines had been depleted of their best, the futility of trying to raise the required number of volunteers became apparent.

"After 17 months of war had been witnessed the disastrous fighting at Gallipoli, Mesopotamia and the Balkins and the deadlock on the western front," he declared, "the new army of England was 1,700,000 men short of its then authorized strength." The volunteer system was now to be abandoned, he went on, after "it had throttled the industrial life of the nation, and undermined the whole economic structure."

Cites Early Opposition Here.

When the United States War Department, in its effort to heed the lesson learned by England, sought the enactment of the selective service act, Gen. Crowder said that the traditional method of raising armies by volunteer system was so strong with American people that it was "deemed expedient" in the very bill the War

SIMS LINKED U. S. AND BRITISH NAVIES, JELLICOE DECLARES

Comradeship So Close That the Two Had Become One, Admiral Declares in Address.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Admiral Viscount Jellicoe, former commander of the British Grand Fleet, presided at a meeting tonight at the Bedford College for Women in London, and said he came in place of Vice-Admiral Sims, commander of the American naval forces in the war zone, because Admiral Sims was a brother officer, as were all American officers who had been serving in the European waters. Admiral Sims was prevented from attending because he had taken personal command of the American squadron sent to welcome President Wilson. Admiral Jellicoe said that Admiral Sims, who had done so much to save civilization, was the right man to command the escort, as he had seen the American forces grow up from their inception.

When Admiral Sims arrived in England, continued Admiral Jellicot, he was welcomed in the "usual manner," by having a ship mined under him. It fell to the lot of Admiral Sims to explain to the American Navy Board the needs and necessities of the British navy. It was not easy for a people 3000 miles away, said Admiral Jellicoe, to realize what these were, but Admiral Sims had made them understand and America had responded most nobly.

As the American ships arrived in European waters it fell to the lot of Admiral Sims to organize them, the Admiral continued, and it fell to his lot also to do the very difficult thing of imbuing the American navy with a spirit of comradeship with those with whom they were going to work. The result, Admiral Jellicoe concluded, had been a comradeship so close that the two navies had become one.

The vessel to which Admiral Jellicoe referred as having been mined was the American line steamer New York, which carried Vice-Admiral Sims to England in April, 1917. The New York struck a mine on the night of April 9, while nearing Liverpool. No one was injured, and her passengers were taken off in safety. Later the crew took the New York to her dock under her own steam. She was not damaged seriously.

400 HARBOR CRAFT WILL MEET 72 RETURNING U. S. WARSHIPS

New York Makes Elaborate Preparations to Welcome Homeward-Bound Fleet Due Dec. 23.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—When the great fleet of 72 American war craft which have been aiding in upholding the supremacy of the allies overseas steams into the Hudson on Dec. 23, it will find Riverside Drive decorated more gorgeously than ever before in honor of the sailors and marines.

The war fleet, now homeward bound, will be greeted three miles off Sandy Hook by more than 400 harbor craft and is expected to be escorted to anchorage by many foreign warships now in Atlantic waters.

The fleet will anchor in the Hudson River, off Riverside drive, and landing stages will be erected at convenient points. The official reception to the sailors and marines will take place there. At night the drive will be illuminated from Seventy-second street to Grant's Tomb.

The official welcome by the city to the officers of the fleet will take place at the city hall on Dec. 24, when Mayor Hylan will receive Admirals Mayo, Rodman and Rogers. The same day the sailors and marines together with soldiers recently returned from the battlefields will parade down Fifth avenue, if official sanction can be obtained.

Wilson Tells French Socialists Peace Will Justify War's Sacrifices to Men as Final Process of Their Emancipation

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 14.

PRESIDENT WILSON addressed a Socialist delegation, which called on him today. The President said:

Gentlemen—I received with great interest the address which you have just read to me. The war through which we have just passed has illustrated in a way which never can be forgotten the extraordinary wrongs which can be perpetrated by arbitrary and irresponsible power.

"It is not possible to secure the happiness and prosperity of the world, to establish an enduring peace, unless the repetition of such wrongs is rendered impossible. This has, indeed, been a people's war. It has been waged against absolutism and militarism, and these enemies of liberty must from this time forth be shut out from the possibility of working their cruel will on mankind.

'In my judgment, it is not sufficient to establish the principle. It is necessary that it should be supported by a co-operation of the nations which shall be based upon fixed and definite covenants and which shall be made certain of effective action through the instrumentality of a league of nations. I believe this to be the conviction of all thoughtful and liberal men.

'I am confident that this is the thought of those who lead your own great nation, and I am looking forward with peculiar pleasure to co-operating with them in securing guarantees of a living peace of justice and right dealing which shall justify the sacrifices of this war upon those sacrifices as the dramatic and final processes of their emancipation."

BRITISH PLANE STARTS FLIGHT OF 5700 MILES, CARRYING 6 MEN

Giant Designed to Bomb Berlin Forced to Land on French Coast by Dense Fog Bank.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 14 (British Wireless Service).—A giant Handley Page airplane, carrying six members of the Royal Air Force, started from the airdrome near Ipswich at 9:30 o'clock last night and headed crass the channel for France on a flight to Karachi, India, and thence to Delhi. The craft ran into a bank of thick fog, however, and was compelled to make a landing on the French coast.

The journey, it was announced, will be continued. The distance to Delhi is something more than 5700 miles.

This machine was originally assigned to bomb Berlin. It measures 127 feet from wing tip to wing tip and weighs, with fuel and passengers, about 27,000 pounds. It can make 80 miles an hour and can carry 1200 gallons of petrol, sufficient for a flight of nearly 16 hours.

Maj. Archibald MacLaren and Capt. Holley, famous as a long-distance bombing pilot, are the pilots of the machine.

DEATH OF ACTRESS REVEALS RICH LONDON DRUG ADDICTS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Disclosures concerning the extent of the drug traffic which were made at the inquest into the death of Billie Carleton, a popular actress, had a sensational sequel today when the police arrested Lo Ping You, a Chinese, and his English wife.

At the inquest a witness, a confessed drug addict, told how drugs, such as cocaine and heroin, had been bought in quantities in the West End and he testified about visits to London's Chinatown to smoke opium and to arrange for "doping parties" in West End apartments.

Lo Ping You was charged with having opium without authority and the charge against his wife was that she had supplied opium to Billy Carleton. Counsel for the prosecution said the woman's house had been an opium den for some time. Opium accessories were found there.

EDITOR HARDEN MAY VISIT U. S.

Noted War Critic Urged to Present Germany's Case in This Country.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—While no names are mentioned in connection with the appointment of German peace delegates, it is known that the Government has the subject under discussion.

The appointment of Maximilian Harden, editor of the Die Zukunft, as a special advance delegate, appears to be much in favor. The editor's admirers are even urging him to go to the United States for the purpose of presenting Germany's case.

Drug Store Is Robbed.

The drug store of James W. Brown, 6829 Virginia avenue, which is also a sub-postoffice station, was entered by a burglar Friday night. The sum of $8 was taken from the druggist's cash register and $2.40 from the register of the postoffice. Two dozen bottles of perfume also were stolen.

DANIELS TELLS WHERE HOME FLEET SHIPS STAYED DURING WAR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—York River, described by Secretary Daniels as "the world's greatest deposit for battleships," was the home port of that part of the Atlantic fleet which missed the chance of war service in foreign waters.

"Where is the fleet?" a question often asked during the war, was answered today by Secretary Daniels. Except those units sent abroad, battleships and other craft under command of Vice-Admiral Albert W. Grant, anchored right where Admiral Rochambeau's French fleet took its stand and cut off relief by sea for Gen. Cornwallis in 1781. From the anchorage of the ships Admiral Grant's men could see the shores of Yorktown where Cornwallis surrendered.

While stationed at this historic naval base the ships passed back and forth through Chesapeake Bay to sea, but under the voluntary censorship no reference ever was published as to the location. It was all routine for the men, Secretary Daniels explained, with no shore attractions, and the voyage to New York 10 or 12 battleships for the homecoming fleet from Europe will be a welcome change. Liberal Christmas leave will be granted to these and all others in the navy.

Protected from the danger of submarine attack by nets across the mouth of York River, officers and men put in many months of very efficient work, Daniels said. In many instances 1400 men were crowded on ships whose normal complements were 800, and good work under these conditions, he added, was one of the big accomplishments of the navy.

8000 RETURNING ON LEVIATHAN

Former Hamburg-American Liner Carried 100,000 American Soldiers to France.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—The giant American transport Leviathan formerly the Hamburg-American liner Vaterland, the largest vessel afloat, is due here tomorrow with between 8000 and 900 officers and men of the American overseas forces. A wireless message was received here today from the steamship.

During the period of America's participation in the war the leviathan ferried across the Atlantic approximately 100,000 fighting men, together with vast quantities of war supplies.

DR. ANNA SHAW A POLICEWOMAN

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, honorary president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, was sworn in today as a special member of the Washington police force.

At a reception last night Dr. Shaw told of a 40-years' desire to serve as a policewoman. Superintendent Pullman of the local force, invited her to his office to talk over the situation, and when she appeared the regulation oath was administered and she was given a badge.

WILSON ENTERED PARIS AT ITS LOVELIEST POINT

RETURNED CHEERS OF U. S. WOUNDED

Smiled at Moroccan Cavalry Guard at Station, Deeply Interested in "Blue Devils" Lining the Bois.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—Arrangements for receiving President Wilson upon his arrival here today were made with that supremely good taste which invariably characterizes French undertakings on an occasion of so much moment.

The French Government selected a little station, beside the entrance to the Boise de Boulogne as the place of arrival for the presidential train. Thus President Wilson got his first impression of Paris in one of the loveliest parts of this most beautiful of cities.

The station itself looked like a bit of Spotless Town, so energetically had it been swept and polished.

On the platform there merely was a small official group, headed by President Poincaire, Premier Clemenceau and a guard of honor furnished by the Garde Republicaine.

The tracks in the station run through a deep cut, but part of the platform is uncovered, so it was that when the President, with President Poincaire and Premier Clemenceau at his side, walked along to review the guardsmen he was clearly visible to the thrings gazing from the windows of apartment houses lining the street above the sunken railroad.

"Viva Wilson!" Is Shout.

One shout came from the throats of the thousands whose eyes had been searching for the distinguished visitor. It was: "Viva Wilson!"

Then a military band outside struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner." This was notice to the densely packed multitude filling the Avenue du Boise de Boulogne that America's President had set foot in Paris.

There followed a roar of acclaim that echoed down to and beyond the Arc de Triomphe.

A moment later the Presidents of the two great republics ascended the steps leading from the platform to the street level and entered a Victoria. From the time he left the station President Wilson's silk hat was never on his head. He used it mostly to wave greetings to the crowds.

"He will catch cold if he keeps his hat off all the time," solicitously observed a motherly-looking old French woman.

Moroccan cavalry, guarding the approaches to the station, received a smiling glance from the President, and he turned his head again and again to obtain a better look at the Alpine Chasseurs, who were lined on the Bois de Boulogne and whose blue devil comrades Mr. Wilson had seen at home.

Mr. Wilson and President Poincare were chatting together constantly. "Monsieur Wilson must talk French fluently," was the comment I heard frequently.

Each Talked Our Tongue.

President Poincare speaks no English. As a matter of fact, as far as I could gather, each talked in his own language.

Mr. Wilson returned the frantic Yankee cheers of a big group of wounded American soldiers with a stupendous waving of his silk hat and the shout: "Good luck, boys."

The President's salutation was lost to the ears of many, because of the din.

A little further on the President met the first of a number of contingents of French workmen. They carried a flag proclaiming them to be railroad workmen from St. Cloud. The President gave them a warm smile and seemed pleased by the stentorian tones of the welcome they accorded him.

No sooner had the procession passed than the spectators broke through the files of soldiers and

LONDON, Dec. 14.—The reform of the House of Lords will be one of the tasks undertaken by the coalition ministry if it is returned to power in the election taking place in the United Kingdom today, A. Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, declared in a speech at Glasgow, Friday.

Law said the coalition Government believed that a second chamber with adequate strength was necessary in any democratic country, but it was not intended that it should be a hereditary chamber.

REGISTRATION IN RED CROSS TO BE STRICTLY VOLUNTARY

Headquarters Instructs Chapter Workers Not to Urge Anyone to Enroll This Week.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Instructions were sent tonight from American Red Cross headquarters here to thousands of chapter workers throughout the country that registration for the membership campaign beginning Monday must be purely voluntary. Not one of the millions of men and women who are expected to enroll or renew memberships will be urged to do so. Compliance with these instructions, the organization announced, will mean that no persuasion has been necessary to swell the Red Cross membership in the campaign to continue through the week.

One of the principal reasons for placing the registration on a voluntary basis is that each person is expected to sign the roll but once and pay $1, which is all that is asked.

ESTIMATED 2,000,000 CHEERED PRESIDENT'S ENTRY INTO CAPITAL

American Executive Attended by President Poincare, Premier Clemenceau and Others, Among the Most Eminent Figures in France.

100-GUN SALUTE IS FIRED AS TRIBUTE

Troops, Most of Them Just Fresh From the Somme Battlefield, Line Route to Murat Residence—Night Celebration Greater Than That Armistice Night.

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS, Dec. 14.—President and Mrs. Wilson made their entry into Paris this morning, greeted by nearly half the population, not only of the city, but of the surrounding districts. They were attended by President Poincare, Premier Clemenceau and others among the most eminent figures of France. Flowers were dropped around their carriage; airplanes winged overhead; guns sounded. But observers were impressed with something more than the magnitude and beauty of the reception by some quality of warmth that made it different from the visits to Paris recently made by the sovereigns of the allied nations.

This is a greater night in Paris than armistice night. The city is ablaze with illuminations; the boulevards are thronged with crowds dancing and singing and throwing confetti. The Place de la Concorde has been turned into a great dancing pavilion, where American soldiers are favorite partners. America is the predominating word here tonight.

The imagination and interest of France have been stirred by the President of the United States as no leader beyond the borders. All classes and parties in this country have united to pay honor to the United States through its President. They greet him as the representative of ideals now dawning upon Europe.

Typifies Two Forces.

'In the eyes of the immense crowds welcoming him," says the semi-official Temps, "President Wilson represents two invincible forces—the material force which permitted the war to be won, and also the force which will sanctify peace."

Thirty-six thousand soldiers, the flower of the French army, lined the avenues from Dauphine Gate to the Murat Mansion, which during their stay in Paris will be the home of the President and his wife. Alpine Chasseurs and Zouaves fresh from the battlefields of Chapmagne and Colonial troops from whose uniforms the mud of the Somme had only a few days ago been removed, occupied the post of honr. They gently but firmly kept rder amongst the enormous crowds, which ever pressed forward in eagerness to have a closer look at the guests of France.

President Wilson entered Paris today amid the boom of a hundred guns in salute and a greeting at the railway station and along the route to his temporary residence by enthusiastic throngs estimated to total nearly 2,000,000 persons, whose cheers set the air vibrating.

President Poincare, Premier Clemenceau and other French officials met the Presidential party at the railway station together with French and American military officers and prominent civilians, while the Republican Guard band called out in his honor greeted him with the strains of the Star Spangled Banner

After the presentations and other formalities of welcome had been concluded, the President and Mrs. Wilson and the other members of the party entered open carriages of state and drove under overcast skies along the appointed route, escorted by the mounted Republican Guard between solid ranks of French troops.

Captured Guns Along Route.

The route was lined for miles with captured guns and other battle trophies, and every available space was crowded by vast crowds waving and shouting their welcome — such crowds as have rarely been seen in Paris.

President Wilson was constantly baring his head and smiling upon the throngs in acknowledging his welcome, while Mrs. Wilson's carriage was heaped with flowers that were thrown into it along the route to the mansion of Prince Murat, which was reached at 10:45 o'clock, about a half hour after the American Executive's arrival in the French capital.

An official luncheon given by President and Mme. Poincare at the Palca de l'Elyse in honor of President and Mrs. Wilson ended the official program of the day. At the luncheon President Poincare delivered an address of welcome to President Wilson and the American executive in reply made the second public utterance of his European visit.

The presidential party returned from the Palais de L'Elysee to the Prince Murat residence at 2:45 o'clock in the faternoon. President and Mrs. Wilson rode in an open carriage. The crowds along the way greeted them with renewed enthusiasm, throwing bouquets for Mrs. Wilson into the carriage. She returned thanks to the crowd with her smiles, while the President raised his hat in acknowledgment.

Pershing in Procession.

In the procession from the railway station to the Prince Murat home the first carriage was occupied by President Wilson and President Poincare and the second carriage by Mrs. Wilson, Mme. Poincare, Mme. Jusserand and Miss Margaret Wilson. Those in other carriages were: Third, American Ambassador Sharp, Premier Clemenceau and Generals Mordacq and Desparge; fourth, Secretary of State Lansing and Foreign Minister Pichon; fifth, Gen. Bliss and Henry White; sixth, Gen. Pershing and Ambassador Jusserand; seventh, Admiral Benson and Capt. Tardieu, French High Commissioner to the United States, and eighth, Admiral Grayson, Gen. Harta and Lieutenant-Colonel Lobez.

The reception to the President in the estimation of some onlookers appeared to have drawn out a greater crowd than welcomed either King George or King Albert on their recent visits.

Crowds Uncover for Anthem.

The procession left the Porte Dauphine just a few minutes after the President arrived. The scene was impressive as the crowds cheered and then uncovered reverently as the bands played the Star-Spangled Banner. A large crowd was gathered at the Arc de Triomphe, where the procession turned down the Champs Elysees turned down the the thoroughfare until the bridge Alexander III was reached. After crossing the Seine the procession moved past the building of the Chamber of Deputies and again crossed the Seine to the Place de la Concorde.

A tremendous throng was gathered there and set up a mighty roar. As the procession approached the center of the city the enthusiasm seemed to become greater and when the Church of the Madeleine was reached the applause attained its greatest height.

President Wilson seemed greatly affected as he passed the Church of the Madeleine, for the American societies had gathered there and they raised a characteristic American cheer as he went by, ending with a "Tiger."

The vantage points along the route to be traversed by the party were taken up by the crowds in the early hours. The favorite posts of observation were captured German cannon lining the road from the Place de l'Etoile to the Place de la Concorde.

The people, crowded thickly upon the grassy slope of the old Paris fortifications, could be heard crying in English: "Welcome Wilson! Long live Wilson!" or, in greater chorus, like a college yell, shouting, "Wilson! Wilson, Wilson!"

The city is making a vast fete of the President's coming.

Day's Weather Favorable.

The crowds that assembled in Paris to greet the President were at an early hour large beyond the precedent set on the occasion of previous visits of heads of foreign states. The weather was favorable for, although the morning was rather a gray one, it gave promise of decided improvement.

The scene at the station where the President's train came in was beautifully set. The platform was carpeted in red, and palms adorned the broad stairway.

President Wilson's appearance in the broad carpeted and palm-bordered approach to the station through glittering lines of sabers of the Republican Guards, caused the vast throng to cheer and shout. Their efforts were taken up by such masses of people as the French capital rarely had seen.

The band of the Republican Guards was playing the Star-Spangled Banner as the presidential train, decorated with the Stars and Stripes, drew into the station. Immediately the artillery gave voice and a salute of 100 guns announced the President's arrival.

President Poincare greeted President Wilson warmly as the latter stepped from the train, the French executive firmly grasping him by the hand. William Martin, who is attached to the Foreign Office as introducer of Ambassadors, presented Premier Clemenceau, who welcomed President Wilson in English, saying he was extremely glad to meet him.

Crowds Wait Up at Night.

The passage of the presidential train from Brest to Paris gave evidence of the intense interest the population attached to the President's visit. At every station along the railway crowds of men, women and children waited through the night for the passing of the train, hoping to catch a glimpse of the American executive. Through the night along the route their cheers could be heard as the train slid by in the darkness.

PARIS, Dec. 14.

PRESIDENT and Madame Poincare gave a luncheon at the Palais d'Elysee in honor of President and Mrs. Wilson. President Wilson on this occasion spoke as follows, in replying to an address by President Poincare:

"MR. PRESIDENT: I am deeply indebted to you for your gracious greeting. It is very delightful to find myself in France and to feel the quick sympathy and unaffected friendship between the representatives of the United States and the representatives of France.

"You have been very generous in what you were pleased to say about myself, but I feel that what I have said and what I have tried to do as has been said and done only in an attempt to speak the thought of the people of the United States truly and to carry that thought out in action.

"From the first the thought of the people of the United States turned toward something more than the mere winning of this war. It turned to the establishment of eternal principles of right and justice. It realized that merely to win the war was not enough; that it must be won in such a way and the questions raised by it settled in such a way as to insure the future peace of the world and lay the foundations for the freedom and happiness of its many peoples and nations.

"Never before has war worn so terrible a visage or exhibited more grossly the debasing influence of illicit ambitions. I am sure that I shall look upon the ruin wrought by the armies of the Central Empires with the same repulsion and deep indignation that they stir in the hearts of the men of France and Belgium, and I appreciate, as you do, sir, the necessity of such action in the final settlement of the issue of the war as will not only rebuke such acts of terror and spoilation, but make men everywhere aware that they cannot be ventured upon without the certainty of just punishment.

"I know with what ardor and enthusiasm the soldiers and sailors of the United States have given the best that was in them in this war of redemption. They have expressed the true spirit of America. They believe their ideals to be acceptable to free peoples everywhere and are rejoiced to have played the part they have played in giving reality to those ideals in co-operation with the armies of the allies.

"We are proud of the part they have played and we are happy that they should have been associated with such comrades in a common cause.

"It is with peculiar feeling, Mr. President, that I find myself in France, joining with you in rejoicing over the victory that has been won. The ties that bind France and the United States are peculiarly close.

"I do not know in what other comradeship we could have fought with more zest or enthusiasm. It will daily be a matter of pleasure with me to be brought into consultation with the statesmen of France and her allies in concerting the measure by which we may secure permanence for these happy relations of friendship and co-operation, and secure for the world at large such safety and freedom in its life as can be secured only by the constant association and co-operation of friends.

"I greet you, not only with deep personal respect, but as the representative of the great people of France, and beg to bring you the greetings of another great people to whom the fortunes of France are of profound and lasting interest.

"I raise my glass to the health of the President of the French republic and to Mme. Poincare and the prosperity of France."

Poincare's Address to Wilson

In his address to President Wilson, President Poincare said:

"MR. PRESIDENT: Paris and France awaited you with impatience. They are eager to acclaim in you the illustrious democrat whose words and deeds were inspired by exalted thought, the philosopher delighting in the solution of universal laws from particular events, the eminent statesman who had found a way to express the highest political and moral truths in formulas which bear the stamp of immortality.

"They had also a passionate desire to offer thanks, in your person, to the great republic of which you are the chief, for the invaluable assistance which had been given spontaneously during this war, to the defenders of right and liberty.

"Even before America had resolved to intervene in the struggle she had shown to the wounded and the orphans of France a solicitude and a generosity the memory of which will always be enshrined in our hearts.

"The liberality of your Red Cross, the countless gifts of your fellow citizens, the inspiring initiative of American women anticipated your military and naval action and showed the world to which side your sympathies inclined. And on the day when you flung yourselves into the battle with what determination your great people and yourself prepared for united success.

"Some months ago you cabled to me that the United States would send ever-increasing forces until the day had been reached in which the allied armies were able to submerge the enemy under an overwhelming flow of new divisions and in effect for more than a year a steady stream of youth and energy has been poured out upon the shores of France.

"No sooner had they landed than your gallant battalions, fired by their chief, Gen. Pershing, flung themselves into the combat with such a manly contempt of danger, such a smiling disregard of death, that our longer experience of this terrible war often moved us to counsel prudence. They brought with them in arriving here the enthusiasm of crusaders leaving for the Holy Land.

"It is their right today to look with pride upon the work accomplished and to feel assured that they have powerfully aided by their courage and their faith.

"Eager as they were to meet the enemy, they did not know when they arrived the enormity of his crimes. That they might know how the German armies make war, it had been necessary that they see towns systematically burned down, mines flooded, factories reduced to ashes, orchards devastated, cathedrals shelled and fired—all that deliberated savagery aimed to destroy, national wealth, nature and beauty which the imagination could not conceive at a distance from the men and things that have endured it and today bear witness to it.

"You, Mr. President, will be able to measure with your own eyes the extent of the disasters and the French Government will make known to you the authentic documents in which the German general staff developed with astounding cynicism its program of pillage and nidustrial annihilation. Your noble conscience will pronounce a verdict on these facts.

"Should this guilt remain unpunished, could it be renewed, the most splendid victories would be in vain."

Mr. President, France has struggled, has endured and has suffered during four long years; she has bled at every vein; she has lost the best of her children; she mourns for her youth. She yearns now even as you do for a peace of justice and security.

"It was not that she might be exposed once again to aggression that she submitted to such sacrifices. Nor was it in order that criminals should go unpunished, that they might lift their heads again to make ready for new crimes, that under your strong leadership America armed herself and crossed the ocean.

"Faithful to the memory of Lafayette and Rochambeau she came to the aid of France because France herself was faithful to her traditions. Our common ideal has triumphed. Together we have defended the vital principles of free nations.

"Now we must build together such a peace as will forbid the deliberate and hypocritical renewing of an organism aiming at conquest and oppression.

"Peace must make amends for the misery and sadness of yesterday and it must be a guarantee against the dangers to tomorrow. The association which has been formed for the purpose of war between the United States and Allies, and which contains the seed of the permanent institutions of which you have spoken so eloquently, will find from this day forward a clear and profitable employment in the concerted search for equitable decisions, and in the mutual support which we need if we are to make our rights prevail.

"Whatever safeguards we may erect for the future no one, alas, can assert that we shall forever spare to mankind the horrors of new wars. Five years ago the progress of science and the state of civilization might have permitted the hope that no Government, however autocratic, would have succeeded in hurling armed nations upon Belgium and Siberia.

"Without lending ourselves to the illusion that posterity will be forever more safe from these collective follies, we must introduce into the peace we are going to build up all the conditions of justice and all the safeguards of civilization that we can put in it.

"To such a vast and magnificent task, Mr. President, you have chosen to come and apply yourself in concert with France.

France offers you her thanks. She knows the friendship of America. She knows your rectitude and elevation of spirit. It is in the fullest confidence that she is ready to work with you.

"I lift my glass, Mr. President, in your honor and in honor of Mrs. Wilson. I drink to the prosperity of the republic of the United States, our great friend of yesterday and of other days, of tomorrow and of all time."

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Use in England of horse flesh for food to such an extent that slaughtering regulations have been adopted was cited by the Federal Food Board today as indication of the necessary of continued conservation of meats in this country to help supply Europe's needs.

herds to their pre-war size is one of the paramount needs of the reconstruction period, the statement said, pointing out that this con be most speedily accomplished by increasing American exports of meats and fats.

LOADING SUPPLIES FOR RUSSIA

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Loading of two more vessels with cargoes for Russia and completion of arrangements for continued shipments through January and February by the United States-Russian Bureau, incorporated, was announced today by the War Trade Board. Three vessels already have sailed, carrying cargoes urgently needed in Siberia.

Private capital, acting on information furnished through the Russian Bureau, it was said, is financing most of the cargoes, which include materials for Czecho-Slovak relief and railway construction.

Department presented to Congress for enactment to provide that limited volunteering might go on.

He recalled the great opposition to the draft and how "through the insistence of the President, ably supported by the stalwart and aggressive leadership of Senator Chamberlain and Representative Kahn, in the respective Houses, the day was saved."

Referring to the selective service system as "the very essence of democracy" the General appraised the faults of the volunteer system.

"In its very nature it is an individualistic scheme dependent for its existence upon the spontaneous fervor of the people," he said. "It is a system which has an eye only to the raising of armies. Under it the test of patriotism is enlistment in the nation's fighting forces. It takes no account of the industrial life which must be maintained behind the battle front that armies may be fed, clothed and armed.

"It (the volunteer system) had its origin in the days of chivalry when war was not a business or a contest of industry or mechanics, but a battle of brawn, when armies could live largely upon the country as they advanced and a nation's fate decided upon the field of battle.

"It adheres to the doctrine that the chemist may be permitted to lay aside his researches and the trained mechanic his lathe, while the unskilled laborer and vagrant continue in their unproductive paths. It is the antithesis of the conservation the selective service promotes."

Corn Chokes Child to Death.

FULTON, Mo., Dec. 14.—Marvin, the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith, near here, died today as the result of getting a kernel of corn in his windpipe. A year ago another son of the same age died as the result of a fractured skull when he slipped on a stick while at play.

EAST SIDE MEN DIE FROM WOUNDS, RELATIVES LEARN

RAYMOND BOEHMER REPORTED MISSING

No St. Louis Deaths in Action in Today's Official List, but Several Appeared Yesterday.

The diminishing number of major casualties in the official casualty list is reflected in the absence, in today's record, of any name from St. Louis or neighboring places, under the heading "Killed in Action" or "Died From Wounds." There is a considerable list of St. Louis wounded, a number of whom are in the 354th Infantry, the Camp Funston regiment of the Eighty-ninth Division, containing the largest number of St. Louis drafted men. The Eighty-ninth was in action on the Meuse for the last three weeks of the war.

Notifications of two deaths from wounds, not yet appearing in the official list, have been received by relatives living in East Side towns.

Edwin Schuetz, 23 years old, of M Company, 310th Infantry, died Oct. 22 from wounds received in action, according to a notification to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schuetz of Lebanon, Ill. He worked as a coal miner before he was drafted last June, and had been in France only a month at the time of his death.

Adam Reibert, 23, of a machine-gun battalion, died Nov. 8 from wounds received in action, according to a notification to his sister, Mrs. Lawrence Brendle of Edwardsville. He had been in France only since August. He had planned to be married, after the war, to Mis Margaret Rettagen of Streator.

Sergt. Curt Wells, 28, of H Company, 354th, died Nov. 3 from wounds received in action, and was named in yesterday's list. His wife, Mrs. Lucille Wells, lives at 216 North Sixteenth street. Before being drafted in the fall of 1917, he was a leather sorter in a Brown shoe factory.

Two in 162nd Killed.

Anton A. Zurmuehlen, 32, of B Company, 162d, was killed in action Nov. 11, the day the armistice was signed, and was also in yesterday's list. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zurmuehlen of 1443 North Market street, and was drafted last July. He and his brother, Frank, formerly ran a barber shop at 2828 North Fourteenth street. Frank is now overseas in the Medical Corps.

Edward A. Villinger, 25, of the same company, was killed in action Nov. 3. He was the son of Mrs. Anna Villinger of 1425 Destrehan street, and was drafted in July. He was a paperhanger.

Wagoner Charles Jones, 26, of the Supply Company, 16th Infantry, died of pneumonia in France, according to a dispatch to his friend, Harry Diederichsen of 3634½ Lucky street. He enlisted in the regular army in Kansas City in 1916, and served on the Mexican border. He was formerly an electrician for the United Railways Co. here.

Paul F. Webster, 30, of H Company 809th (Negro) Pioneer Infantry, died of pneumonia Oct. 9, according to a notification received by his wife, Mrs. Manitta Webster of 4232 West Belle place. He was drafted in September, 1917, and was married in the same month. He was a graduate of a Texas college, and his mother, who lives in Waco, is, according to his wife, known as one of the wealthiest negroes in Texas. He had worked as a butler in West End homes.

Raymond Boehmer Missing.

Raymond C. Boehmer, 24, of I Company, 111th Infantry, has been missing since Nov. 11, the day the armistice was signed, according to a notification sent to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Boehmer of 4054 Lindell boulevard. They have cabled an older son, Lieut. Walter Boehmer of the 816th Pioneer Infantry, from whom they recently received a letter dated Nov. 16, at Verdun, in the belief that he may be able to locate his brother in a base hospital or determine that he has rejoined his command.

William C. Tiemann, 24, of E Company, 128th Infantry, is missing since Nov. 11, according to a notification to his wife, Mrs. Helen Tiemann of 4751 South Broadway. He was formerly a motorman on the Broadway line, and was drafted last June. The wife has received no word from him recently.

Gorge William Wipke, 26, of M Company, 354th, is reported missing in action since Sept. 24, in a notification to his sister, Mrs. Hannah Bunte of 3033 New Ashland place. He wrote Oct. 27 from a base hospital, however, that he had been ill there. He is a former employe of the Wagner Electric Co., and was drafted last March.

Peter P. Murphy, 24, of C Company, 354th, was wounded severely Oct. 27, as announced in a dispatch to his wife, Mrs. Florence Murphy of 4822A Greer avenue. He was employed as a paint mixer by the Campbell Glass and Paint Co., and was in the first draft. He has written that his wound was in the left foot.

Lawrence Lindeman, 24, of A Company, 354th, was wounded severely Oct. 27, according to a telegram to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Lindeman of 3356 South Grand avenue. He was formerly a traveling salesman for the Adams Chewing Gum Co., and was in the first draft. A brother, Waldemar, is in a California camp.

ELMER SMITH . . .

CORP. FRANCIS T. McGOWAN OF B Company, 356th Infantry, killed in action Nov. 5, was the son of Thomas McGowan of 1444 North Twenty-second street, and was in the April draft contingent.

Elmer W. Smith of K Company, 355th Inwantry, killed in action, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Smith of 5878 Ridge avenue, and his wife, Mrs. Viola Smith, lives at 4065 Manchester avenue.

City Employe Wounded.

Peter F. Schulz, 24, of the Machine Gun Battalion, 354th, was wounded severely Oct. 27, according to a notification to his sister, Mrs. Elsie Bruce of 2925 Michigan avenue. He formerly worked as watchman at the Baden Waterworks Station, and was drafted last April.

Oscar T. Lang, 22, of E Company, 354th, listed as wounded severely, has written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Lang of 1013 Rutger street, that he was wounded slightly, and expected to return to duty soon. He was employed by the Mermod-Jaccard & King Jewelry Co. before being drafted last April.

Mike Stecz, 26, of F Company, 354th, was wounded severely Oct. 26, his uncle, Alex Stecz of 301 Sidney street, stated. He was formerly a bartender in his uncle's saloon at the address given, and was in the first draft. He is a native of Russian Poland, where his parents were living at last accounts. He has written that he was gassed and wounded in the leg.

Daniel Higgins of F Company, 354th, was wounded severely Oct. 26, according to a telegram to his wife, Mrs. Angie Higgins of 1620 North Fourteenth street.

Eye Affected by Gas.

Alfred G. Wiegert, 26, of B Company, 354th, was wounded severely Nov. 1. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Wiegert of 2835 Ohio avenue. He was formerly a huckster, and was drafted last April. He has written his parents that he was wounded in October, and that one of his eyes was affected. Later he wrote of being gassed.

Carl Romeo Anderson, 30, of B Company, 354th, was wounded severely Nov. 1, his mother, Mrs. Hannah Anderson of 2507 Minnesota avenue, has been notified. He was formerly a house salesman for the Carleton Dry Goods Co., and was drafted last April. His wound was by shrapnel, in the head.

Corp. Charles Kunzman of F Company, 354th, was wounded severely Oct. 26, according to a telegram received by his sister, Mrs. Theresa Clacker of 5045 Tennessee avenue. He was in the first draft.

Charles Sebek, 26, of B Company, 356th Infantry, was wounded severely Nov. 3, according to a telegram to his wife, Mrs. Marie Sebek of 2709 South Thirteenth street. He was a cutter for the International Shoe Co. before being drafted in the first contingent. A brother, Frank, is in the service overseas.

Sergt. Jeremiah C. Brosnan Jr., 27, of F Company, 314th Engineers, Eighty-ninth Division, was wounded severely Nov. 1, according to a telegram to his father, living at 4517A Margaretta avenue. He was formerly a house salesman for the Jamieson Clothing Co., and was in the first draft contingent. His wound was in the left arm. A brother, Maurice, is in the Marines at an Eastern camp.

Corp. Ziegler Heard From.

Corp. Harris Ziegler of H Company, 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, who was officially reported missing since Oct. 2, and from whom his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Ziegler of 5666 Cabanne avenue, have not heard directly since the Argonne battle, is named in a letter written by Lieut. William Leahy to his wife, as having been sent to a hospital in France, suffering from shell shock. Lieut. Leahy said Corp. Ziegler fought beside him in the Argonne. The officer was wounded, but later made inquiry about Ziegler, and said he had been informed by another officer that Ziegler had been found.

Donald C. Thompson of B Company, 138th, has written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marc R. Thompson of 1376 Montclair avenue, that he was gassed in the Argonne battle, temporarily disabling his vocal chords. He said he expected to return to his company by Christmas.

Lawrence Webster of L Company, 138th, officially named as slightly wounded Sept. 28, has written to his mother, Mrs. Oella C. Webster of 519 South Clay avenue, Kirkwood, that he was shot through the hip while cleaning out a German machine-gun nest, and was in a hospital, but rejoined his company shortly before the end of hostilities.

John Devine, 25, of L Company, 138th, is named as missing in an official notification to his parents, Fireman and Mrs. Edward Devine of 4333 Shaw avenue, but they have received a letter written by him Nov. 14, saying he was gassed in the Argonne battle and was on his way to a convalescent camp. He was formerly a clerk for the Missouri Pacific.

Printer Is Wounded.

Sylvester S. Gregory, 20, of B Company, 138th, was wounded severely Sept. 26, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Gregory of 1816 North Twenty-third street, have been notified. He was a printer before entering the service.

John G. Allen, 21, of H Company, 138th, was wounded severely Sept. 28.

Frederick Herberger, 23, of L Company, 354th, a former clerk for the American Packing Co., has been wounded severely, his sister, Miss Frances Herberger of 3334 Iowa avenue, was notified.

Henry Feldman, 22, of C Company, 153d Infantry, was wounded severely Oct. 28, his father, Bernard Feldman of 4152 Papin street, has been notified. He was formedly employed by the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Lieut. Eugene R. Van Meter of the 357th Medical Corps, listed as wounded, degree undetermined, was wounded in the chest Sept. 12, according to a notification to his wife, living at 5810 Julian avenue. He has been placed in a hospital at Fort Des Moines, Io.

William J. Conners, 31, of Headquarters Company, Fifty-fourth Infantry, has written to his mother, Mrs. Anna Connors of 1515 Lynch avenue, East St. Louis, that he was wounded in the head and in both legs, Sept. 30. She has also received an official telegram saying he was wounded severely. For these reasons, Mrs. Conners believes an error in classification was made in yesterday's official list, which names her son as having died of disease. She has received no notification except that he was wounded. Connors, a former clerk for the Pennsylvania railroad, enlisted in the regular army in May, 1917.

Joseph Ellison, 22, of B Company, 166th Infantry, was wounded severely Oct. 17, according to a dispatch to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ellison of 3819 Cottage avenue. He was formerly a toolmaker, employed by the Davis Boring Tool Co., and was drafted last June. He has written that his shoulder was torn by shrapnel.

Joseph T. Dietrich, 25, of L Company, Fifty-ninth Infantry, wounded severely Oct. 26, has notified his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Dietrich of 1018 Cass avenue, that he has been returned to this country and placed in a hospital in Maryland. His wound is in his left hand, and he believes the hand is permanently disabled. He was formerly employed by the May-Stern Furniture Co. A brother, Frank, is in the service overseas.

Mechanic Sterling Robert Speirs, 26, of F Battery, 129th Field Artillery, was wounded severely Oct. 2, according to a notification to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Speirs of 6035 McPherson avenue. He enlisted B Troop, cavalry, in May, 1917, when the troop was called to Flat River, Mo., This troop was later merged into the 128th and 129th Artillery.

Artilleryman Wounded.

Corp. Eugene H. Mohl, 32, of D Company, Fifty-sixth Infantry, was wounded severely Nov. 2, according to a notification to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mohl of 3947 Kennerly avenue. He was drafted last spring, having formerly worked in East St. Louis.

William Jones, 28, of F Company, 365th (Negro) Infantry, listed today as wounded severely, has written to his wife, Mrs. Roberta Jones of 1425 Boismenue avenue, that he was wounded Nov. 11, the day of the signing of the armistice, and that he expected to be sent home soon.

John Eubanks Jr., formerly of A Company in the same negro regiment, has written to his father, a detective in the East St. Louis Police Department, that he suffered shell shock in August, was later gassed, and was subsequently transferred to the regimetnal band.

Corp. Ellis Sussman, 22, of H Company, 119th Infantry, listed as wounded, degree undetermined, has written to his brother, Hyman Sussman of 435 North Tenth street, East St. Louis, that he was gassed Aug. 28, but had recovered. He was formerly in the grocery business with his brother.

East Side Casualties.

Fred Uhter, 31, of M Company, 132d Infantry, listed as wounded, degree undetermined, has been in a hospital since Aug. 28, suffering from an injury in the groin. In letters to his father, Charles Uhter, 415 North Thirty-sixth street, East St. Louis, he said he was in a base hospital in England, but expected to be brought to a hospital in the United States. A brother, Louis Uhter of E Company, Fifty-fourth Infantry, also saw service in France.

David Sims of E Company, 363d Infantry, whose home is in Troy, Ill., near Edwardsville, was wounded Nov. 4, and is in a hospital in England, his relatives have been notified.

Peter Ardison, 24, son of Baptiste Ardison of Collinsville, was wounded Sept. 26, the father has been notified.

CONSTITUTION FOR GERMANY HAS BEEN DRAFTED

Commission Will Present Proposed Charter to Federated States for Their Approval.

U. S. AND ENGLAND USED AS MODELS

Meeting of the Reichstag Reported Called; Amsterdam Hears Time Will Be Given Later.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Friday, Dec. 13.—The commission appointed to make a preliminary draft of a national constitution has completed its deliberations and the department of the interior shortly will present the proposed charter to the German federated states for approval.

The new constitution, which is said to have been modeled after the American and English charters, provides for an executive more restricted in authority than the President of the United States.

The upper chamber, it is proposed, will be made up of delegates from the federated states while the lower house will be composed of general and popular representatives. Referendum is provided for and suffrage will be universal, direct, equal and secret.

By the Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 14.—Konstantin Fehrenbach, president of the Reichstag, has convoked a meeting of that assembly, reserving further indication of time and place of meeting, according to a report from Berlin.

Berlin dispatches early in the present week reported that the Ebert-Haase Government had issued an official denial of a report printed by the Tageblatt of Berlin that the Reichstag would be convened. President Fehrenbach is one of the leaders of the Centrist or Catholic party. He became president of the Reichstag last June.

Eisner Outlines Reforms He Intends to Work in Bavaria.

By the Associated Press.

MUNICH, Friday, Dec. 13.—Premier Eisner, at a meeting today of Independent Socialists, to discuss the coming elections, declared that he disapproved of the use of machine guns and hand grenades in putting down political opposition. He expressed a dislike for the acts of the Berlin revolutionary Government because right was a better weapon than might, adding:

"But if anybody dares to disturb revolutionary accomplishments, then it must be force against force."

The Bavarian leader announced his intention of taking the schools away from the supervision of the churches and putting them into the hands of the parents, teachers and Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils. He said the church must be permitted freedom, but he would not tolerate religious compulsion or any measures against those thinking otherwise than the church members.

Eisner claimed that he had forced Dr. Solf and Mathias Erzberger to leave the Berlin Foreign Office. He declared he would welcome the internment by France of the entire German armistice commission, including Herr Erzberger.

Responsibility for the war, the Premier continued, must be laid on Germany, because she had operated abroad not only with money, but even with the use of poisonous bacilli.

He assailed the Bavarian and German press, which, he said, was more dangerous, more devilish and more poisonous than alcohol. Although a newspaper man for 20 years, he advised his hearers not to read the newspapers.

Solf Resignation Puts German Cabinet Between Two Dilemmas.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—The resignation of Dr. Solf, the Foreign Minister, which has not yet been accepted, places the majority Socialist members of the German Government between two dilemmas.

"Virtually all the trained officials of the Foreign Office, it is learned, have served notice that they will leave if Dr. Solf goes. Premier Ebert and Herr Scheidemann are said to be fully aware that it is impossible to replace these officials at this time, and that their resignations would disorganize the foreign work of the Government."

Herr Haase and Barth, two of the minority Socialist members of the Cabinet, however, insist that Dr. Solf shall go, irrespective of consequences. Their opinion is said to reflect the attitude of the Independent Socialists and the Spartacus group. An official who is closely informed as to the internal situation in the Cabinet, said today to the correspondent: "Ebert and Scheidemann do not mean to be ignorant to the wants of the majority of the people behind them, but the Socialists always have opposed government by force and they cling to this doctrine. They have refused to employ force as being inconsistent with Socialist theories. Hence, they are powerless and I am afraid they will remain powerless."

Prussian Election Eight Days After the Assembly Election.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 14.—The Prussian Government announces officially, according to a dispatch from Berlin, that elections to the Constituent Assembly of Prussia shall be held eight days after the elections for the German Constituent Assembly.

The German Government has not yet set a definite date for elections for a Constituent or National Assembly. Unofficial reports have said they might be held early in February.

Spartacus Group Demands Arrest of De Facto Government.

By the Associated Press.

MUNICH, Thursday, Dec. 12.—Spartacism appeared in Munich openly and officially for the first time last evening, when "the bloody events in Berlin and the guilt of the Government" were discussed ta a big mass meeting. By a small majority the crowd adopted a resolution calling for the immediate creation of a tribunal of workmen and soldiers, the resignation of Premier Ebert, Philipp Scheidemann, Mathias Erzberger, Dr. Solf and "other opponents," and the arrest of Scheidemann, Ebert and others connected with the "blood bath of Berlin."

The resolution also urged the arrest and trial by the Berlin Council of Field Marshal von Hinderburg, the transference of German army headquarters to the control of the Soldiers' and Workers' Councils, and the creation of a red army by the army of all workmen. It also called for energetic propaganda of world revolution, appeals to the proleriat in all Entente countries, and the transference of all law making powers to the Soldiers' and Workers' Council.

Premier Eisner visited the meeting and defied the Spartacan leaders. His speech was received quitly.

Prussian Guards Remove Red Flag From Potsdam Town Hall.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 14.—Soldiers of the Prussian guard have removed the red flag from the town hall at Potsdam, where the German Imperial palace is located, according to a Berlin dispatch today.

PROPOSAL TO ANNEX RHINELAND TO FRANCE

Secret Party at Work to Arrange Alignment on Same Basis Accorded to Alsace-Lorraine.

By the Associated Press.

COLOGNE, Wednesday, Dec. 11.—A new element has been injected into the complicated political situation in the Rhineland by the organization of a secret party which is working for the annexation of this German territory to France. Overtures will be made to the French Government, it is said, to take the Rhinenland into France on the same basis as Alsace-Lorraine.

Just how much strength this party has it is impossible to say since all its operations had been conducted under secrecy, but even its opponents admit that it is important enough to be considered as a factor in the muddle growing out of the revolution.

There is throughout the Rhineland a double-headed government composed of revolutionists on one side and officials of the imperialistic regime on the other, who for the moment are working more or less together for the common good.

To add to the complicated situation there are, besides the party which desires annexation to France, at least two with distinctly different ideals. One of these is composed of liberal democrats and Socialists, who want to see the establishment of a great republic which will include all of Bavaria and Germany with Berlin as the capital.

The second group is composed of the Catholic or Centrist party, which is said to desire a Rhenish Westphalian republic.

Mentioned as President.

Baron von Schorlemer, former Governor of the Rhineland and at one time a member of the Prussian ministry, is mentioned as the possible President of the projected republic.

Those who oppose this scheme characterize the Minister as a hangover from the old Prussian system and a reactionary of the worst kind. The Centrist party seems to hold the power in the country districts where the peasants are strongly Catholic. The Socialists claim to have the upper hand in Cologne.

Outside of these three parties there are many people who no doubt would be glad to see the re-establishment of the German empire on a pre-war basis, although such a project is not advocated openly.

The Revolutionary Committee of Cologne, which now is known as the Workmen's Committee, consists of 40 members. The conservative Socialists have 25 members, while the rest are Radical Socialists. The body originally was called the Soldiers' and Workmen's Committee, but the military part of the title has been dropped. Five Radicals and five Conservatives have been selected from the 40 members to form an Executive Committee.

The members of the committee were elected by the revolutionists early in November and their selection was ratified by the Government in Berlin. The members of the committee have no connection with the Kiel naval mutineers who came here Nov. 7 and, after raising followers, released several thousand criminals from the prisons with disastrous results. A large number of persons were murdered by these "revolutionists," who were finally subdued through the combined efforts of the Workmen's Committee and the regular city officials.

Connected with the committee is Charles Lesimple, former American Vice Consul at Cologne, who is acting as the civil governor for the revolutionary committee. Lesimple was a member of the German mission to the Jamestown Exposition.

Responsibility of Committee.

The Cologne Workmen's Committee is answerable to the revolutionary Government in Berlin and under that has control of all committees west of the Rhine. There is in this district about 20 cities, including Duren, Bonn and Aix-La-Chapelle.

A majority of this committee is working for a greater German republic, and so long as this is possible they oppose annexation to France. However, rather than see the establishment of a separate Rheinish Westphalian republic there are said to be some members of the committee who would support the secret party favoring annexation.

The members of the new Government complain that they are not getting support from the Entente after having overthrown Prussian rule, so they say, at the request of President Wilson. They declare that the allies now refuse to do business with the revolutionists and thereby are strengthening the hands of the old Government. In this connection it was declared that the committee had been informed by the International Armistice Commission through the Burgomaster that President Wilson had refused to negotiate with the revolutionists.

Asked for an explanation of the curious state of affairs which permitted a hybrid government here, the committee stated that at the beginning of the revolution there were no soldiers here, and therefore it had been impossible to replace the old officials at that time. Later, when it would have been possible, the troops had moved east of the Rhine under the terms of the armistice. The committee wishes to maintain order in the city, and therefore left the old officials in the posts they had held.

PREFER RETURN WITH REGIMENT

Deputy Sheriff R. O. Shepherd of East St. Louis yesterday received a letter from his son, Lyle Shepherd, a gunner in the 128th (St. Louis) Field Artillery, in which the soldier said that several members of the regiment who are in hospitals have declined the offer to be returned to the United States, saying they wanted to wait and return with the regiment.

Shepherd has been in the hospital two months, suffering from shell shock and gas poisoning. He said he and six others of the 128th were discharged from the hospital Nov. 7 and started to join their regiment. They reached the rest camp Nov. 11, the day of the armistice, and inasmuch as fighting had ceased and their regiment was some distance away, he and his companions were ordered back to the hospital, where they still are.

RED CROSS DRIVE COMMENCES HERE WITH 'LANDSLIDE'

Enrollment on First Day Not Computed, but Larger Than Expected Despite Weather Conditions.

'VOLUNTEER' SLIP TO ALL WHO GIVE TODAY

Readiness to Give Manifested Particularly in Large Factories Reported by Workers Generally.

Enrollment in the Red Cross yesterday, the first day of the drive to get 500,000 members for the St. Louis chapter, was heavier than had been expected. Campaign leaders last night said it was "a landslide," despite the fact that weather conditions were not favorable, and that some of the initial plans went wrong because of influenza regulations. No effort was made to compute yesterday's total enrollment after the stations closed at 9 p. m.

Today is the second and last day for voluntary enrollment. Soliciting of members will begin tomorrow and continue through this week. Those who join before tomorrow are given a lapel slide bearing the word "Volunteer," in addition to the regular button and window flag.

It had been planned to have Boy Scouts visit every residence yesterday morning and leave a card telling the location of the enrolling station in the respective precincts, but weather and influenza made this impossible. Neighborhood children were enlisted, however, and most of cards had been delivered last night.

Factory Enrollment Large.

The enrollment of employes of large industrial establishments was great, it was said. Nearly all of those places which had been canvassed in the last few days had 100 per cent enrollment. It was impossible to finish last night computing the number of memberships obtained in this way, it was said at headquarters.

Workers generally commented on the ease with which members were induced to enroll. In most cases those approached were merely waiting for the opportunity. This was attributed to the general feeling of thankfulness for the end of fighting, and to the Christmas holiday spirit.

Booths will not be opened in the downtown district until Wednesday, it was announced yesterday. Monday and Tuesday will be devoted entirely to a house-to-house canvass and to finishing the industrial canvass. Women and children will be used almost exclusively in canvassing the residence districts.

A majority of the pastors have agreed to speak in behalf of the drive in their sermons today and this evening. Four-minute men will speak at the theaters and moving picture houses.

Barracks Band Parades.

The Jefferson Barracks Band paraded the downtown streets yesterday in behalf of the campaign, and a number of drum corps have arranged to parade every day this week. A Red Cross song has been composed by William John Hall and D. Arthur Bowman, and will be sung on street corners by choral clubs. Slides bearing the lines also will be exhibited in movie houses for the audiences to sing. The words follow:

Between 80 and 100 booths will be opened downtown Wednesday, including those in 21 large office buildings, which will be in charge of the Catholic Woman's League. Those at the Ninth street Postoffice will be in charge of the D. A. R. The Women's Committee of the Council of National Defense will supervise the house-to-house canvass.

The Missouri Tuberculosis Association, which heretofore has had an an annual sale of Red Cross seals, has foregone the sale this year, and is helping in the Red Cross drive. The seals, however, will be distributed to new members of the Red Cross.

Memberships are from $1 to $100 each for a year, depending on the kind of membership taken. The St. Louis Chapter includes, in addition to the city, East St. Louis and St. Louis County, excepting Webster Groves, which has a local chapter. The drive in East St. Louis started Tuesday, and will end day after tomorrow. The campaign will be started in St. Louis County tomorrow.

ALLIES' CONFERENCES TO BE RESUMED NEXT WEEK

Paris Paper Says Lloyd George and Balfour Are Expected in Monday or Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—Preliminary diplomatic conferences among the Allies will be resumed early next week, according to Le Journal today.

Premier Lloyd George and British Foreign Secretary Balfour are expected on Monday or Tuesday, the newspaper says, while Premier Orlando and Foreign Minister Sonnino of Italy will arrive with King Victor Emmanuel, Dec. 19.

ANARCHIST LOPEZ LOSES FIGHT

U. S. Court Refuses Habeas Corpus and Spaniard Will Be Deported.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—By the decision of the Federal District Court here today, a writ of habeas corpus procured in the interest of Frank R. Lopez, a Spaniard, residing in East Dedham, Mass., and being held at Ellis Island as a dangerous anarchist, has been dismissed and Lopez will be deported in accordance with the orders of the immigration authorities.

According to evidence submitted by the Government, Lopez is secretary and treasurer "of the group of philosophical anarchists," and for years has been the agent in America of the followers of Ferrer, who maintained an international headquarters in Barcelona, Spain.

Gov. Gardner Visits Washington.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Gov. Gardner of Missouri was here today on his way to Annapolis, where he will attend a three-day conference of Governors opening Monday. General reconstruction problems will be discussed. Gov. Gardner will preside at Tuesday's session. He is accompanied by Mrs. Gardner.

ARMISTICE PERIOD EXTENDED TO THE MORNING OF JAN. 17

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Friday, Dec. 13.—The German armistice has been extended until 5 o'clock on the morning of Jan. 17 and the allies have notified Germany that they reserve the right to occupy the neutral zone east of the Rhine from the Cologne bridgehead to the Dutch frontier, according to a dispatch from Treves.

The delegates of the various countries have been in conference at Treves. This prolongation, it is added, will be further extended until the conclusion of a preliminary peace, subject to the consent of the allied Governments.

The message states that the following condition has been added to the armistice agreement on Nov. 11.

"The supreme command of the allies reserve the right should it consider this advisable and in order to obtain fresh guarantees to occupy the neutral zone on the right bank of the Rhine north of the Cologne bridgehead as far as the Dutch frontier. Notice of this occupation will be given six days previously."

C. OF C. SEEKS CHANGE IN STATE INHERITANCE TAX LAW

Preparing Amendment to Be Submitted to Legislature Exempting Bequests to Charitable Institutions.

An attempt will be made in the coming session of the State Legislature to amend the State inheritance tax law, which was passed at the last session.

The Charities Committee of the Chamber of Commerce points out that while other States always have recognized the need of private charitable institutions under present economical conditions, and have always exempted them from all forms of taxation, Missouri levies quite a heavy tax on bequests to charitable institutions. As the law stands now, bequests to charitable institutions left in trust with some outside person are exempted from the inheritance tax, but if the bequest is made to the institution directly an inheritance tax will be levied against it.

The Charities Committee has asked Joseph W. Folk, counsel for the Chamber, to draft an amendment. George D. Markham is chairman of the Charities Committee and Scott R. DeKins secretary.

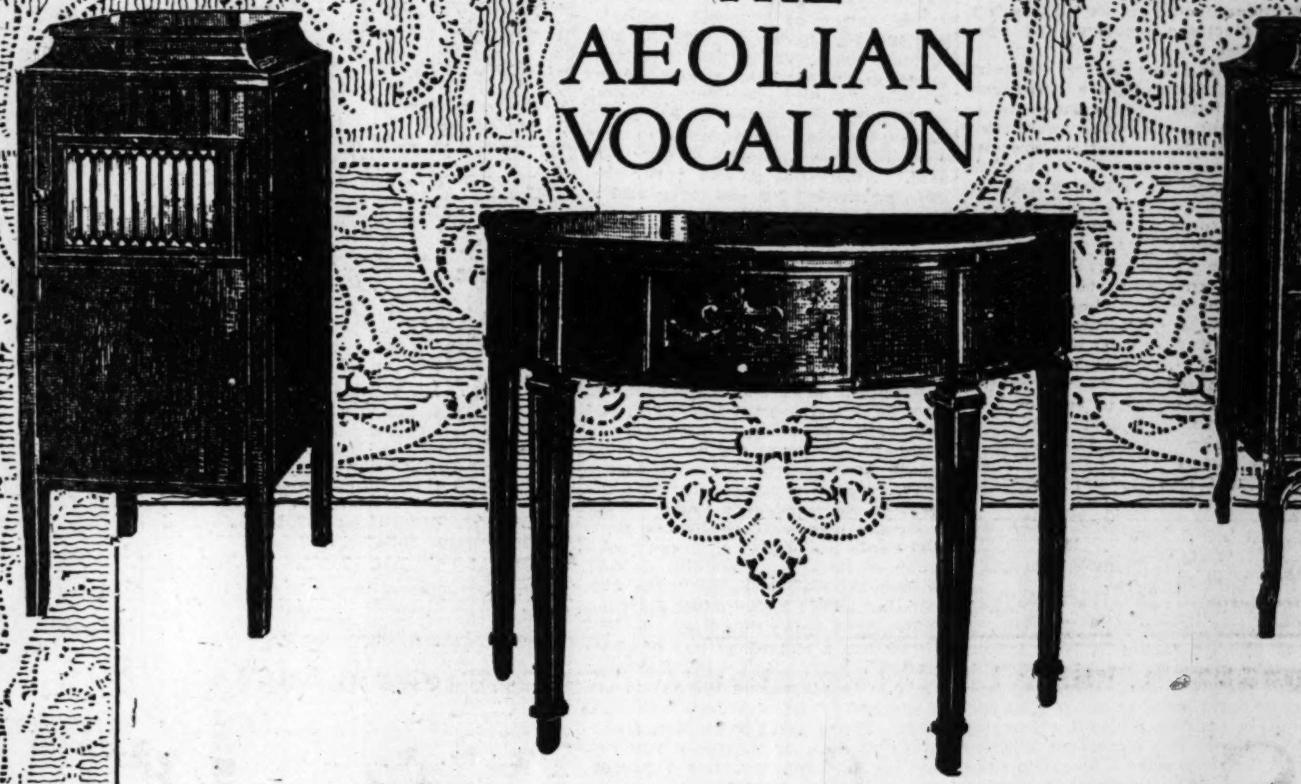
THE AEOLIAN VOCALION



I went to buy a phonograph

I found one—and something infinitely greater

BEFORE I purchased I looked at many phonographs. Fine instruments though some of them were, the differences seemed trifling. All looked alike. In playing, one did, perhaps, a little better with instrumental music; another gave a shade more perfect reproduction of the human voice.

And then, at last, my quest led me to one phonograph—and all the others faded from my mind.

It was a very beautiful instrument to look at—this phonograph. Character and distinction showed in every line; in its rare depth of finish was suggested the richness of old mahogany.

A record was put in and I heard sounds I never dreamed the phonograph could reproduce. Sweet, full richness of tone, vibrant with the very quality of life. Deep voices of the orchestra other phonographs had but meagerly portrayed. Delicate tonal-tints that marked the subtle difference of instrument and instrument. All untinged with any hint of phonographic stridency.

The demonstrator asked me if I wished to play it? What could he mean? How could one play a phonograph?

And then a miracle of music happened. I became the most talented and versatile musician the wildest flight of imagination could picture.

I played the flute—and reveled in the joy of expressing my inmost music-feeling in its liquid mellow tone. I played the violin—and all the wistful string-beauty of that wizard instrument responded to my mood and wish. I played the French horn, the clarinet, the 'cello. I whistled. I even sang—first with a full-throated baritone, and then with a marvelous and bell-like tenor.

Did I really do these things? No! But that wonderful phonograph did them under my control: so utterly, so completely reflecting my spirit, that the joy was close akin to actual production—as though I myself were sounding the very notes.

And so I found the phonograph that gave to me, at last, the means to voice the latent music-instinct of my soul.

The Vocalion

The Graduola—the most important musical invention since the phonograph itself was patented. The Graduola is a device for tone-control. Its operation is as simple as the opening and closing of one's hand. It enables one to shade the tone—now reducing it to the softest whisper, now swelling it to full fortissimo.

The New Sound-Box—produces an entirely new character and quality of phonograph tone. Instead of having the usual thin, nasal phonograph tone, the Vocalion tone is full, rich and mellow. The lower tones of different instruments are for the first time suitably reproduced by this new Sound-Box.

The Symphonetic Tone Chamber—Due to this patented tone chamber, all the delicate distinctions between instruments are preserved. While the relation between upper and lower tones are so perfectly maintained as to give an entirely new "balance" to the performance.

OPPOSED BY MANY OF CHURCH LEADERS

Enemy Efforts to Stimulate Race Troubles Among American Negroes Ceased Only When Denounced by Congress of Leaders.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The story of how enemy propagandists used German Lutheran pastors to preach love for the fatherland and devotion to its cause, and tried in vain to stir up negroes in the United States with reports that, if Germany won, part of this country would be assigned exclusively to them, was told today in the Senate committee investigating propaganda, by Capt. George B. Lester of the army intelligence service. The witness also continued his testimony of yesterday seeking to show "pro-German, anti-English and anti-American" policies of William Randolph Hearst's newspapers, as directed by William Bayard Hale, Hearst correspondent in Berlin, after breaking of relations with Germany. The hearing will be resumed Tuesday, when several men whose names have been mentioned by witnesses during the inquiry, including Samuel Untermyer of New York, will be heard.

Some German Lutheran preachers spread the doctrines promoted by the German Government both before and after this country entered the war, Capt. Lester declared, and a few who continued these utterances after joining the army are now in prison. Many church leaders recognized the pro-German tendencies of the ministers and tried assiduously to have them removed, the officer explained.

The efforts to stir up race troubles among American negroes failed, said Capt. Lester, but it persisted until a congress of negro leaders, in July last, formally recognized the propaganda and denounced the movement.

One cablegram from Hale at Berlin to the New York American, read to the committee, was interpreted by Capt. Lester as proving that the German Government did not regard the notorious Zimmerman note, disclosing a movement to involve Mexico and the United States in war, "as a frame-up by the British."

Describing unsuccessful efforts of German propagandists among American negroes, the witness said word was passed among the negro recruits that if Germany won and occupied the United States a portion of the country would be turned over to them exclusively.

Testifies of Preachings.

Before the United States entered the war, the witness testified, hundreds of pastors in Lutheran churches preached sermons expressing the hope that Germany would win. He told the committee that the German Government for many years had subsidized the Krupp Institute, a Lutheran theological seminary, graduates of which went to all parts of the world to preach in favor of Germany, with their expenses paid by the German Government, he said.

The investigation by the Intelligence Department, he said, shows that there is an issue in the Lutheran Church of America now as to whether the German language or the English shall be used.

In his story of the work of Germans among the negroes, the witness said, the propaganda became so annoying that a conference of leading negroes was called for in July, 1918, in Washington and a movement immediately started through the Committee on Public Information to offset it. As a result, he added, the activity of the German agents soon ceased.

Capt. Lester, in appearing before the committee yesterday, testified as to operations of the German propaganda system in the United States through which valuable information was forwarded to Berlin and through which Berlin directed the spreading broadcast of German doctrines.

Hale's Cablegrams Read.

Cablegrams from William Bayard Hale to the New York American late in 1916, and early in 1917, were read by Capt. Lester to support his assertions that Hale's utterances were "pro-German, anti-English and anti-American."

Many of these messages were sent after the severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany, through the German wireless to the Tuckerton, N. J., wireless station. They sought to give the German attitude toward the United States and toward President Wilson's notes. Lester selected them among the pile of dispatches submitted by request of Senator Wolcott.

Referring to the Hearst papers, Senator Nelson inquired:

"Was this the only American newspaper service which got the use of the German wireless?"

"There was no other that I know of," the witness replied.

Lester opened his testimony today by referring to an attack on his statement published this morning by the New York American and distributed by the Universal Service, a Hearst organization. He reminded the committee that he made no statement yesterday that Edward Lyell Fox, an American writer, who was on the German Government's payroll, was in the employ of the Hearst organization. "But that Fox did receive credentials from Merrill (then manager of Hearst's New York American), that he received letters from Gustav Schweppendick, the Hearst manager in Berlin, and that he wrote articles for the New York American and that these articles were published in the American."

Lester stated further that he had documents showing why the International News Service, a Hearst institution, was barred from cable facilities by the British Government in 1916, and the reason for restoration of this service. He said he would present the evidence if the committee asked for it.

Calls Wilson's Idea Confusing.

One telegram from Hale to the New York American, dated March 1, 1917, after the severance of relations, said:

"Precisely what is Mr. Wilson's idea armed neutrality present day unknown here. Thus suddenly to assert rights of neutrals apparently against Germany, after having two years submitted British pretensions rule seas, confuses European minds. President's idea arm merchant ships arouses profound astonishment, as arming merchants undoubtedly places them in category of combatants, which legitimate prey."

Another cablegram, dated Jan. 13, 1917, referring to one of President Wilson's notes, said the German impression was that, while in truth it was "more decent in phraseology, accusation having now degenerated into querulous recrimination, core of note reiterates denial willingness to discuss peace except on terms ridiculously impossible."

Capt. Lester read from another message sent by Hale, addressed to the New York American, dated Feb. 12, 1917, purporting to give the German view of President Wilson's action in severing diplomatic relations with Germany. "Wilson's profession early peace quick," said the message, "was decisive factor decision invoke ultimate measures especially in this fact: Germany had informed him desired nothing beyond swift termination conflict without victory of aggrandizement. President insolent retort by severance diplomatic relations universally interpreted here as result of personal favoritism England which, so often before displayed, has awaited final hour deal what intended be fatal stroke to Germany."

Senator Sterling read into the record a number of editorials from Hearst papers and produced cartoons which he sought to show by questioning Capt. Lester, were "pro-German, anti-English and anti-American." A cartoon published April 16, 1917, 10 days after the United States declared war, pictured John Bull asking an American army officer, "Are you training these boys to fight for me over here?" and receiving the officer's reply, "They are trained to fight for the American nation only."

Cartoon Effect Interpreted.

Capt. Lester declared the object of this was to convey the thought "that when our army was raised and drilled it should be used only within the United States and to discourage shipment of troops to the allies."

Senator Nelson interjected: "That was at the time when there was an agitation to keep the National Guard from leaving the United States."

An editorial from the New York American of April 11, 1917, five days after the declaration of war, "but before the passage of the espionage act," as Senator Sterling explained, urged Congress to prevent the sending of food, munitions, supplies and money to Europe.

Senator Sterling read from another Hearst editorial published shortly after the United States entered the war, advising that war would soon end in Europe and that the United States should expend its energies and money for a defense of its own territory.

"If every Government official and every person in the United States of the age of 18 years and upward had read that, they would have all quit," said Capt. Lester.

"And there would have been no unconditional surrender," said Senator Sterling.

"There would have been an unconditional surrender of the United States to Germany," the witness replied.

With reference to the negro incident, Capt. Lester said that negroes in many communities had been subsidized by the German agents to spread pro-German propaganda. Von Reiswitz, a German consular agent at Chicago, had charge of it and he was aided by German Minister von Eckhardt at Mexico City, who, the witness said, spread propaganda among the Mexicans and half-breeds in the border states.

A message from Dr. Feuhr, the German propagandist, to the Foreign Office was read as follows:

"International News Service requests early wireless reply concerning proposition submitted by radiogram last Friday.

German View of Zimmerman Note.

A message from Hale to the New York American, which was not read, informed the paper that the disclosures made by the expose of the Zimmerman note that Germany planned an intrigue against the United States through Mexico, by which the latter country would be given territory from the United States, was regarded in Germany as a failure on the part of Zimmerman.

Maj. E. Lowry Humes, acting as the committee's representative, read into the record excerpts from the by-laws of the German University League, said by other witnesses to have been used as an agency for spreading propaganda by Count von Bernstorff, the former German Ambassador. The by-laws showed the purpose was to "strengthen the regard for Germany" in this country "and to correct misinformation about Germany."

E. Waymith Kirklan, a representative of the Chicago Tribune, appeared before the committee to explain a compilation of excerpts from editorials appearing in the Tribune before the United States went to war with Germany. Senator Nelson of Minnesota requested several days ago that some of the excerpts be placed in the record, but that has not been done.

Kirklan said the compilation was by attorneys representing Henry Ford, the Detroit manufacturer, who has a suit pending against the Tribune, and that the apparent purpose was that the compilation would reach prospective jurors. Kirklan did not object to its being made a part of the record, but said he desired the committee to know by whom it was compiled.

MRS. OTT RE-MATED, ISIS GETS NO CREDIT

Former "Reincarnated Princess" Wife of Artist Becomes Bride of Robert Johnston Jr.

Isis, ancient Egyptian goddess of love, will get no credit for the mating of Robert Johnston Jr., of 5111 Raymond avenue and Mrs. Jane Ott, 4515 Holly avenue, who were married yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Ott having participated in a previous match of Isis' making that failed to turn out well.

She was married in 1910 to Ralph Chesley Ott, an artist, and the couple announced soon after that she was a reincarnation of Princess Amneris, and he of a humble artisan near her father's place. They had lived and loved on the banks of the Nile 5000 years ago until Father Pharaoh discovered his daughter and his lowly subject feeding sweetmeats to the crocodiles one summer evening, they said. After that it was "over the burning sands" for the lover and a chaperon for the Princess.

However, the good goddess Isis had kept them in mind, they said, and when Ralph Ott of Springfield, Mo., met Miss Jane Schaufert of St. Louis, it was merely a reunion of Princess and artisan, personally conducted by Isis. The goddess, it seemed, concluded she had done enough, for in 1912 Mrs. Ott sued for divorce, alleging that her mate had broken the divine spell by hurling a coffee percolator at her, and striking her in the face with a napkin in the presence of company. After that she went on the vaudeville stage.

Johnston is treasurer of the General Paper Stock Co. and doesn't take much stock in reincarnation, he told a Post-Dispatch reporter. He also announced that his wife had disposed of her holdings in that line.

"That is a ridiculous line of chatter," he said. "All that Egyptian bunk is forgotten, so far as we are concerned. Ott got her into that mess. There won't be an reincarnated Princesses, or whatever you call 'em, in our family. I'm Johnston, and she is Hrs. Johnston. She never did believe any of that stuff."

When it was recalled that Isis, in Egyptian mythology, was the daughter of Keb and Nut, Johnston was uncertain about Keb, but intimated he wouldn't be a bit surprised about the rest. "Anyhow, all that old business is dead. Mrs. Johnston's ideas and mine are absolutely the same on the subject," he said.

There was nothing mystical about the atmosphere at the home of the bride's parents last night. Johnston's touring car stood before the door, and some of the guests were doing the latest step to an air played by a perfectly modern phonograph. The two were married by the Rev. John W. McIvor, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, at the minister's home.

BADER OMITS NAME OF DOERR FROM LIST OF CHOSEN AIDS

Tells Inquisitive Circuit Judges He May Give Deputy Clerkship to Fred Buehlau.

The name of Adam Doerr, who opposed Nat Goldstein for the Republican nomination for Clerk of the Circuit Court, was not on the list of appointments submitted yesterday to the Circuit Judges in general term by Herman Bader, recently elected Clerk of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes. Doerr is Clerk in Division No. 10. When Bader was asked by the Judges why he had not named a Clerk for Division 10, he replied that he had not decided whether to give the job to Doerr or Fred Buehlau of 2631 Cherokee street.

Henry Luecke, who was discharged as Chief Deputy Clerk by Henry C. Echterhoff, former Clerk of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, because he ran against Echterhoff for the nomination at the last primary, was appointed Chief Deputy by Bader. The Judges confirmed his appointment, also the appointment of Walter Tufford and G. F. Schlingmann, Clerks in Divisions 12 and 11. Action on the appointment of Gates A. Halpin and Robert F. Scott as Deputy Clerks was deferred.

Circuit Clerk Goldstein submitted 53 appointments, all of which were confirmed. George P. Vierheller was named to succeed C. O. Eames in a $100-a-month job. Adolph Troll was reappointed acting Chief Deputy. He is holding down the job of Charles W. Graves, now a Corporal in the tank service in France. Graves' wife was appointed a typist.

Among those reappointed by Goldstein are five members of the Republican City Committee: Gabriel Roth, Elmer Moone, Louis Becker, Robert E. Moore and August Otting.

HOUSE VOTES FOR FLAT SALARY OF $7500 FOR FEDERAL JUDGES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—As finally passed by the House yesterday, the bill for increasing the salaries of Federal Judges was shorn of the sliding scale provision and amended to provide for a flat salary of $7500 for all District Judges, an increase of $1500 over the present pay. Had the measure gone through in the form reported by the Judiciary Committee of the House, the salary of the Judge of the Eastern District of Missouri would have been fixed at $8500 and some Judges in districts of large population would have received $10,000.

An amendment was adopted to include the Judges of Courts of Claims in those entitled to the increase. The same salary, $7500, was fixed for them. For Federal Circuit Judges the salary provided by the bill is $8500.

The measure retains the provision empowering the President to appoint an additional Judge in any district where he finds that the sitting Judge having passed the age of 70 years is mentally or physically unable to perform the duties of the office efficiently. The bill now goes to the Senate.

15,000 BEING RELEASED DAILY FROM U. S. CAMPS

824,000 at Home and 141,915 Men and Officers Abroad Designated for Discharge, Gen. March Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Demobilization of the military forces at home is gaining in momentum, Gen. March, Chief of Staff, announced today, with approximately half of the 1,700,000 men in the home camps on Nov. 11 specifically designated for early discharge.

Reports to the War Department, Gen. March said, indicate a rate of discharge of about 15,000 men a day, which will be doubled when demobilization is in full progress. The list of designated troops as given out by the Chief of Staff shows that of the combat divisions, which are to be demobilized last, 15,000 men already have been elected for early discharge.

In addition to the figures for the troops at home, March said that 5653 officers and 135,262 men of the expeditionary forces up to Dec. 12 had been designated for return, and of these 1373 officers and 30,750 men already have sailed for home.

Designated for Release.

The troops designated for release from camps in the United States now total 824,000 men in addition to 17,203 officers already discharged, and embrace the following classes: Depot brigades, development battalions and replacement units, 332,000; industrial furloughs, 18,000; divisional troops, 15,000; corps and army troops, 42,000; coast artillery, 38,000; engineers, 42,000; medical corps, 3000; ordnance, 4000; quartermaster, 6000; United States guards, 26,000; military aeronautics, 13,000; spruce production section, 20,000; tank corps, 7000; chemical warfare, 7000; coal miners, 6000; special service units, 10,000; student army training corps, 160,000; officers' training schools, 30,000; troops attached to local boards, 3000, and Porto Rico troops, 12,000.

Demobilization of officers is proceeding more rapidly than is the case with the men. Gen. March said 17,203 officers had been honorably discharged since the armistice was signed.

Summarizing the flow of returning troops from France, Gen. March said a total of 5653 officers and 135,262 men had been designated for return by Gen. Pershing up to Dec. 12. Of that number 1373 officers and 30,703 men have actually sailed from France.

In the list of units designated for early return from France given out by Gen. March, the following, including 124 oficers and 4013 men, have not been previously mentioned: Company E, 319th Engineers of the Eighth (regular division; the Second, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Heavy Mobile Ordnance Repair Shop Units; the Fourth and Fifth Anticraft Machine Gun Battalions, and Companies D, E, F, G, H, I and K of the Second Engineers.

Universal Training.

Gen. March said the War Department was not at present prepared to make public anything as to plans which may be recommended for universal military training. His remark was prompted by a published report that the General Staff would ask for nine months' training of men in their nineteenth year.

The Chief of Staff set at rest rumors that the Eighty-second Division (Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee) had suffered unusually heavy casualties. A report from the division, dated Nov. 13, two days after fighting ended, Gen. March said recorded full strength of approximately 27,000 officers and men.

The record of this division shows that it entered the line in the Argonne Forest, Oct. 6, pressing forward across the Aerie River until Oct. 29, after which date there is nothing in the War Department to indicate that it was in action.

Summarizing the record of the Ninety-first Division (Pacfic Coast), Gen. March said it joined the British forces in Flanders early in October, and on Nov. 1, advanced six kilometers on the Scheldt line against intense rifle and machine gun fire. Nov. 3 and 4 it did patrol duty on the Scheldt front and on the fifth was withdrawn to rest billets.

TWO BANK ROBBERS SENTENCED

Indeterminate Term for Men Who Robbed Madison Institution.

An indeterminate sentence in the Southern Illinois penitentiary at Chester was imposed yesterday on "Big Gus" Zeidler and Alexander MacKean, convicted of having robbed the Tri-City State Bank of Madison, Ill., of $17,384.25 on May 16, by Judge Gillham in Madison County Circuit Court at Edwardsville.

The Judge denied a motion for a new trial and said he hoped the penitentiary Warden would keep the two men until they had reformed.

BRITISH 'LABOR PARTY' ATTACKED BY PREMIER

Lloyd George, in Final Speech of Campaign, Says Pacifists and Bolsheviks Run It.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 14, via Montreal.—Premier Lloyd George wound up his speech-making campaign last night at Camberwell by attacking the name "Labor Party" because it did not represent all the labor of the United Kingdom. The party represented only a small part of labor, whose votes, he declared, would very largely be cast for the Government.

The Labor party, the Premier continued, was not being run by real working men, but by pacifists and pure and simple Bolsheviks. It would not be safe to trust the destinies of a great empire to the Labor party until it was able to overthrow this clique.

The Premier's challenge to the Labor party was taken up promptly by the laborites. John R. Clynes, former Food Minister, speaking at Nottingham, declared that the Labor party was the same party which had decided two years ago to support Lloyd George. The only difference was that it was larger. He admitted that it was true in some cases that some members of the party took extreme views, which, however, he did not share. The extremists, he said, had only occasional influence.

Former Premier Asquith addressed eight meetings in East Fife and was heckled at all of them. He was given votes of confidence, however, at all places except Lady-Bank, where the votes were equal.

Arthur Henderson, the Labor leader, declared in an interview that nobody knew better than Premier Lloyd George that the Labor party, in conjunction with the Trades Union Congress, was the only party representing organized workers. There was no evidence in proof of the Premier's assertion that the Labor party was Bolsheviki. On the contrary Henderson said, he could produce ample evidence that the Labor party sought as earnestly as he for the triumph of democratic principles.

John MacLean, the Russian Bolshevik Consul in Glasgow, who was imprisoned at Edinburgh last spring for speeches hindering recruiting, made the first election campaign appearance in Glasgow yesterday and, in an impassioned speech, claimed to be the standard bearer of his class in the great fight against capitalism."

BERGER JURY HEARS ARTICLES PRINTED IN SOCIALISTS' ORGAN

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Articles printed in the American Socialist in opposition to the war and to the draft law were read to the jury by District Attorney Clyne today at the Socialists' trial before Judge Landis. One of these defined the Government program as "Kill free speech; kill the free press; kill the right of free assembly; kill all good labor legislation; kill the right to strike; kill humane teaching; kill the Ten Commandments; kill all who refuse to kill."

Close attention was paid by the five defendants, Victor L. Berger, Adolph Germer, J. Louis Engdahl, William F. Kruse and Irwin St. John Tucker.

Portions of an address made by Adolph Germer at Rockford, June 17, 1917, were read by Thomas A. Stone, a court reporter, who took down the speech.

One paragraph read was: "This war is not to make the world safe for democracy, nor to make Germany democratic, but is only in the interest of munition makers and Wall street. Under the guise of fighting the Kaiser's military machine, there will be built up here a military machine which will make the Kaiser look like a piker."

CONDUCT OF SHIPYARD AT HOG ISLAND ASSAILED BY SENATORS

Vardaman Calls Project a Disgrace and Johnson Says Expenditures Beggar Description.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Charges of wastefulness against the Hog Island Shipyard project was renewed today in the Senate. Senator Vardaman of Mississippi declared the project "was a disgrace to the administration, an affront to every man wearing a uniform and burden to the taxpayers." He denounced particularly statements by former Rear Admiral Bowles, assistant general manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, that previous charges made by the Senator were false.

Senator Johnson of California, saying that but one ship had been turned out of the yard, asserted that the expenditures beggared description and the mode of its construction "permitted private individuals to dip their fingers into the United States Treasury."

Senator Fletcher of Florida defended the project and men connected with it, conceding that business judgment had given way before the necessity for haste in building ships. He placed total expenditures at the yard at $18,000,000.

Health Officer Closes Theater.

On complaint of police of the Angelica Street Station, Assistant Health Commissioner Jordan, last night closed the Eureka Theater, Twentieth street and Obear avenue. He did not state his reason. Police say they found children under 16 years of age at the theater, which is in violation of the influenza ban of the Health Department.

The NEW EDISON
a GIFT that LASTS for GENERATIONS!

What Greater Gift Can Man Give Than the Gift of Perfect Music—the New EDISON

THE GREAT paintings of old masters have lived for centuries. Why? Because their art is genuine! So it is with RE-CREATED MUSIC—you will never grow tired of the NEW EDISON any more than you would tire of the living tones of the actual artists, could you have them come to your home each day to play and sing for you and your family. When you hear people say they grow weary of "talking machines," don't be surprised. Of course, they can't find satisfaction and pleasure in a mere mechanical approximation of the living tone. Mr. Edison, in his remarkable, new, musical instrument, has found the way to preserve the subtle breath of reality. Actual comparisons with the human voice, here in St. Louis, have proved beyond the slightest shadow of a doubt that the NEW EDISON furnishes RE-CREATED MUSIC which will thrill you a year from now—five years from now—just as surely as it does today!

The NEW EDISON will be your choice when once you hear it.

HOW DETROIT ADDS TO ITS POPULATION BY ANNEXING REMOTE SUBURBAN REGIONS

Area in 1910 Was 40.79 Square Miles and Census Showed City Ninth With 465,766 Inhabitants—Area Now 80 Square Miles With Nearly a Million There.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 14.—With the striving of the larger cities of the United States to increase their populations before the next Census in 1920 that they may forge ahead of other cities in rank or at least hold the rank they had in the 1910 enumeration, the problem of annexation has become of unusual interest. Particularly is this true in St. Louis, where business and civic organizations, which are seeking the "Million Population" goal, are proposing legislation to provide the legal steps toward annexation of all or a part of St. Louis county.

For this reason a study of conditions in Detroit, where the annexation policy in the past six years has been carried almost to the extreme, is timely, and a correspondent of the Post-Dispatch came here to learn just what Detroit had done in the matter of annexations and what the advantage had been to Detroit and to the owners of property and residents in the territory annexed.

Growth in Detroit.

Detroit is a hustling, progressive city which has had a more rapid increase in population in the past 10 years than probably any other city in the United States. From a population of 465,766 and a rank of ninth among the cities of the United States in 1910, its city officials and heads of business organizations now contend that it has advanced to fourth place, and that its population is only a few thousand short of a million. The United States Census Bureau reports that Detroit has grown so rapidly that it will not attempt to estimate its present population.

One hears little about any manufacturing business in Detroit except the automobile industry, and it is within the past 10 years that this has attained its great growth. The automobile has built Detroit, but while that business was growing Detroit has year after year been reaching out and taking in its suburbs and territory adjoining it, taking advantage of every opportunity to add to its population and its taxable wealth the factories which located just outside the city.

The area of Detroit is now 80.70 square miles. In 1910 its area was 40.79 square miles. Thus in eight years Detroit has practically doubled its area, and probably has nearly doubled its population. St. Louis has an area of 63 1-3 square miles, which has been its area without change for 43 years. Its population in 1910 was 687,029, and according to a recent estimate of the Census Bureau its present population is 779,951. It must be remembered, however, the Census Bureau does not contend its figures are exact. It offers them only as estimates and recognizes the fact that its method of arithmetical calculation may be upset by conditions of growth of which it has no knowledge.

Annexation in Detroit.

Detroit has been addicted to the annexation habit through its entire history. In 1875, when St. Louis had its present area, Detroit had an area of only 15 square miles. By 1885 it had been increased by annexations to 22.19 square miles, in 1900 to 28.35 square miles, in 1910 to 40.79 square miles, and in 1918 to 80.70 square miles.

Except in a few of the efforts to annex territory in recent years Detroit has not had to make a fight. In most instances the territory which was taken into the city had been bought by real estate speculators, who had platted it, and who favored annexation, believing that being within the city would mean higher prices for the property.

There is one notable exception, however. That is Highland Park, Mich., a city of nearly 40,000 population, which occupies the unusual positionof being entirely surrounded by another city. The city of Detroit extends completely around Highland Park, which is the home of the Ford Motor Co., and not Detroit, as is generally supposed. Highland Park is "on" Woodward avenue, the main street of Detroit, and is a half hour's street car ride from downtown Detroit. It has been looked upon enviously for many years by its larger neighbor and enveloper, but it has always resisted the efforts of Detroit to absorb it. The reason is apparent when the conditions are understood.

Highland Park Taxes.

Highland Park his its own city government, police and fire departments, its own water system and sewer system, and in fact it has everything that Detroit has. Its total tax rate for all purposes on the $1000 valuation is $12.779, while Detroit's total rate is $21.245, or $8.466 higher than Highland Park's. Under these conditions it is not strange that Highland Park should prefer to remain to itself, particularly as it has the same street car fare that Detroit has, and its residents receive their telephone, electric light and gas the same rate the residents of Detroit receive theirs.

Detroit's first annexation after the 1910 census was in 1912, when it added an area of .97 of a square mile, a part of Greenfield Township, having a population of less than 5000.

In 1915 the area was further increased by the annexation of two separated districts, having a total of 5.16 square miles, and an estimated population of about 20,000. A portion of this was closely built up, while other parts was really acreage land, though most of it had been laid out in town lots, and had been improved with streets and sidewalks.

The following year, 1916, was the most ambitious in Detroit's annexation program, two projects being carried out, which increased the area of the city 25.75 square miles, and added close to 50,000 population. In 1918, the village of St. Clair Heights, having an area of 8.03 square miles and a population of about 10,000, was annexed, completing Detroit's annexation program to date, with the exception of Highland Park and the village of Hamtramck, which it wants, but which have refused to come in.

The principal subjects of interest in these annexation are the advantages derived by Detroit and those derived by the annexed territory.

Increased Wealth.

Detroit has increased its population, increased its taxable wealth, added large factories and valuable property to its confines. Generally speaking, the annexed territory has obtained better water supply, lower street car fare and a sewerage system, at a higher rate of taxation, in some instances very much higher rate, while there has been little difference to them in telephone or electric rates.

St. Clair Heights, the village annexed this year, had a reason for voting to join Detroit. It had a tax rate of $26.74 for one part of the village and $28.19 in another part, the difference being due to a difference between the school tax rates of two districts in which the village lay. Detroit's rate of $21.245 is lower than either. The village was within the district supplied with telephone and electric service at the Detroit rate, and it undoubtedly will in time have full Detroit water and gas service.

Other districts which have come in to Detroit, however, have not fared as well in tax matters.

For instance, in 1916 a portion of Greenfield Township was taken in. At that time the Detroit tax rate was $21.41 on the $1000. The annexation included a small portion of Highland Park, which at that time had not been incorporated as a city. The rate there was $21.18, while in other portions of the township it averaged a much lower figure, examples being $9.07 in one school district and $8.69 in another.

The same year a portion of Gratoir Township was taken in. The tax rate in two school districts was $10.56 and $7.99.

In Grosse Pointe Township, a portion of which was annexed, examples of rates are $7.89, $9.19 and $10.29. An attempt to take in the villages of Grosse Pointe Farms, Grosse Pointe Shores, Grosse Point and Grosse Pointe Park failed, though they had tax rates almost as high and in some instances higher than Detroit.

Desirable Property.

They are exceedingly desirable residence districts, cosisting largely of expensive homes in parks of several acres. Their owners had no desire to become a part of Detroit. The annexations which have been successfully carried out have centered largely either in taking in platted property owned by real estate speculators, or property on which large factories were located, the factories usually favoring annexation because of the better streets and fire protection, and in some instances lower street car fares for workers. In many instances only a part of a more closely populated district, where there was opposition, was included, the vote of the greater amount of territory included in that particular annexation favoring the scheme and outvoting the opposition.

The more important public utility companies of Detroit report that annexations have in very few instances lowered rates. The Detroit United Railway Co. is required under its franchise to carry passengers within the limits of Detroit for 5 cents. In some instances its 5-cent limit is outside the city, as, for instance, into Highland Park and on through it into Detroit again on the other side, but these instances are few.

It can be said that residents of annexed territory did benefit through lower car fares.

Officials of insurance agencies in the Detroit district, said there had been no lowering of insurance rates because of recent annexations, because, it was stated, there had been few additional fire houses erected in the annexed territory, and little additional fire protection afforded, though they predicted that within a short time streets in the outlying districts would be improved, additional fire protection afforded, and rates lowered.

A. J. Peckham, commercial traffic manager of the Michigan State Telephone Co. (Bell) said annexations had not brought about lower telephone rates. He said the company had one rate in the Detroit district, which extended beyond the limits of the city in nearly every direction away from the Detroit River. These districts, if closely settled, received the same rate as Detroit, but if it was necessary to build a long telephone line to serve only one or only a few subscribers, a higher rate was charged, and this rate was not changed simply because those subscribers premises came within the city limits.

A similar statement regarding electric rates was made by A. E. Marshall, vice-president of the Detroit Edison Co., which supplies electric current to Detroit and surrounding territory. Marshall said the rates were based on cost to serve and that the taking in to the city of a residence or an industry served made no difference in the cost of that service.

Although Detroit has grown rapidly aside from its annexations, a comparative statement for the years 1915 and 1916, including figures from the big territory annexed in 1916, is interesting in this connection as the annexations undoubtedly had a part in the business growth. These are the latest compilation of figures which are immediately available:

	1915.	1916.	Increase Per Cent
Area sq. miles..	48.67	72.67	49.31
No. of families..	144,722	156,620	8.2

The Detroit annexation situation affords few opportunities for comparison with the difficulties faced in St. Louis. In the first place Detroit is in a county, while St. Louis is in no county. Detroit could annex a part of Wayne county without taking the annexed property out of the county. Though it entered Detroit it continued a part of the county and continued paying taxes to the county. Consequently there was not the opposition upon the part of county office holders and politicians that is found in St. Louis county. Any part of St. Louis county annexed to St. Louis would be taken out of the county, and would not thereafter contribute to the cost of the county government.

PRESIDENT LIKELY TO BE IN EUROPE FOR TWO MONTHS

FREEDOM OF SEAS AS HE BELIEVES IN IT

Said to Advocate Restrictions on Such Freedom Only by a Concrete Power Enforcing International Covenants.

By Wireless to the Associated Press.

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Thursday, Dec. 12.—President Wilson will remain in Europe probably for two months, returning to Washington, if indications prevail that his presence is necessary, just before the close of the present Congress. If later he is required at the peace table, it is said he will not hesitate to return to France. It is known, however, that he hopes to avoid this latter contingency and that all affairs requiring his counsel will be disposed of before the middle of February.

Refreshed and invigorated by 10 days at sea, President Wilson is in excellent physical condition for the hard work ahead of him.

Took Regular Exercise.

From the time the George Washington passed out of sight of the Statue of Liberty the American executive has exercised consistently. He has rested a great deal, but still has found time for much work in daily conferences and with state papers. He has made appointments, accepted resignations and signed pardons, and conducted by wireless, probably for the first time in history as the head of any nation, more work than ever before has been accomplished in this manner. Meanwhile he has been in constant touch with American officials in Washington and Paris.

What President Advocates

It is known to be President Wilson's position that the peace treaties should embody agreements to create a league of nations. It is also known to be his conviction that there is strong necessity for establishing, upon a very clear definition, freedom of the seas.

The much-discussed point 2 in President Wilson's 14 essential points of peace on which Great Britain has reserved decision is said to be not intended to specify unqualified freedom of the seas outside territorial water, but only to stipulate that no nation shall restrict freedom and that when freedom is restricted it shall be only by a concrete power enforcing international covenants.

It is expected that President Wilson will approach what may be differences in opinion rather than of principle and that he will rely upon open-minded conferences and processes which will not involve unnecessary antagonism. It is said to be his attitude that neither the United States nor the other Governments should assume the role of master, and that he believes he is supported by public opinion generally as to the agreement to be sought for between peoples, rather than governments as essentials to a peoples' war.

As to Armaments.

The reduction of armaments proposed in President Wilson's 14 points specifies reductions not below domestic safety, and statesmen seem to be agreed that no reduction of domestic armaments without international safety is expected. The attitude of President Wilson with regard to indemnity is generally believed to be that the necessity for the payment of a great sum will be justified only if based on most careful and judicial consideration. The President is said to agree fully with the Entente Premiers as to the great wrongs of military power, but to feel most strongly that the ways of righting them must be consistent with the objects of the war.

In determining the question of freedom of the seas, it is thought that radical revision of maritime practices probably will arise.

PROBATE COURT BUSINESS INCREASED BY INFLUENZA

50 Per Cent More Work Than Formerly by the Deaths From Epidemic.

Business of the Probate Court has been increased 50 per cent by the 1702 influenza and 757 pneumonia deaths that have occurred since the start of the influenza emergency on Oct. 7, until there now is more work in the court than at any time within the memory of employes who have been there more than 20 years.

Administration clerks are kept busy all day issuing "refusal of letters" in cases where the value of the estate is nominal or making out other papers. Many more guardianship papers than usual are being made out as a result of deaths of parents.

On a recent day Judge Holtcamp allowed bills totaling $6000 to one undertaker alone, and the bills of others have greatly increased the court's work. Some undertakers now are refusing to accept calls for their services, and others have had so many daily funerals that their corps of funeral directors have been insufficient.

Published Greeting of Marshal Joffre in Welcome to Wilson

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Friday, Dec. 13.—All newspapers here published editorials welcoming President Wilson to France and assuring the American President of the hearty reception awaiting him in Paris. The Matin publishes an address of Marshal Joffre to President Wilson. The Marshal writes:

"France owes an immense debt of gratitude to America, which gave us victory. It is with sincere joy that we see President Wilson arriving, recollecting all he did and thinking of all he can do.

"Thousands of French lives were saved by the intervention of the United States.

"It is with all my heart that I will join tomorrow (Saturday) in the cry of the whole French people: 'Long live the United States! Long live Wilson!'"

12 SCANDINAVIAN JOURNALISTS TO BE CITY'S GUESTS TODAY

Party Will Be Entertained by Foreign Trade Bureau of Chamber of Commerce.

St. Louis will be the host to 12 Scandinavian journalists touring the United States studying commercial and civic conditions at the invitation of the Committee on Public Information, today. The visitors represent the largest newspapers in Norway, Sweden and Denmark, and are accompanied on the tour by Edwin Bjorkamn, director of the Scandinavian Bureau at Washington.

The visitors will be entertained by the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce.

They will arrive at 8 o'clock. After breakfast at the Statler Hotel there will be a river trip on the steamer Erastus Wells to the Chain of Rocks, where the waterworks will be inspected, thence down the river to the Century Boat Club, where luncheon will be served. At 3 o'clock the visitors will be turned over to a Scandinavian committee for a tour of the city in automobiles. At 5 o'clock they will be entertained at the Swedish Building, 1157-59 South King's highway. At 7:30 p. m. the party will be guests of the Scandinavian committee for dinner at the Planters Hotel. They will leave about midnight for Keokuk dam and Minneapolis and St. Paul.

In the party will be: C. J. Engstrom of the Svenska Dagbladet, Stockholm; Valdomer Galstor, National Tidende, Copenhagen; Tage Halberstadt, Politiken, Copenhagen; Sigund Konstad, Dagbladet, Christiania, Norway; Otto Johansson, Social-Demokraten, Stockholm; Herman Kr. PATRON EJECTED FROM CAFE RETURNS AND SHOOTS WAITER

McClusky Purchased Pistol and Cartridges After Quarrel With Conrad Schall.

George A. McClusky, 36 years old, of 6648 McCune avenue, after being ejected from the National Cafe, 117 North Sixth street, yesterday afternoon, purchased a revolver and cartridges, and returned to the cafe and shot Conrad Schall, a waiter. The bullet went through Schall's left arm and penetrated his abdomen, inflicting a serious wound.

Witnesses said McClusky had been drinking, and resented it when Schall told him to get out of his way. Then Schall put him out. McClusky told the police Schall slapped him without provocation. He is employed by the Frisco railroad, and had been paid earlier in the day.

Two special policemen who were passing heard the shot and ran in, to find Schall crouching behind the bar and McClusky trying to get to him. Schall ran into the bar from the restaurant in the rear of the place, after being shot.

PHONETIC WRITING IN CHINA

System of 39 Symbols Expected to Reduce Illiteracy of Nation.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 14.—China has adopted a system of phonetic writing, which is expected to revolutionize elementary education of that nation and reduce existing illiteracy, it was announced here today by Edwin C. Lobensteins, who has been in conference with the Yale-in-China home office.

The system, invented by the Chinese themselves and approved by the Government Board of Education at Peking, consists of only 39 symbols. Any sound in the language can be represented by combining two or, at the most, three of these symbols, and experiments made with hundreds of individuals have conclusively shown that an adult illiterate man or woman can learn to read by the use of a system of this kind in three or four weeks. It now is being taught in all the Government higher normal schools in the country.

FORMING JUGO-SLAV GOVERNMENT

Serbian Crown Prince Designs State Based on Absolute Equality.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—Crown Prince Alexander, the regent of Serbia, is engaged in the formation of a Government representing all the political groups of the Jugo-Slav countries, he declared in an interview at Belgrade with a correspondent of the Petit Parisien.

DREADNOUGHT WYOMING TAKES SIMS AND DAVIS TO ENGLAND

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1918, by Press Publishing Co. (New York World.)

LONDON, Dec. 14.—The United States dreadnought Wyoming, with Admiral Sims and Ambassador Davis aboard, arrived at Plymouth from Brest this morning. The Wyoming sailed at 3 o'clock this afternoon to meet Admiral Mayo's fleet at sea, so her officers and crew could be in America by Christmas.

Ambassador Davis told the Post-Dispatch correspondent that he did not know when President Wilson would reach England, saying: "I don't think the President knows yet himself."

Admiral Sims will remain in England to work on demobilization plans which are said to be far more difficult than those for mobilization.

When the Ambassador arrived this afternoon at Paddington Station, he was met by the entire staff of the American embassy. America's new representative to the Court of St. James will present his credentials to the King within a few days.

It was announced today that a fleet of eight American mine layers were responsible for laying the American mine field in the North Sea. It was the biggest mine field during the war. The fleet will leave British waters Monday and return to America. Its work was one of the war's most dangerous undertakings, because of the nearness of the water in which it worked to those in which the German high seas fleet frequently cruised.

Some naval men thought the American mine-laying fleet couldn't accomplish its task, but it did.

Show Surrender of German Fleet.

The first pictures showing the surrender of the German navy to the British will be shown at the Royal Theater this week, starting today. These pictures show the entire German fleet and U-boat flotilla with their captive crews, under British escorts.

PERMIT TO EXPORT BARLEY MALT STIRS C. OF C. HEAD

Johnson Sends New Protest to Food Administration Against Ban on Near Beer.

Further protest against the continuance of the prohibition of the manufacture of nonintoxicating malt beverages was made to the Food Administration yesterday by Jackson Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Referring to an announcement of the War Trade Board that, after consultation with the Food Administration, it had decided to permit again the exportation of barley malt to Canada, South America, Mexico and Japan, Johnson commented as follows:

"It would seem that your committee is not only willing to see thousands of men thrown out of employment at this critical time, without apparent good reason, but that the matter will be clinched by another department of the Government, announcing that the materials with which these men would work in order to earn their living may now be sent outside of the country so as to furnish employment for laborers in Canada, the West Indies, Cuba, Mexico, South America and Japan."

TAX COMPUTING SCHOOL IS OPEN

Women May Attend and Men Not Members of Y. M. C. A. or Chamber of Commerce.

The War Tax Committee of the Chamber of Commerce has received inquiries which show misunderstanding about the school of instruction to be opened tomorrow night at the Y. M. C. A. on income and excess profits taxes.

The committee points out that while the school of instruction will be conducted by the Y. M. C. A., enrollment is not limited to members of the Y. M. C. A. nor to members of the Chamber of Commerce, nor to men. Those desiring to enroll should consult C. C. Winn, educational director of the Y. M. C. A. Ralph R. Nauhoff, Y. M. C. A. staff lecturer on Federal taxation, will be in charge.

DAUES INVESTIGATING BEFORE ACTING AGAINST "SKIP-STOPS"

Counselor Will Urge Abolition of Plan if Fuel Saving Is Its Only Recommendation.

City Counselor Daues said last night that he will investigate the advisability of eliminating the "skip-stop" car schedule in St. Louis. This statement was prompted by the announcement of State Fuel Administrator Crossley that such stops are no longer necessary as a fuel conservation measure. Daues says if he finds the plan has no other benefit than that of saving fuel he will ask the State Public Service Commission to restore the old system of stops.

The United Railways is urging a continuance of the "skip-stops," giving as one reason that it saves time, and that schedules are being changed to conform to the saving plan. The plan went into effect Sept. 22 as a war measure.

AMATEUR WIRELESS OPERATORS WANT TO CONTINUE OPERATIONS

Protests to Be Made to Congressmen Against Bill for Control of All Plants.

Amateur wireless operators in St. Louis, who before the war had stations in homes for experiment, play and communication "with the boy down the street," are exercised over a bill pending in Congress for the control of all wireless stations of the United States, which makes no provision for amateur stations, thus leaving them in their war status—forbidden. There were, before the war, about 2000 such wireless outfits in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

The St. Louis Amateur Wireless Association is asking its members to protest to their Congressmen, urging these reasons why amateur wireless should be recognized:

The Government gained at a crucial war time 200,000 needed wireless operators from the ranks of the amateurs who taught themselves; closing of the boys' home stations will stop experiments and resulting inventions, and that the wireless in the home served to keep the boy there at night and the absence of that amusement will tend to send him out from his home at night.

COURT WANTS TO SEE 'COOTIES'

Woman Accuser of Man Hasn't the Evidence and Loses Case.

Mrs. Mary Cooper's failure to produce "cooties" in the Court of Justice Brady at East St. Louis yesterday, in order to sustain her charge of disorderly conduct against Albert Dixon, who roomed at her home, 238 North Second street, resulted in the case being dismissed.

Mrs. Cooper accused Dixon of harboring "cooties" in his room. He insisted they were bed bugs which had foregathered without his knowledge or consent and had her arrested for disturbing his peace. She retaliated by having him arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. Judge Brady asked to see the "cooties," but Mrs. Cooper said that, although there were many of them in Dixon's room, she had not brought any to court.

Find Three Infants' Bodies.

The bodies of three babies, apparently still-born, and a human skull were found along the bank of the River des Peres, near Clayton avenue, yesterday afternoon by John Breen, 656 Tower Grove avenue, and Carl Fick, 4362 Papin street, both 11 years old. They notified the police, who took the bodies and the skull to the morgue. Parts of a glass jar were lying near by, and the police are of the opinion that the bodies were thrown away by a physician, who had been keeping them as specimens.

NEW PLACES FOR MANY OF GIRL WAR WORKERS

Federal Machinery Hopes to Find Jobs for All Who Wish to Remain.

WASHINGTON.—In the endless procession of young soldiers that is passing through the Union Station here since the ending of the war are many young women. Among the piles of luggage from camps were numerous neat suit cases. The luggage is destined for all parts of the United States, but it all might be classified as "going home."

And "going home" is written on every eager young face. Girls released from Government offices were not less happy than boys honorably discharged from army service. Both girls and boys accepted the burdens of war brought to them, and now once more they were free. And all could smile, for the Government har taken care that the going home should mean more than mere family reunions; that it should mean waiting positions, real chances to build for the future.

Through the United States Employment Service the most careful preparation has been made for reconstruction work. Each of its 900 branches has been asked by Mrs. Margaretta Neale, Chief of the Woman's Division of the Service, to canvass its special community openings, and in this work the District of Columbia branch has given the fullest co-operation.

New Places for Many.

The Women's Division of the District of Columbia branch had provided first for the girls who desired to remain in Washington by obtaining lists of the needs of bureaus to which peace will divert much business. These bureaus quickly absorbed many clerks, whose experience in Government work would be of value. In one case 42 girls were placed merely by a transfer from one department to another.

Careful inquiry at the various bureaus brought out the fact that large numbers of the girls were impatient to return to their homes. In many cases the clerks desired to go back to domestic responsibilities, as scores had volunteered for war work while their husbands served in army or navy. Most of the expert stenographers had the assurance that their old positions would be open to them when they returned.

One of the activities of the Employment Service has been to encourage applicants for minor clerkships to take the civil service examinations, and more than 1000 girls have qualified or taken the test. These girls are in line for vacancies, and while filling emergency positions have been able to wait patiently for their chances to procure permanent positions.

Making Redistribution Quickly.

The District of Columbia branch of the United States Employment Service does not expect many difficulties in the demobilization of the girls, for their war work will end gradually, since the plan is to dispense with about 1000 workers a week, and out of this number the proportion of those who desire to remain in Washington is not large enough to suggest serious consequences.

The main cause for anxiety is that the period of nonemployment shall be as short as possible, or that it shall not exist at all. With living expenses at their present mark, this is a most important consideration. When it is remembered that women's first economy is generally in food, the danger of impaired vitality or even illness from undernourishment is to be avoided.

In the redistribution of the workers many will leave the Government service with experience that will be valuable and with training that will add to their efficiency. During the period of the war girls have been encouraged to improve themselves and to prepare for promotions. In numerous cases they have been able to raise the standard of their work and incidentally to increase their salaries.

WOMAN PRESIDES AT A JUVENILE COURT SESSION

One Judge Was Ill and the Other Busy, but Cases Were Heard as Usual.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—For the first time in the history of the county a woman formally presided at a regular session of the Superior Court. Miss Orfa Jean Shontz, Referee of the Juvenile Court, acted as "Judge" and conducted the hearing of a long list of juvenile offenders in the regular courtroom with Clerk R. F. Gragg and Bailiff Clark Reeder in attendance.

Judge Sidney N. Reeve of the Juvenile Department has been ill and in his absence Judge John W. Shank has been acting as Juvenile Judge. The latter, however, had an unusual amount of business in his own department today. By authority of the juvenile law, Judge Shank assigned all the juvenile matters to the Referee for investigation and report. The recommendations of Referee Shontz will be subject to review and approval by Judge Shank.

Heretofore, matters referred to Referee Shontz have been heard informally, usually at juvenile hall.

The decorum of the court was not in the least disturbed by the fact that a feminine "Judge" presided and the usual grist of juvenile cases was ground out without a hitch.

$9000 Death Verdict.

ATLANTA, Ga.—Mrs. Loudie Reeves has been awarded a verdict of $9000 against the Atlantic & West Point Railroad for the death of her husband. The death was established only by the finding of trinkets, as several trains had passed over the body and it could not be identified. Nothing was known of the circumstances.

Schools Soon to Open for All Our Soldiers Overseas

There Will Be Classes in All Grades, From Elementary Work to University Courses and Also in Trades.

NEW YORK.—Plans for a comprehensive system of specialized training and general education so that no member of the American Expeditionary Forces need be deprived of its opportunities and advantages are fast reaching the stage of accomplishment.

Two members of the Army Educational Commission are in France and the third is on the Atlantic. They are setting up from Paris the foundation for an educational system that will enable the illiterate to receive instruction in reading and writing and place experts at the service of the man who desires to learn a trade.

And the college man whose course has been interrupted by his response to the service of his country may continue his studies, with full credit at home, in some one of the great European universities.

These opportunities and advantages have been authorized by the Government in order that no fighting man may lose more than is actually necessary by his military service, and that the period of demobilization, which must extend of necessity over many months may take no more than is inevitable out of the normal civil life of the American soldier. If he takes full advantage of his opportunities he will be better prepared for life at home than when he went to a training camp. This applies largely, of course, to those whose education was either lacking or incomplete yhen they donned the uniform.

Thousands of men have already returned from Europe or are on the way. But the latest estimate of the War Department is that at least a million men will be kept overseas for a yea ror more. It is for the salvage of the time of these men that provision has been made through the medium of an extensive educational program.

The General Plan.

Acting as the agent of the Government, in an organizing and supervising capacity, is the Y. M. C. A. The "Y" will have charge of the education of the soldier, and to a large extent the Government will furnish equipment and thousands of teachers from among the enlisted men and officers. Full co-operation has been offered by the universities of France and England.

The details of the vast program have not yet been worked out, but certain features are assured, and the commission has as a foundation its experience in providing edcuational facilities for the fighting men while the warfare continued. One feature that is assured is the correspondence system of training. Wherever the men are assigned in small detachments at distant points and are unable to come in jersonal contact with an instructor, correspondence courses will be offered.

It is planned to have a center of instruction wherever 500 or more men are billeted. The work will head up around these "field schools," and out from them will go help to every man who desires it. Wherever practicable, leaves and furloughs will be granted to attend university lecture courses or enroll at one of the great army schools. A man who has a comprehensive knowledge of French may go to one of the French universities, while one who aspires to become an expert baker may attend an army school where such instruction is given.

The motion picture will be used extensively in the teaching of such subjects as geology and botany.

Some of the Best Educators.

The commission has obtained through the Y. M. C. A. some of the best educators in the country as executives. John Erskine of Columbia University, the chairman, is in charge of all higher academic and professional education. Frank E. Spaulding, Superintendent of Schools of Cleveland, O., is directing the field staff and the organization of all general education below the college grade. He is assisted by Peter A. Appelboom of the University of Kansas. Kenyon L. Butterfield, president of Massachusetts Agricultural College, is in charge of the branches in agricultural and vocational training.

Specialists have been assembled to supervise instruction in various subjects. Prof. Appelboom is in charge of French instruction, Reginald A. Daly of Harvard, geography; Austin P. Evans of Columbia, history; others will direct departments of civics, English, mathematics, commercial instruction, etc.

Organizers and supervising experts are being recruited in the United States. The army is full of men who have had wide experience in teaching or have had such experience that they can easily qualify as instructors.

The whole plan is still elastic and must inevitably remain so, even after it is in full operation. It must be elastic to permit a man to finish a course that he has started, no matter how often he may be transferred during the period required for its completion.

WHEAT PRICE CERTAIN FOR THE NEXT CROP

Buying Machinery May Be Changed, but Value Is Fixed to June 1, 1920.

COLUMBIA, Mo.—The guaranteed price for the 1919 wheat crop, fixed at $2.26 a bushel, Chicago basis, will stand even though the Lever act, under which the price was fixed, should become inoperative through conclusion of peace, in the opinion of the Missouri Division of the Food Administration.

The President's proclamation of Feb. 21, 1918, fixing guaranteed prices for the 1918 wheat crop, applies to wheat "harvested in the United States during 1918 and offered for sale before the first day of June, 1919, to such agent or employe of the United States, or other person as may be hereafter designated" at the principal primary markets specified.

The Food Administration Grain Corporation was designated June 21, 1918, to purchase the 1918 wheat crop and will therefore continue to exercise that duty and obligation even though peace should be formally proclaimed prior to June 1, 1919. The food control act provides that termination of the act shall not affect any obligation accrued or accruing during its existence. The purchase of the 1918 wheat crop is such an obligation.

The President's proclamation of Sept. 2, 1918, establishing guaranteed prices for the 1919 wheat crop, applies to wheat harvested in the United States during 1919 and offered for sale before June 1, 1920. As in the case of the 1918 wheat crop, the wheat must be offered for sale "to such agent or employe of the United States or other person as may be hereafter designated" at any one of the principal primary markets. Up to the present date, however, the agency by which the 1919 wheat crop is to be purchased has not been designated.

Thus, although the guarantee for the 1919 wheat crop will continue until June 1, 1920, there is no present assurance it will be purchased or handled by the Food Administration Grain Corporation.'

Wheat growers in many parts of the country, it is said, have become apprehensive that the guaranteed price for the 1919 crop might be rescinded through the conclusion of peace.

STEEL LATH STOPPED TWO PRISONERS, SEEKING FREEDOM

After Failure to Get Through Wall They Pasted Paper Over Plastering

OKAUOGAU, Wash.—An attempt at jail breaking was made a few nights ago by Frank Mussleman, being held on a charge of first degree murder, and F. M. Ellsworth, an alleged bad check passer, who has been in the county jail for several months. The two men have occupied the same cell, and upon going into their cell one morning this week Sheriff Stark noticed that a piece of newspaper had been pasted over a portion of the ceiling.

Tearing off the paper, he found the cement plaster scratched off the ceiling to a depth of an inch or more, where the steel lathing had been encountered. Searching the men and the cell the Sheriff found several pieces of steel about six inches in length that had been broken from the beds of the jail.

These had apparently been used in cutting the cement plaster, but when they came to the steel lining of the cell they apparently gave it up as a bad job and tried to cover up their attempt by pasting a paper over the defaced ceiling.

TEXAS RANCHERS HASTILY INCREASING THEIR HERDS

Loans From Large Federal Fund Are Being Borrowed to Buy Mexican Cattle.

DALLAS, Tex.—One of the big problems that the cattlemen of the former drought-afflicted area of Western Texas are facing is the restocking of their depleted range.

Now that splendid rains have fallen which brought on a fine crop of late fall grass and with an assurance that there will be good pasturage in the spring, ranchmen are making frantic efforts to enlarge their herds. The cattle loan agency of the War Finance Corporation of Dallas, of which Marion Samsom is manager, has already loaned about $15,000,000 to stockmen, and applications are pending for additional loans for nearly $10,000,000.

In most instances the money obtained from this source is used for the purchase of stock cattle. In the Rio Grande border region it was formerly the practice of ranchmen to import many of their stock cattle from Mexico, but little of this has been done recently.

It is stated, however, that notwithstanding the long period of revolutions and banditry in Mexico there are still many cattle upon the ranches in the interior part of that country.

Detroit Has Never Been Able to Explain Why Its Tigers Should Be Lionized

Jack Hendricks Will Return to Compete With Rickey for Place as Cardinal Manager

Writes Friend From Paris He Will Be Back Next Year—Stockholder Says Issue Will Be Decided by Rickey on Basis of Legality of Hendricks' Two-Year Contract.

ADD to the trials and tribulations of those philanthropic gentlemen who are endeavoring to keep the Cardinals afloat that of the managerial question. While James C. Jones, vice president of the club is reported to have said that Branch Rickey will manage the club, next season, and Rickey himself, previous to his departure for France, admitted the same, the proposition is by no means settled.

This was asserted by a stockholder in the club yesterday, who asked that his name be not used, because, as he explained, "he had no desire to become involved in a managerial dispute."

Hendricks to Return.

John C. Hendricks, manager of the club last season, is preparing to return to St. Louis. He conveys this information in a letter to a friend received here yesterday. This letter was written while Hendricks was on the high seas en route to Paris. It is dated Nov. 15 and among other things, Hendricks writes:

"Now that peace is restored, I suppose baseball will resume. If it does, I will come back so that we will be together another year."

This statement is construed by the person to whom it was written as meaning that Jack Hendricks will sail for the United States in ample time to be on the scene for 1919. Moreover, according to the recipient of the letter, Hendricks is determined to return to the Cardinals as manager.

Which recalls a statement made by Hendricks here shortly after the close of the 1918 baseball season. He said at that time that if baseball was resumed in 1919, he would either return as manager of the Cardinals or collect his salary in full for next year.

Signed Two-Year Contract.

"I signed a two-year contract, which is void now because the Government ordered us to quit," said Hendricks. "But if the war is over next year, I'll be back and the contract will hold good. If they want to get rid of me, it will cost them a year's salary."

The Cardinal stockholder, discussing the Hendricks case yesterday, said:

"It is true that when Mr. Rickey signed Jack Hendricks as manager he gave him a two-year contract. Under ordinary conditions Hendricks would be entitled to return to the club. It is my impression, however, that there was a 'war clause' in the document by which it automatically terminated when the war terminated baseball in 1918.

"I do not propose to discuss the legality of the document. I do know, however, that Rickey would like to manage the club and I believe, if he returns in time he will do so. Moreover, I believe Hendricks would have to sign a new contract, if he is accepted as manager.

Up to Branch Rickey.

"The entire matter rests with Branch Rickey. He is the sole judge and his decision will be final. Rest assured none of the stockholders or directors will interfere in the matter. Of course, if it should develop Rickey cannot get back before the season begins, then it is highly likely the stockholders will get together and choose a manager."

Asked what would be done concerning the selection of a man to represent the club in the National League meetings, since the league has ruled a manager cannot be admitted to the conferences in the role of president, the stockholder replied he believed a vice president would be named, who would fill the bill, merely carrying out the directions of Branch Rickey. He also said it was very likely the Cardinals will appoint a man to fill the position of traveling secretary and business manager.

Rogers Hornsby Will Be Visitor Here Today; to Confer With Mason

ROGERS HORNSBY, star shortstop and slugger of the Cardinals, will be a visitor in St. Louis for a few hours today. He wired Secretary Hiram W. Mason of the Cardinals, that he would arrive here late this afternoon and requested the Cardinal official to meet him.

Mason says he does not know whether Hornsby has left his position in an Eastern munitions plant and is going home for the remainder of the season, or whether he is merely returning to Fort Wayne for the holidays. Hornsby now is married and his wife will accompany him on the visit.

Mason also received a letter from Austin McHenry, Cardinal outfielder, in which he states he is recovering from an attack of influenza and hopes to return to the club next spring.

STAR THREE-CUSHION TALENT WILL COMPETE IN CITY LEAGUE HERE

The City Three-Cushion League, which proved one of the biggest billiard attractions in recent years during its operation last season, will be revived here on a larger scale shortly after the first of the year, according to a move launched yesterday among the room keepers. The plan is for five of the largest parlors in the city to enter two players each in the league.

Thus far, some of the best three-cushion talent in the city has been assured for the league. The players who have pledged themselves to enter are: Charles C. Peterson, Frank Benson, Thomas H. Sperry, present champion; Elmer Farrar, who won the tournament last year; Frank Keith, Eugene H. Krembs and Jack Butterfield.

The rooms to be represented are the Rex, Peterson's, the Maryland, Arata's and Corse's. Others may decide to come in before the tournament gets under way. Each room will put up an entrance fee of $25 and prizes will be awarded to the winner, second, third and fourth men. A schedule will be drafted calling for games three nights a week. It is expected to finish the tournament in about a month.

MUNICIPAL SOCCER OFF.

It was announced last night that all the regularly scheduled games of the Municipal Football League, Saturday, had been called off because of rain and wet grounds.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION TO START APRIL 29

Schedule of 154 Games Will Be Arranged for 1919—Limit of 16 Players.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 14.—The American Association baseball season of 1919 will begin April 29, the Western clubs opening their campaigns in the four Eastern cities, it was announced tonight by President T. J. Hickey after the concluding meeting of the association club owners here.

On the first trip the clubs will play three-game series, and the second and third trips will have four games each. On each trip after the third the clubs will play three-game series. A committee composed of Thomas Chivington, Louisville; A. F. Timme, Milwaukee, and George Muehlebach, Kansas City, was named to arrange the 154-game schedule.

Two rules in effect last season were rescinded by the association owners. The rule requiring each club to have no fewer than four players who had not previously seen service in a Class A A League or higher was withdrawn. The other regulation withdrawn was that requiring the home team to guarantee the visiting team $125 a day if the gate receipts did not reach that amount or in the event the game was postponed.

The 16-player limit will be retained.

The association baseball men will gather in Chicago either Jan. 12 or 13 to attend the meeting of the National Association of minor leagues. They will go to New York in a body to be present at a joint session of major and minor league representatives on Jan. 16 at which time proposed changes in the National Commission and player draft rules are expected to be ratified.

On Jan. 19 the association owners will meet again in Chicago to complete their plans for the season. St. Paul, Minneapolis and Milwaukee clubs will have training trips this season, but it is probable the other five teams will do their training at or near home. Toledo and Columbus clubs may journey to Kentucky for a brief stay, but Kansas City, Louisville and Indianapolis expect to stay at home for the spring tryouts.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Led by Tom Campbell, National and Central A. A. U. half-mile champion, the University of Chicago team won the Central A. A. U. cross-country 5-mile championship today with 21 points. The Logan Square A. C. was second.

HARRY UHLEMEYER HEADS SOUTH BROADWAY CLUB; AGAIN BOXING DIRECTOR

Harry Uhlemeyer, who during the past year has been chairman of the Athletic Board and in charge of boxing, was chosen president of the South Broadway Athletic Club at the annual election of officers held last week. Uhlemeyer also was again named chairman of the Athletic Board and as such will continue in charge of boxing at the South Side club.

Other officers named were: Charles Vanek, vice president; Al Roeger, recording secretary; John Kuehl, financial secretary; Ollie Kattner, treasurer. The board of directors was named as follows: Oscar Juergens, James Murphy, James Noll, William Kaiser and Harry Seib. Ed Labus and Tommy Brammell were appointed on the Athletic Board with Uhlemeyer.

The officers will be installed at a meeting of the club on Dec. 27. Members claim that with the new officials in charge sports in general and particularly boxing will witness a big boom at the Broadway Club.

DAVIS CUP MATCHES SCHEDULED FOR 1920

Executive Committee to So Recommend at Next Annual Meeting.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Resumption of the Davis cup matches in 1920, to be preceded by a national championship tournament next August, are among recommendations prepared by the Executive Committee for consideration of the National Lawn Tennis Association at the annual meeting of that organization next February.

The committee, which completed its deliberations here today, strongly advocated a revival of international tennis play and it is expected that the delegates to the annual meeting will heartily support the proposition.

The Davis cup, emblematic of the world team tennis championship, is now held by Australasia, which won it from the United States in 1914, Wilding and Brookes defeating the defending team, McLoughlin, Williams and Bundy.

The Executive Committee requests that the National Association empower the committee immediately to take steps to re-establish the Davis cup contests, the next series to be played in 1920. Power is also requested to defray, out of the treasury of the association, the expense of any team or competition where lack of funds would prevent such entry.

If adopted, this clause would permit the financing of any foreign association team, which, through lack of funds, might otherwise be unable to compete. It is proposed that such preliminary competition be held in this country, the eventual winner to challenge Australasia for the trophy, the matches to be played in Australia during the winter of 1920.

It is urged that the National Association endeavor to secure a representative entry list for the national championship tournament, which will be staged next August, probably at the West Side Club courts at Forest Hills, L. I. The entry of every ranking player among the first 10 of the past few years is desired. Many stars have been in the service during the last two seasons. In addition it is hoped that several of the best of the foreign players may be entered in view of the open clause of the championship. Such a tournament would show the probable strength of the American team available for the Davis cup, the following year.

Other recommendations include limiting the prizes for 1919 club tournaments to certificates or standardized medals to be authorized by the association—requiring clubs to report details of their membership, and changing the rules of the junior, boys and girls tournaments to provide for a national doubles championship.

EASTERN SOCCER TEAM TO MEET GREAT LAKES

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Dec. 14.—An intersectional soccer series, with an Eastern wing of the navy swinging against Great Lakes, is proposed as a holiday sport feature. The station squad which plucked six victories out of seven games in Chicago, last week is dickering with Norfolk for a series of five games to be played somewhere on the coast.

Several other cities are eager to book the "gob" kickers for the holidays, but Manager Miller is turning down all bids in preference for the Eastern sailors.

PIKERS FAIL TO GET RETURN GAME WITH CORNHUSKERS

Nebraska Not Included on 1919 Schedule Framed in Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 14.—Washington University is assured of six games on their 1919 football schedule, according to the bookings announced here tonight, after the meeting of Valley Conference officials this week. The Pikers' first game is on Oct. 18, when they meet Drury at Francis Field.

Next in the order named, Washington meets the Kansas Aggies at Manhattan, Rolla at St. Louis, Drake at Des Moines, Missouri at St. Louis and St. Louis University on Thanksgiving day. There is no return game with Nebraska, as Coach Rutherford had hoped to schedule, and 'the chances are the Cornhuskers will not meet the Pikers, since the former's schedule is entirely filled.

Billikens' Schedules Named.

Included in the schedules announced are those of Oklahoma and St. Louis University, both of whom are applicants for admission into the conference. Their applications will be acted upon at a meeting of the Valley officials to be held at Ames, next May.

St. Louis University has six games arranged, two of which are with teams now in the conference. They open against Drake at St. Louis on Oct. 18, then meet Oklahoma at Normal, Depauw at St. Louis, Arkansas at St. Louis, Rose Poly at Terre Haute and conclude with the contest against Washington U. on Thanksgiving day.

Oklahoma has booked Missouri, Kansas and Kansas Aggies, all of whom are members of the conference. The fact that both St. Louis and Oklahoma Universities were able to arrange games with Conference elevens leads followers of the institutions to believe their applications for admission into the conference will be favorably acted upon. The schedules announced follow:

MISSOURI COLLEGIATE LEADERS WILL ASSEMBLE HERE LATE THIS MONTH

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Dec. 14.—Coach H. L. McWilliams of the Kirksville Normals, president of the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, is a member of the committee of the association that has under consideration a readjustment of the athletic affairs of the organization, which has as its aim the participation of more students in all form of athletics at the schools.

Associated with Mr. McWilliams in this work are Prof. Davis of William Jewell College and President Harmon of Missouri Wesleyan College. They are expected to have their report ready to be presented at an educational conference that is to be held in St. Louis the last week in December. The report also is to be referred to the Missouri College Union and the State Teachers' Association.

The idea has been evolved from the S. A. T. C. units where all men are required to do the various exercises and gymnastics. It is pointed out that if this can be accomplished by the Intercollegiate Association through the means of inter-class games a great benefit would accrue for the students.

DEMPSEY MEETS MORRIS.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 14.—Arrangements were completed today for the 20-round boxing bout to be held Monday night between Jack Dempsey, claimant of the heavyweight championship, and Carl Morris of Oklahoma. Dempsey has arrived here and Morris is expected tomorrow.

MERCHANT SHIPYARD TEAM TO PLAY HERE

Eastern Soccerites Show During Christmas Holidays—Good Games for Today.

Announcement was made yesterday by Winton Barker, president of the St. Louis Soccer League, that the Merchants' Shipbuilding Co. soccer team of Harriman, Pa., had accepted terms for a series of games here during the Christmas holidays. The dates on which the eleven will play against the local kickers will be Christmas day, Dec. 28 and 29.

At first efforts were made to bring Bethlehem here, but the national champions asked too big a guarantee. The Merchants' team, which only two weeks ago was beaten by Bethlehem, 4—3, after playing two extra 15-minute periods, was considered next best by the local officials.

William Head Is Manager.

William F. Head, who is manager of the club, formerly managed the West Hudsons, and also is vice president of the National Association League. W. P. Wilson is president of the Merchants' Football Club.

In a letter to Barker, Wilson stated that in the game with Bethlehem, the team was minus two of its leading players, and thinks that if the pair meet again, the result will be different. The winning goal for the champions came on a penalty kick.

It has not been decided what local teams will face the Easterners, but the system of former campaigns, with the leaders getting first choice probably will be followed.

Innisfails Play Screw Company.

Because only two more rounds of games are scheduled before the playing of the holiday contests, the contests booked today should be hard fought. In the opener at Cardinal Field, the Innisfails, present leaders, oppose the St. Louis Screw Co., with the Ben Millers and Scullins fighting it out in the second. Play at 2:15 o'clock.

Many changes are possible as a result of the games booked today. Should the St. Louis Screw Co. and Ben Millers win there will be a three-cornered tie for first place. A victory for the Screw company and a defeat for the Millers will deadlock two elevens for first place, with the other pair tied for last.

The race this season, despite the fact that all the managers are using new players, is the closest that has been staged in many years. Phil Kavanaugh will referee the games today.

SPORT SALAD

Marching Through Belgium.

HOW the people shouted as our columns marched along!
How they swelled the chorus in a glad and glorious song!
Welcoming the soldiers who had come to right a wrong,
While we were marching through Belgium.

CHORUS.

Hooray! Hooray! We bring a jubilee!
Hooray! Hooray! We set the Belgians free!
The Germans were retreating from Lorraine to Zuyder Zee
While we were marching through Belgium.

How the little children, whom the brutal Huns had maimed,
Strewed the path with flowers as they joyously exclaimed:
"Welcome unto Belgium, the country you reclaimed!"
While we were marching through Belgium.

CHORUS.

Hooray! Hooray! It was a glorious cause!
Hooray! Hooray! We trimmed the Kaiser's claws!
When he hiked for Holland on the way he didn't pause,
While we were marching through Belgium.

How the Huns were humbled when the armistice was signed
How the Junkers grumbled and the Hohenzollerns whined!
The Crown Prince, if he had one, would have surely lost his mind,
While we were marching through Belgium.

CHORUS.

Hooray! Hooray! The world is safe again!
Hooray! Hooray! All join the glad refrain!
We mourn our fallen heroes but they didn't die in vain,
While we were marching through Belgium.

Lakes Eleven Departs Dec. 20.

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Dec. 14.—The Great Lakes football team will leave for Pasadena on Dec. 20. This will give the players a few days in which to become acclimated. They play the New Year's game at the tournament of Roses. A picked service eleven will oppose the navy champions.

KEEN KUTTERS TO PLAY NATIVITY SOCCER TEAM IN MUNICIPAL FEATURE

The Keen Kutters and the Nativitys meet today in what should prove the feature game of the Municipal Soccer Association round. The contest will be the second on the Fairground No. 2 schedule. The Trubulls and Spanish A. C. fight it out in the opener.

The Fairground No. 4 group will play its opening clash with the Inlands tackling the St. Francis de Sales.

The schedule is as follows:

Fairground No. 3: St. Patricks vs. Ely Walkers; Alpen Braus vs. Visitation. J. J. Kelly, referee.

SHAMROCK IV WILL BE GREAT BRITAIN'S NEXT CUP DEFENDER—LIPTON

(Copyright.)

LONDON, Dec. 14.—"I am as anxious as ever to bring the America's Cup to this side. It is the ambition of my life."

So said Sir Thomas Lipton, today, in talking with a correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, regarding the challenge cabled by the Royal Ulster Yacht Club to the New York Yacht Club, suggesting another race for the famous trophy.

"I have been racing yachts close to 20 years and I have set my heart on bringing that cup back to its original home."

Sir Thomas added: "There is no limit to which I would not go in building a boat and securing the best racing captain and crew Great Britain can supply.

"Have been advised that my Shamrock IV, now in the United States, can quickly be put in condition for racing and if she is not good enough to lift the cup, why, maybe, I'll build another yacht and try again."

Bill Doak Declares He Is Through With St. Louis Cardinals

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 14.

WILLIAM L. DOAK, star pitcher of the Cardinals, will not work in the Mound City next year. This announcement was made by Doak himself. It is not a matter of salary or any disagreement with the management, that caused Doak to reach the decision that he will only work in some city other than St. Louis.

He declares that his reason for wishing to get away from the Mound City is because the hot summer weather does not agree with him. He says if a deal cannot be arranged whereby he be traded or sold to some other club he will seek employment outside of baseball, in Pittsburg.

Doak is a resident of Knoxville and he started playing on the local hill tops when he was a school boy. During his six years with the Cardinals Doak has proven himself one of the star hurlers of the National League.

HEYDLER TO DECIDE CHASE CASE—HERRMANN

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 14.—According to Garry Herrmann, who returned from the New York meeting, Saturday, the case against Hal Chase has not been quietly dropped, but has been turned over to John A. Heydler, who, as president, is alone empowered to decide cases where the penalty on conviction is expulsion from the National League.

Mr. Herrmann also announced that the Cincinnati Club would be ripped apart and numerous new players put in Red uniforms for the 1919 season; that no manager had yet been appointed, but that the changes in the club would be little short of startling.

As to his own chance of remaining both at the head of the Reds and the head of the National Commission, he would vouchsafe no definite remarks.

ST. LOUISAN IS PLACED ON ALL-STAR FOOTBALL TEAM AT GREAT LAKES

Loren Murchinson, the former McKinley High School student, and present National A. A. U. 220-yard sprint champion, has been placed on the all-star football eleven at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Stars of the station's regular varsity team were not considered in picking the aggregation, it being made up of men who played on the regimental league elevens.

AUTO RACE DATE CHANGED

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 14.—The 500-mile victory sweepstakes at the Indianapolis speedway will be run on Saturday, May 31, instead of Decoration day, May 30. Theodore E. Meyers, business manager of the Speedway, this afternoon received a message from Carl G. Fisher, one of the track owners, who is in Florida, announcing the change. Recently there has been some criticism on the selection of Decoration day for the automobile race.

A special two-man bowling match will be rolled this afternoon on the Washington alleys, when Otto Stein Jr. and Oscar Whitehead oppose Jerry Ameling and Howard Smith in a five-game total pins to count clash. Herman Grosse and Bob Meihhardt have challenged the winners to a match.

U. S. ARMY ALLOTMENT NOW MADE REGULARLY

September and October Remittances Out and November Distributions Are Under Way.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. — The War Risk Insurance Bureau is now beginning to "see daylight." For more than two months the bureau has been behind schedule in mailing allotment checks, with the result that it has been receiving as high as 15,000 complaints a day by mail, plus the maledictions of hundreds of Congressmen whose mail has been jammed with letters from anxious constituents.

Checks that should have been cleared from the bureau in September were finally mailed this week. With them went the October remittances. Altogether, according to bureau officials, close to 2,000,000 checks covering payments for the two months have been mailed. One hundred and forty thousand cases, in which some adjustment is necessary, are yet to be dealt with. On Wednesday the bureau began mailing the checks for November. The hope was expressed that hereafter, with the aid of its five new machines which, when running properly, can turn out 15,000 filled-in checks an hour, the bureau will be able to keep up with the task of sending money to soldiers' dependents.

A Target of Criticism.

Meantime, the bureau is the target of the most caustic criticism leveled by Congressmen at any Government activity, and it is not unlikely that in the near future a formal investigation will be ordered. Democrats and Republicans alike are saying unprintable things about the failure of the bureau to pay allotments on time. Beyond an occasional criticism by some Republicans in Congress, directed generally at the magnitude of the bureau's army of employes—the number has been variously estimated as 12,000 to 16,000—not much has been publicly said about the bureau, but now that the war is over, Congressmen say that they are going to "open up." They say this with particular vigor and picturesqueness when they look over the letters that for weeks have been pouring in from soldiers' relatives, many of the letters telling of real hardship suffered through the unexplained failure of the allotment checks to arrive.

The War Risk Bureau has three departments, each a huge enterprise in itself. One branch handles soldiers' allotments and allowances, another takes care of the insurance feature of the act, and a third administers the compensation section, providing payments in case of death or total disability of a man in service.

War risk officials frankly admit that the bureau, especially in the department devoted to the payment of soldiers' allotments, made a bad start, and most of the troubles that have piled up, they say, are due to that fact.

The act providing for allotments and allowances was approved in October, 1917, and before the bureau could get under way it had half a million applications piled up. It was not till January that checks began going out regularly. The problem of getting competent help was extremely difficult. Clerks were put on at the rate of 1000 a month. Some were skilled, but most of them were women who had had no experience in office work. All the checks had to be written by hand.

Other Complications.

Things were moving pretty well, according to officials, when, on July 1, an army order went into effect providing that all soldiers' allotments which did not carry a Government allowance (voluntary allotments to parents, for example), and all allotments in excess of the amount necessary to carry the allowance, should not be further handled through the War Risk Bureau, but through the respective branches of the service—the army, the navy and the marine corps.

The order caused a lot of confusion. A ruling was made that all soldiers affected more than 200,000—should be notified, through their commanding officers, to file new allotment blanks. Meantime their allotments were cancelled. Many of the men affected were in the front line fighting, and were necessarily delayed in making out their new application blanks.

The bureau, according to officials, has had to flounder through a sea of troubles. One of the chief of these—and the main cause, they say, for recent delays in sending out checks—was the influenza epidemic, which materially reduced the number of workers.

Correspondence has piled up till the bureau is two or three weeks behind. Gradually, officials say, it is catching up. They expect that the bureau will soon get the decks clear and be able to answer letters and send out checks on time. But they foresee other unavoidable troubles in the near future following the wholesale mustering out of soldiers. In this process the bureau fears that it will not always get prompt notification of a soldier's discharge, and consequently there will be many cases of overpayment that will have to be adjusted.

FRANCE BUYS RIVER BARGES

Three self-propelling barges of the Inland Navigation Co., which for a time were in service on the Mississippi River out of New Orleans, have been bought by the French Government and will be rebuilt at a cost of $700,000 in St. Louis for ocean service.

The Boat Boiler and Tank Co. yesterday received word that it had been awarded the contract. Work on the barges will begin at the foot of Marceau street upon their arrival from New Orleans about Jan. 1.

Each Mountaineer Placed Flag in Grave of Soldier

Military Escort Tells of Impressive Ceremony Attended by 2000 Persons in Remote Village in Eastern Kentucky.

PARIS, Ky.—Sergeant-Major Noel Stivers of the Tenth Infantry, stationed at Camp Sherman, near Chillicothe, O., stopped at his home here on his way back to the camp after serving as burial escort for Private Harold Brandemberg, a mountain youth, who died at Camp Sherman of influenza. Sergeant Stivers was much impressed with the burial ceremony arranged by the mountain folk.

When he arrived at Harlem, Sergt. Stivers found his destination was 20 miles from that place, and in a part of the mountains inaccessable to ordinary vehicles. Placing the casket in a roughly made cart, drawn by four oxen, the funeral cortege started on its journey, Sergt. Stivers walking the entire distance behind the cart as a guard of honor.

On account of the roughness of the roads and the circuitous route, two days and nights were required for the trip.

Many Await Party.

On arriving at their destination, a village clinging to the side of a mountain, it was found that a courier had preceded them with the news which, by means of methods known only to the inhabitants of the mountains, had been circulated far and wide. As a consequence a crowd of about 2000 men, women and children had gathered to pay their respects to the soldier.

The burial took place late in the afternoon of the day following the arrival, and was carried out in a manner illustrating the patriotism of the mountain people.

Before the arrival of the funeral party arrangements had been made for a military burial. The casket was covered with a large American flag and was carried on the shoulders of six young men, associates of the soldier, about a mile to a small clearing on the side of the mountain.

The advance guard was a score of veterans of the civil war, some wearing gray, others blue, uniforms that had been treasured since peace was declared between the North and the South. Each of the veterans carried an old fashioned musket or rifle and in spite of their age kept step with military precision.

Each Placed Flag in Grave.

On arriving at the place of burial, the casket was deposited by the side of the open grave and a feeble, grey bearded pastor made an address extolling the patriotism of the young soldier, whom, he said, "had died that we may live." At the close of his address a lengthy prayer was offered and the casket was gently lowered.

When the last clod of earth had fallen, one of the veteran escort, with a battered cornet, sounded "taps" and the company fired the salute.

Every person in the large crowd carried a small American flag, which was deposited in the grave before it was filled. Many of the women were barefoot and bareheaded, but all of them had gathered bunches of wild flowers from the mountain side, and the grave was literally covered with their tributes.

Sergt. Stivers says the ceremony will have a lasting impression on him, and thoroughly demonstrated in his mind the loyalty and devotion of the mountain people of Kentucky to their country. The hospitality of every home in the small village was offered to him during his short stay and each one seemed to vie with the other in showing their gratitude to him for the respect he had shown one of their young men.

CHURCH FURNITURE STOLEN

Thieves Take Rugs and Other Things of Value.

HOUSTON, Tex.—The South End Christian Church was entered by burglars and a number of rugs and various other movable articles of furniture were removed from the building.

There have been a number of petty burglaries reported in Houston in the past few days and some of them have been fastened upon four young boys, who have been taken in charge by the juvenile officer.

SPENCER AMENDMENT WOULD CUT TAX ON FURS IN HALF

Senate Will Be Asked Monday to Lay Aside All Other Business to Consider Revenue Bill.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Formal notice was served in the Senate today by Chairman Simmons of the Finance Committee, that beginning Monday he would ask that all other business be laid aside to give consideration to the war revenue bill.

Action on amendments was halted today by general debate.

In resuming general discussion, Senator Smoot of Utah, Republican, began an address, which he will continue Monday, attacking principally the plan for raising $4,000,000,000 by taxation in 1920.

Senator Smoot said there was public misapprehension regarding this provision. People had been led to believe $4,000,000,000 would cover all Government expenditures, when at least $10,000,000,000 will be required, he said, and added issuance of bonds in peace times will be necessary.

Numerous amendments were introduced today. One by Senator Kenyon of Iowa would levy 20 per cent on meals in a hotel, restaurant or dining car costing more than $2 per person. Another by him would permit taxpayers in computing income and excess profits to make an inventory on a pre-war basis of the price of which had been because of the war.

Senator Spencer of Missouri sented an amendment reducing tax on furs from 10 to 5 per At his request the Senate ered its adoption yesterday of the per cent rate.

REVIVAL IN REALTY SHOWN IN DEALS FOR APARTMENTS

Papers Carrying Control of Several Properties of This Character Said to Have Been Executed During the Past Few Days.

BUILDERS ACTIVE IN THIS DIRECTION

Demand for Holdings East of Grand Avenue and East of Twelfth Street Said to Be Taking on Large Proportions.

By Berry Moore.

According to the street, a broad revival of operations in realty circles has been launched, with deals for control of large apartment buildings the feature. Papers in several operations of magnitude of this character have been executed, but details are withheld pending the filing of the instruments for record.

The Paul Jones Realty Co. has disposed of an extensive apartment building in the West End to large building contractors, who obviously have acquired the holding for speculation rather than for an investment. This is the third instance disclosed recently in which professional builders have purchased apartments, and which is of significance in view of the fact that the embargo on construction has been entirely removed.

The truth is that buildings of this type can be purchased now for substantially less money than they can be constructed, with the prevailing high cost of building material and of labor, while the indications are that they can be resold in the near future at snug profits. Contractors have apparently despaired of a reduction in the prices of building material, not to say of labor, for a long time, many believing that it will be four or five years before there will be any perceptible improvement in conditions so far as building is concerned. Some declare that prices of construction will never be any lower, and probably will be higher.

Last of Apartments Resold.

The Dyas Realty Co. of which D. L. Dyas is president, has resold the eighth and last of the San Marco Apartments on Delmar boulevard, east of Union boulevard, for the George T. Burdeau Realty Co., which recently acquired them through the real estate department of the Mercantile Trust Co., the investment having realized for Burdeau a generous profit. The buildings have been revamped and thoroughly renovated. Burdeau, who has been a builder on an extensive scale, is another who is buying rather than building.

A. J. Francis, builder of the new Brentmoor Apartments, under the management of the Oreon E. & R. G. Scott Real Estate Co., a fortnight ago purchased the northeast corner of Boyle and Maryland avenues, comprising six stores and 24 apartments. His plans provide for the remodeling of this attractively situated building.

Several offers were reported during the week for the new fireproof four-room Woodrow Apartments at 4009 Lindell boulevard. There was also an attractive offer submitted for the eight-story Westmore elevator-kitchenette apartments on the south side of Berlin avenue west of Union owned by a company of which Sam Hamburg Jr. is the guiding genius. Since its completion, less than a year ago, there have been many offers forthcoming for the Westmoreland, which is characterized by real estate men as a bonanza.

The Schwenecke Realty Co., in connection with Edward L. Bakewell, has effected the sale of two handsome twin apartments on Clara avenue, but particulars in this instance are withheld pending final execution of the papers. The purchase was made for revenue purposes, the rentals of the apartments having been advanced recently to figures that place the property on a high investment basis. While several pieces of realty were transferred in part payment for the apartments, the bulk of the purchase price was in cash.

Activity East of Grand Avenue.

A resumption of operations in the district east of Grand avenue and east of Twelfth street is also indicated. Contracts were entered into during the week through Franciscus & Kuns for control of several high-grade corners in this area. Other agents also report contracts closed for valuable holdings in these districts, the transfers of which will be made before the close of the current year.

The Mercantile Trust Co. has brought to a successful issue, it is understood, several substantial transactions, but particulars will not be available until after the first of the year. The deals, it is said, contemplate extensive improvement, the nature of which is being closely guarded.

Plans are being evolved for the six-story combination building to be erected on the south side of Delmar boulevard west of Clara avenue by the Belt Investment Co., of which Sam Hamburg Jr. is the dominant figure. Since the project was revealed in the Post-Dispatch two weeks ago, Hamburg has been fairly bewildered with propositions for the theater, which will form the chief feature of the structure. According to realty circles, there has been a veritable scramble for stock in this enterprise, which promises to be an unusually lucrative investment. In addition to the theater, there will be two apartments and four shops.

Hamburg is the only big operator who has had the temerity to cast the die in the construction field with prices of building material and labor at zenith, but he does not anticipate any reduction of prices in this connection and is simply discounting an advance in launching his project at this time.

Plans for an 18-story hotel to be erected on an Eighth street corner, in the maelstrom of the business district, are progressing, according to realty circles. This project came to light before the war, but as a result of the adverse conditions arising from the great conflict it was dropped. It has been revived on a much larger scale, with better prospects of being floated.

Attractive Residence in Parkview Purchased by Chas. E. Freeman

CHARLES E. FREEMAN has purchased the residence at 315 Westgate avenue, owned by W. B. and Marjorie H. Priest, through Albert T. Terry & Co. The house has 12 rooms, is equipped with two baths and a hot water heating plant, and is finished throughout in hardwood. The premises also include a garage. The house is one of the most attractive in Parkview.

JAMES CAMPBELL ESTATE FINAL SETTLEMENT FILED WITH COURT

Distribution of Property Valued at $11,866,759.95 Netted Mercantile Trust as Executor $513,320.26.

A final settlement of the estate of James Campbell, capitalist and broker, who died four years ago, was filed yesterday by the Mercantile Trust Co. as executor of his will. It shows a balance on hand of $2,358,790.06, of which $2,331,409.81 consists of stock in various corporations, listed at par value. Probate Judge Holtcamp approved the settlement and ordered the executor to turn the balance over to itself as trustee for the benefit of Mrs. Campbell and her daughter, Mrs. Elzey Burkham.

The final distribution was delayed by reason of the will contest proceedings filed by collateral relatives of Campbell, which they eventually lost. In a settlement of June 11, 1917, personal property with a total par value of $11,866,758.95 was listed. The bulk of this at that time was disbursed to the trustees for the benefit of the widow and daughter.

The settlements show that the Mercantile Trust Co. has received as commissions for its services in handling the property as executor a total of $513,320.26.

Following are some of the stocks listed in the settlement yesterday: 8750 shares of Rock Island Railroad (preferred), 6900 shares Missouri Pacific Railroad, 750 shares Campbell Improvement Co., 567 shares New Orleans, Mobile & Chicago Railway, 16,800 shares Missouri Lead and Zinc Co., 1181 shares United Railways (preferred), listed at $118,000; 904 shares Kirby Lumber Co., 435 shares American Light and Traction Co., 100 shares Havana Tobacco Co., and 150 shares No. 1 Wall Street Corporation.

The estate now passes from control of the Probate Court. The St. Louis University is ultimate beneficiary under the will.

CO-OPERATION WOULD STAMP OUT INFLUENZA, AGENT SAYS

John S. Harris of J. H. Farish & Co.,

John S. Harris of J. H. Farish & Co., has been busy since Oct. 7 on duties as chief of volunteer inspectors in Health Commissioner Starkloff's office. Harris says he believes that if Starkloff had the co-operation of St. Louisans the influenza could be easily stamped out in this city. He states that several realty agents are giving splendid aid to the Health Commissioner.

JAMES C. MORFIT.

James C. Morfit reports having sold to G. F. Martin the northwest corner of Swon and Maple avenues, Webster Groves, a lot 125x270 feet.

He also reports having closed contracts last week for the sale of two other Webster Groves houses and one St. Louis residence.

FORMER LEGAL FIRM TO BE REORGANIZED

Carter, Collins and Jones Will Renew Partnership, Ended Five Years Ago, Jan. 1.

It became known yesterday that W. F. Carter, Charles Cummings Collins and Judge William T. Jones will enter into a law partnership on Jan. 1.

These lawyers formed a partnership on Jan. 1, 1905, and continued in existence without change until Carter was elected vice president of the Mercantile Trust Co. in 1909. In January, 1913, Jones became Judge of the Circuit Court. Collins continued to practice, with the firm of Collins, Barker & Britton.

It was recently announced that Carter would resign from the Mercantile Trust Co. on Jan. 1, though continuing as a director. Judge Jones' term of office expires Dec. 31, and Collins' present firm will be dissolved by mutual consent at that time, and this leaves them free to renew the partnership.

Besides them, the partnership will also include Claude K. Rowland, who is a member of Collins' present firm, and Emmet T. Carter, son of W. F. Carter. The firm will occupy the offices occupied by Collins' present firm, 1425-34 Boatmen's Bank Building.

E. E. DETERING OPENS AGENCY

Widely Known Raelty Man Says He Will Shortly Close $40,000 Deal.

Edmund E. Detering, who for years has been connected with the Tombridge agency, one of the oldest realty concerns in St. Louis, has opened the Detering agency at 3627 Gravois avenue, incorporated for $15,000.

Detering says he expects to close a $40,000 deal within a few days and to make loans aggregating several thousand dollars within the next week. He has a well established line of insurance.

Detering has a wide acquaintance in St. Louis and is known to have made some of the largest real estate transactions in the southern section of the city.

LUCAS AVENUE BUILDING LEASED

Manufacturing Concern to Have 10,000 Feet of Floor Space.

The Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. reports having leased to the Connelly Manufacturing Co., the first floor and basement of the building at 701-03 Lucas avenue owned by Patrick Burns. The company is now at 210-12 North Seventh street, and has offices at 506-08 Columbia Building. The new premises will give the company about 10,000 square feet of space. It manufactures stationery tags, jewelry boxes and cases, and jewelry findings. E. E. Ellsmeyer, is president; F. H. Ellsmeyer, vice president, and J. J. Connelly, secretary and treasurer.

FURNACE COMPANY ADDS TO SITE

Buys Adjoining Property to Enlarge Facilities for Local Trade.

Cornet & Zeibig report having sold, for the Joseph Herrmann R. & I. Co., the building at 2719-21 Morgan street to the American Furnace Co., which owns and occupies 2723-31 Morgan street.

The concern manufactures warm air furnaces, which have for the most part been shipped to outside points. The management expects great building activity in St. Louis next year, and has bought the adjoining building and will equip it to take care of business in this city.

PUESER REALTY CO.

The John H. Pueser Realty Co. reports the sale of a four-room cottage at 2013 Mallinckrodt street, with a two-room brick cottage in rear, for a client to Charles J. Etsenring.

STRAUS SAYS BUILDING BOOM WAITS ON LABOR

Realty Man Says Abnormal Activities Are Promised in Every City.

Commenting on the building situation throughout the United tSates, S. W. Straus of S. W. Straus & Co., says:

"The shortage of labor in many of the essential trades seems to be the only element at present which prevents the resumption of building operations on a large scale.

"There are everywhere indications of the tremendous potential strength of the situation. From every city come reports of projected activities of abnormal proportions, including all types of structures. In the East there are reports of several very large hotel projects and throughout the country there is an unprecedented demand for apartment houses, industrial plants and office buildings. In the Metropolitan District of New York there is said to be close to $100,000,000 of new construction work in contemplation in addition to upwards of $100,000,000 of building operations which were held back by the war.

"There is a considerable demand in all cities for dwellings and small flat buildings, but the continuation of high prices for labor and materials is quite apt to discourage the small builder. With the labor situation retarding activities very materially for the present, it probably will be some weeks or months before the great building boom which is bound to ensue can get fully under way.

"The labor element, rather than a shortage of materials, is likely to continue as the retarding feature, for, notwithstanding the swift processes of changing the nation's industries from a war to a peace footing, the country's construction demands are so abnormal that all of the released man power will readily be absorbed.

"Weather conditions within the next few weeks will have some bearing on the situation. But no matter what the immediate developments may be, there seems no possibility that anything can occur to prevent the inauguration of enormous building activities which will continue for many years in all American cities.

"There is nothing to indicate any recession in rentals which are from 10 per cent to 40 per cent above normal, and it is expected that they will maintain their present high levels along with all other commodities."

TWO HANDSOME RESIDENCES ON PERSHING BOULEVARD SOLD

Weisels-Gerhart Realty Co. Also Reports Leasing of Two Downtown Properties.

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. reports the sale of 6910 Pershing boulevard to F. L. Mackay. This is one of the most attractive homes in Ames place, and was sold for B. M. Matthews.

The company also sold the residence of the late Dr. Jacob Friedman, 4653 Pershing boulevard, to Aida L. Mayham. The home is on a lot 51x165 feet. It contains 12 rooms, and was sold for Mrs. Fannie Friedman. The purchaser was represented by Frank W. Rodgers.

The company also reports having leased for Mrs. Harriet Beers the building at 1520 Olive street, to the Riehl Machine Co. The building is on a lot 25x109 feet.

It also leased the four-story hotel building on the southeast corner of Seventh and Morgan streets to Barney Corn, for the Alvin Realty Co., of which Meyer Bauman is president. The premises contain about 40 rooms and 15 baths.

TWO LARGE RESIDENCES LEASED

New Occupants for Vandeventer Place and Washington Avenue Homes.

Albert T. Terry & Co. report having leased 476 Vandeventer place, a 10-room residence, from W. J. Hiss of Washington, D. C., to W. C. Dyer.

YECKLE-MARTIN R. E. CO.

The Yeckel-Martin Real Estate and Mortgage Co. reports the sale of a cottage at 5322 Quincy street, for Clyde S. Fisher and wife to Anna Brandhorst.

Also a five-room cottage at 4446 Neosho street, for Charles Jones and wife to Harry Graves and wife.

Also a single flat at 3727 Bamberger avenue, to George F. Schulenburg and wife.

Also two lots in Richmond Heights, one to Frank McDonald, on Bellview avenue, the other to L. T. Green, on Arlington boulevard.

FEDERAL COURT SESSION TO BEGIN AT EAST ST. LOUIS JAN. 6

Judge G. W. English of the Federal Court yesterday issued instructions for a setting of cases for a session to be held in East St. Louis, beginning Jan. 6.

John Mayfield of East Carondelet, formerly a rural mail carrier, yesterday entered a plea of guilty to stealing flour from a freight car. The charge caused him to lose his position. He has not been sentenced. Gus Reubel and Erman Pugh, also of East Carondelet, charged with a similar offense, being jointly accused with Mayfield, denied the charge and stood trial. The jury has not reached a verdict.

The jury which was deliberating on the case of Samuel Davis, charged with violating the postal law by signing his name in receipt for a registered letter mailed to Nick Appoponus, was excused until Monday because of the death of a brother to W. C. Rogers, foreman of the jury. Testimony in the case was that Davis was given the post card announcing a registered letter was at the postoffice, and had authority from Appopondus to get and sign for the letter. Davis was arrested in Youngstown, O., after having cashied the cashier's check for $100, which was in the letter.

MRS. LOTTIE WOODS, 27, OF LOUISVILLE, Ill., and Charlie Davis, 44, of Flora, Ill., were refused a marriage license yesterday because she has been divorced less than one year.

BELL BETHEL YESTERDAY FILED suit in the City Court against W. G. McAdoo, Director General of Railroads, and the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. for $20,000 damages for the loss of his right foot, which, he alleges, was crushed off by a locomotive while he was working as "hostler" in the railroad company's roundhouse in July, 1917. Bethel said the locomotive was moved while he was working under it.

ROBERT ALBERTSON, 810 PENNSYLVANIA avenue, has received a letter from his brother, Walter Albertson, 25, member of the Dental Corps, 124th (East St. Louis) Field Artillery, in which he said he had been discharged from a hospital after treatment for an injury to one of his eyes.

JAMES DAVIDSON, 19, 1928 NORTH Thirty-ninth street, died yesterday. His death is the third in the family in two weeks. His uncle, William Comley, died two weeks ago. Last Sunday his mother, Mrs. Kate Davidson, died.

THREE DEATHS FROM INFLUENZA were reported to the Health Department yesterday, making a total of 277. Sixteen additional cases were reported.

THE REV. WILLIAM P. PEARCE OF Evansville, Wis., will preach in the First Baptist Church this morning and evening. The congregation is seeking a pastor to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the Rev. G. W. Allison.

EAST ST. LOUIS TO LAUNCH CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN TODAY

A clean-up of East St. Louis, under auspices of the War Civics Clean-up Committee, will be conducted next week under supervision of district committees, William J. Veach being campaign manager. The preliminary work commences today when each minister will preach on "clean-up and its relations to the life of the individual and the life of the city." Tomorrow night a meeting of the district committees will be held in the U. S. District Court room.

Property owners and tenants are requested to burn all rubbish which can be burned, and what can't be burned must be scraped into piles for collection by team and truck owners who have volunteered their vehicles and services.

The clean-up is one of the initial moves on the part of the War Civics Committee, which is trying to make East St. Louis a model city. A fund of $200,000 has been subscribed and the plans include the creation of community centers, improvement of housing conditions, etc.

John Nolan, city planning expert of Cambridge, Mass., spent two days in the city last week making a survey and he will submit to the War Department plans which he believes should be adopted in order to bring about the desired result. While in the city he advocated community centers, more playgrounds and neighborhood parks, the elimination of Cahokia Creek as a nuisance, converting it into a water course or a sewer, an open river front for the landing of steamboats and other changes for moral and business betterment.

SHERIFF SEARCHES TOW ISLAND

Sheriff Grothe of St. Charles sent a number of his deputies to Tow Island in the Missouri River east of Hamburg yesterday to look for a band of thieves who have been depleting the hen coops and granaries of farmers in the vicinity for a month past.

The deputies discovered a dugout on the island where, apparently, a number of men had been living. They found some tools and a few articles of furniture, but no persons or hidden booty. Other islands in the Mississippi and Missouri are to be searched.

Alton Items

CHRIS RAIN, A SALOON KEEPER IN North Alton, swore out a warrant in the Alton Police Court yesterday, charging Ed McLain, George Stanich and Dan Gully with holding him up and robbing him of $50 on East Broadway.

BUSINESS MEN INTERESTED IN WAR work met Friday at the Mineral Springs Hotel and formed an organization under the direction of the National Bureau for the return of soldiers. Eben Rodgers was selected chairman and J. D. McAdams secretary.

JOHN HUBERT TRATT, A SIGN PAINTER, died Friday of pneumonia. He had resided in Alton 34 years. The body was shipped to Shipman yesterday.

WONDERFUL BUNGALOW FOR SALE

Only a six minutes' ride from Parkview, on the Creve Coeur car line.

Located in Vinita Terrace, "The Portland place" of the suburbs, where the street improvements alone cost $10 a running foot.

Built for a home, nothing cheap; everything the best, yet reasonable enough for the family paying $40 or $50 a month rent.

Seven rooms, sleeping porch, large porch across front; beautiful in exterior and beautifully arranged inside.

Can be had now, ahead of next spring's rush for several hundred less less than the price will be when the rush to the suburbs begins.

See the bungalow today; will be open Sunday afternoon.

If you cannot go today and want particulars, phone in evening, Lindell 4981.

IS THIS YOUR IDEA OF FLORIDA?

A little piece of land near the water, a boat, a garden, some strawberry plants, and perhaps a few chickens; a vine-covered cottage, pleasant neighbors; fish and oysters in abundance, plenty of quail and game, a simple, natural, wholesome life in the open the year round—Home, Health and Contentment. All this is within your reach at modest outlay in this beautiful land of sunshine and roses. We are on the Gulf and a navigable river, also on the Dixie Highway, and we are only two hours by auto jitney from Tampa and St. Petersburg. Here we have the freedom, comfort and economy of country life, yet are within easy access of the big cities and resort centers. Our community is new, but is one of the fastest growing in the state. Prices have not gone sky-high, and living expenses are moderate. 100 northern families already here. They like it—perhaps you will. May we send complete information? BOARD OF TRADE, Box 127, New Port Richey, Fla.

LOWER RANGE TO CORN ON CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Pronounced weakness developed in the corn market today, owing largely to the outlook for an increase of receipts. The close was heavy, 2¼c to 3¼c net lower, with January and May both $1.35¾ to $1.36. Oats finished 1⅝c to 2c off, and provision down 50c to $1.

Forecasts of cold, dry weather tended to stimulate selling, inasmuch as continued mild temperatures and excessive dampness have been seriously retarding the crop movement.

Reports that congestion abroad would compel a readjustment of the Food Administration shipping program were also influential toward making sentiment more bearish.

There was an evident scarcity of new buying orders, and at the same time many holders who had profits to realize did not wish to take further chances over Sunday. Under these circumstances values dropped rapidly and at no time was there any important reaction.

Oats shared the depression of corn. Furthermore, there were reports of reselling of cash oats by the Government.

Provisions fell with hogs and grain. Big receipts of hogs next week were expected notwithstanding that killing facilities here were overtaxed. Immense shipments of meats and lard to the seaboard from Chicago seemed for the time being to have been discounted as a market factor.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly review, says:

"For the halt in financial and industrial initiative, which instantly followed the ending of the war, and which was faithfully reflected by the inertia of the Stock Exchange, there have been two obvious explanations. Uncertainty over what would happen to orders, prices, wages and business profits when the war contracts were withdrawn, was no doubt the more immediate influence. But behind that consideration stood the uncertainty as to what would be disclosed as the permanent tendency of the new era, in such vital matters, as private management or direct governmental control and operations of the great public utilities.

"Prediction had been very general that the far-reaching assumption by the Senate, of control of industry in war time, would turn out to be merely the prelude to some permanent system of state socialism. That we should be living in a different world from that of July, 1914, was considered by everyone as probable. The question was, how different?

"A month is hardly a sufficient stretch of time to admit of definite conclusions. Nevertheless, it is already safe to say that while even the financial markets appeared to be in doubt as to what would happen, things have been happening which strongly indicate at least the direction of events.

Government Control.

"The practical question had arisen as to prolonging Government control of prices for materials—not as a socialistic measure, but purely as an expedient of the 'transition period.' That plausible enough suggestion was rejected by the Government, and its rejection evidently approved both by producers and consumers.

"This week's proposal by the retiring Director-General of the Railways, that Government operation be extended five years, instead of terminating 21 months after peace, met with absolutely no favor in any quarter. Complicated as the situation of the companies undoubtedly is, after the war-time experiment, and with all the existing agreements that the railways cannot be 'turned back' without new legislation safeguards, the consensus of public opinion has appeared unmistakably to be that the country does not want Government operation a moment longer than is necessary, and is settled in its mind that private ownership should be continued and private operation restored, under a system of public regulation which will make use of such really valuable lessons as have been learned through this year of 'unified control.'

"It is possible to draw premature inferences; but there is at least the warrant for saying that visible signs up to this moment give no evidence of a coming wide swing of this country away from its old economic moorings. The middle ground of utilities, with the purpose of ensuring economy, eficiency and solvency, is the direction on which opinion seems to drift. But that, if properly applied, might easily be a factor of high importance in our future industrial achievement.

The Break in Prices.

"If this is the longer view of the tendencies of the day, the question of prices, cost and profits in the industrial field is the more immediate. This is clearly what has influenced the downward drift of prices on the Stock Exchange.

"Yet even in this matter time enough has elapsed to perceive few unexpected developments.

"One is the fact that fear of the 'perpendicular decline' in prices of commodities does not exist. Manufacturers are preparing to reduce prices, but there is no evidence that they expect a disastrous collapse.

"Middlemen and retailers are preparing to buy cautiously, but they are not cutting prices in their schedules; apparently, for the reason that the large and indispensable requirements of consumers are in plain sight.

"At some point in the readjustment of prices, which is bound to come, the markets seem likely to reach a reasonably stable level. Then we shall be able to measure the real force of the accumulated peace-time demand.

"Perhaps it may be said that even the hesitating movement of the stock market since the armistice, reflects the actual situation. It certainly has not gone to pieces as it did in 1916, and as it would do now if demoralization of industry were believed to be ahead of us. It has not advanced as enthusiastically as many people expected it to do on the mere fact that the war is over, evidently because it is studying the practical business problems. But taken as a whole, and allowing for all uncertainties of the immediate future, its undercurrent of steadiness and the absence of any sign that the investor is changing his position, ought to be interpreted as meaning confidence.

"Stock market prices were irregularly higher for the week. Yesterday's trading was steady."

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—As the time for the peace conference approaches there is no slackening of the general determination to impose a big indemnity upon Germany. This is quite apart from the city's recognition of the fact that election tactics largely explain the wild statements that are being made as to definite amounts to be demanded. Nevertheless, in financial circles, calm opinion considers that the correct course to pursue is first to ascertain the full measure of Germany's guilt in plotting the war. Then if guilt is completely proved, the moral claim for payment of the full costs of the war would be irresistible and Germany's ability to pay in installments held to be demonstrable.

Our progress in demobilization, military and financial, has been delayed by the election. It is inevitable, however, that your progress should be more rapid. Hence you get the initial advantage of a good start in the reconstruction period. No petty jealousy exists here, however, because it is recognized that you have a big task ahead in providing raw materials, foodstuffs and financial facilities for Europe.

It is thought that it is essential, however, for your country to take a big view of the requirements of the situation, and the necessity for the ultimate recuperation of the belligerent countries, if the world's prosperity is to rest on a solid basis. The anxiety here is in regard to arrangements for funding the allies' debts to America. It is difficult to organize our affairs until the external indebtedness is arranged.

British trade returns continue to show an excess of imports over exports of about £70,000,000 sterling monthly, which indicates our great adverse balance, even apart from actual indebtedness on loans.

The return of the coalition Government is expected at today's elections. Nevertheless, it is growing increasingly clear that the election was a tactical error, giving the future opposition a great moral hold over the Government, and tending to unite the Asquith Liberals and the Labor party with the Sinn Feiners. Whatever the nominal character of the new Government, labor is likely to call the turn in legislation, hence an increase in direct taxation is expected, with possibly a reduction in indirect taxes. Some levy upon capital is also possible, in response to threats of the laborites, though this is condemned as inherently unsound by financial people.

Many would actually welcome a Labor Government, believing that it will be impossible for any Government to satisfy the demands of that party. But if labor were in power, the party might feel its responsibility.

COTTON 20 TO 50 POINTS HIGHER IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—More favorable domestic consumption figures than expected, with reports of a continued improvement in export prospects and bullish Southern spot advices, led to a sharp advance in the cotton market here today. January contracts sold up to 26.45c, or 47 points above last night's closing figures, closing at 26.35c, with the general list closing steady at a net advance of 30 to 57 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 3 points to an advance of 7 points, but soon sold 20 to 30 points net higher on covering and scattered buying which seemed to be inspired by the census report showing domestic mill consumption for November of 457,376 bales, compared with 440,833 last month and 500,427 last year.

Reports from the goods trade and recent private returns had evidently prepared the trade for smaller figures, but after the first flurry of covering subsided, prices reacted 25 to 30 points under realizing for over the week-end. This was gradually absorbed, and the market firmed up again in the later trading on the strength of New Orleans reports that ships were being released by the army for return to trade routes and that two steamers had been allotted for the cotton trade.

December sold up to 27.85c and March at 25.35c, with active months generally showing net gains of 40 to 55 points in the late trading. The announcement that the committee on cotton distribution had resigned attracted some comment but was not considered a market factor.

London cables reported that a basis for settling the Lancashire strike of cotton spinners had been found, but gave no details. An official of the shipping board was quoted to the effect that great quantities of cotton were awaiting transportation and that it was hoped the allocation of the two steamers announced today could be followed up with additional tonnage as it is released from war requirements.

The cattle trade closed yesterday in better condition than it has been for several weeks. Killing steers and stockers and feeders were 25c higher; common butcher cattle and all cows and bulls, 50c higher; while light yearling butcher cattle sold at strong prices. Demand was broad right along, and normal supplies were handled to advantage at good, strong prices.

Prime heavy beef steers are quoted at $17 to $19.40; good to choice, $15 to $16.50; medium to good, $13.50 to $14.50; common to medium weighty steers, $11.50 to $12; common light steers, $7.50 to $10. Good to choice feeders, $10.50 to $12; common to medium, $7 to $9.50. Good to choice stockers, $9.25 to $10.50; common to medium, $7.50 to $9. Choice to prime fat light yearling butcher cattle, $11 to $15; good to choice, $8.50 to $11; common to medium, $7 to $8.50. Choice to fancy heavy beef cows, $11 to $13; good to choice, $9 to $11; medium to good, $8 to $9; cutters, $7 to $8; canners, $6.25 to $6.75. Fat beef bulls, $10 to $12; sausage bulls, $7.50 to $9. Good to choice stock cows, $6.75 to $7.25; good to choice stock heifers, $7.50 to $8.50.

Never before has this market been so over-supplied with hogs as it was last week; and at the close there were lots of lightweights and Southern varieties carried over unsold. Good native hogs, with good weight and fat, sold steady yesterday; top, $17.65. But on the lights and Southerns it was not a case of values, but of getting bids and disposing of them, and there are lots of them that have been laying in the pens all week without bids, and are getting sick.

Bulk of the good hogs weighing from 180 lbs. upward sold yesterday at from $17 to $17.60; lighter weight hogs, 150 to 175 lbs., $15.50 to $16.75; 130 to 150 lb. pigs, $14 to $15.25; lighter pigs, $10 for common kinds, up to $13.75 for the best; best rough hogs, $16.40; half fat roughs, $12 to $15.

Lambs advanced 25c to 35c, and sheep 50c to 75c last week, over the previous week.

Good to choice lambs sell at $15.50 to $15.85; medium to good, $14 to $15.35; cull lambs, $11 to $11.50; skip culls, $7 to $9; fat sheep, $9.25 to $9.75; choppers and bucks, $7.50 to $8; canners, $5. Good fat goats, $5.50 to $6.50; plain common kinds, $3 to $4.50; kids $6.50 to $9.

CORN CROP REPORT CAUSES FUTURE PRICES TO SOAR

Week's Market Is Sharply Higher on Big Reduction in Yield Estimate Oats Are Steady.

Corn futures went soaring here last week, as a result mainly of official announcement that the 1918 crop would not be sufficient for home consumption, to say nothing of export demand. Prices at the close yesterday compared with a week ago, were 3⅝c to 4⅝c up. Oats showed gains of ½c to 1c.

Notwithstanding that the Government crop report had been expected to show a material shrinkage in the estimate yield of corn, the magnitude of the reduction, 166,000,000 bu, came to the trade as an unmistakable jolt. A wild stampede to buy followed, and bullish sentiment grew even after overnight reflection, especially on the part of producers.

Delays which the crop movement had encountered owing to continued rain, and to unseasonably warm weather, counted also as a stimulus to buyers. On the other hand, suggestions that abandonment of acreages had been overestimated by the Government failed to attract much notice. Yesterday's market reflected profit taking sales and prices lost 3c compared with Friday's close.

Oats made relatively slight response to the flurried action of corn. The huge yield of oats, officially confirmed, seemed to operate as a check. Yesteday's market was weak and lower than Friday.

Net earnings, month of October, 1918.	174,727.72

Quoting from a letter to us from Mr. E. W. Marland, president, and other sources, we summarize as follows:

Marland Refining Company was organized under the laws of the State of Oklahoma in May, 1917, with a capitalization of $2,500,000.00 fully paid. By the sale of additional stock and stock distributions, the capitalization has been increased to its present amount.

The Company has:

Oil leases, which it owns wholly or in part, covering approximately 60,000 acres in the Mid-Continent Oil Field of Oklahoma. The lease holdings in some cases are owned in partnership with other well-known companies. This acreage has been selected on account of its settled production and its proximity to producing and proven acreage.

Production at the present time in excess of 2200 barrels of crude oil per day, from approximately 80 wells, and in addition is drilling and interested in drilling 40 wells, most of which offset other wells.

A modern refinery in close proximity to its production, which when completed will have a capacity of 2500 barrels per day. It is now refining about 1500 barrels per day.

Two operating Casinghead Gasoline Plants, with a daily capacity of 12,000 gallons of blended gasoline, and is now building a Casinghead Plant at Garber, Okla., and contemplates building another at Quay, Okla.

Three hundred and twenty (320) tank cars with which to gather and distribute its products to the markets.

Paid cash dividends of 10% per annum since May, 1917, and made stock distributions so far this year of 50%, and has declared an additional 10% stock distribution and 2½% cash dividend payable January 15, 1919, to stockholders of record December 31, 1918.

There is every reason to expect that the future will continue to show an unprecedented demand for oil, as is shown by the development of oil as a source of power on land and sea and in the air.

All indications point to an advance in the market values of oil securities, for the reason that the attitude of the Government towards the oil industry during the war was to restrict petroleum prices, which now will be lifted; reduced taxes instead of the inevitable increases which would have accompanied a prolongation of the war; the reduction of operating expenses and a consequent increase in net income.

PRICE—Subject to sale and advance, $7.00 per share.

All purchases made on or before December 31, 1918, will carry with it the 10% stock distribution and 2½% cash dividend.

Copy of the company's balance sheet will be sent upon request.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

BEAUTY CULTURE.

WORRIED.—A teaspoon of powdered, refined borax in wash basin will do wonders towards softening and clearing skin. In same way, small bag of bran thrown into water will make bath unbelievably refreshing. Dill water will bleach complexion and elder flower water or lavender will soothe skin when roughened by wind or blistered by sun. * * * A beauty writer says: To steam the face means to leave it in exactly the condition of the hands of a woman who does laundry work; shriveled, with skin almost ready to peel and without elasticity. This cannot be right, and the woman who deliberately fills a bowl with boiling water, covers her head and holds her face over the rising steam is very apt to find herself in a deplorable condition when, the cloth withdrawn, she tries to open her eyes. The only way of applying hot water is by using soft cloths, and then the water should only be pleasantly warm; not hot enough to give the least sensation of burning. If this process is kept up long enough, the skin grows as soft and pink as a baby's, with the same pearly moisture noticed on the baby's face when it is full of perspiration. This shows that the pores are acting just enough, and the next thing to do is to be quite sure that while they are in this condition every bit of the dust and grime of the day is washed out. * * * A physician writes: When real heart disorders are present, discretion in the diet is the better part of valor. A fig is better than a feast, while bread and milk make a fare at breakfast that may mend the heart that has gone to the table once too often. Cold baths with needle sprays, bubbles of carbonic acid gas and minerals, which act as a tonic to the skin, all serve to strengthen the heart. Finally, let it be said that no treatment of heart ailments should be undertaken without the diagnosis and advice of a skillful, painstaking physician. Another says: Hard and rapid heart may be due to many things other than heart trouble, which would have to be found out by taking the blood pressure, analyzing the kidney fluid and giving a thorough overhauling to discover the possible cause. Have examination made by a good physician. * * * Don'ts for cardiacs: Don't take cold baths. Don't lift heavy weights. Don't hurry for a car. Don't race upstairs. Don't strain at stool. Don't strain at attempting to empty the bladder completely. Don't wear tight clothing in cold weather. Don't neglect bowel disturbances. Don't neglect a cold or cough. Don't take strenuous exercise.

HEALTH HINTS.

A READER.—A person with nervous prostration is imaginative in the extreme, and has pains real and imaginary almost anywhere or everywhere. A big part of the treatment lies in getting the patient to conquer imagination and cease hunting trouble.

MRS. L. R.—One troubled with heat flushes was given this advice: Nervous irritability has more to do with the aggravation of the affection than you suppose. The two act and react until you confound cause and effect. Put yourself under the care of a really skillful physician who relies more upon nature and common sense than upon drugs and obey his orders. Avoid heating drinks and foods. Take gentle exercise in the open air in the cool of the day; see to it that the sewerage of the body is regular and abundant and keep a quiet mind. If the distressing symptoms you detail come at night plunge the feet into hot water and rub them to a glow. By these and other rational means coax the rebellious blood away from the head. Were I in your place I should abstain from eating meat during hot weather. Eat heartily of fruits and vegetables, and drink between meals of a good mineral water that has a tendency to cool the blood. These are a few general rules. For specific directions consult the commonsensible doctor.

MISCELLANEOUS.

READER.—There is no nearer relation than that of mother and child. There is no law to prevent the President's temporary absence from the U. S.

IGNORANT.—There are 2 Winston Churchills—the American writer and the English statesman. The American was born in St. Louis, Nov. 10, 1871; only son of Edward S. Churchill of Portland, Me., and Emma Bell Blaine of St. Louis; educated in Smith Academy, St. Louis, and graduated from U. S. Naval Academy. The English Churchill is eldest son of Lord Randolph Churchill and Jennie Jerome, daughter of Leonard Jerome of New York.

EAGLES.—Tame eagles are said to inhabit all the regions of the world. We do not find much especial mention of the female eagle. Perhaps she has not been given proper credit—a highly necessary bird, no doubt. The female golden eagle is rather larger than the male. Hares, lambs and even larger animals are carried away by eagles for food. One writer on eagles says: They are nothing more than large hawks. They reach sometimes the age of nearly 100 yrs. They live singly or in pairs, and dwell in the wilder places in all kinds of country, from tropical deserts to the arctic regions. In their search for food, however, they often wander far, and emboldened by hunger even approach the abodes of man. In story books and newspapers eagles have many times been accused of carrying off young children, but such tales are unreliable. The bald eagle, white-headed eagle, white-headed sea eagle or bird of Washington, is of particular interest to Americans as the national emblem of the United States, to which dignity it was elevated on June 20, 1782. The name "bald" eagle originated from the white head and the erroneous impression of baldness it gives at a distance. This bird measures about 3 or 4½ ft. in length, from 6 to 8 ft. in extent of wings, and weighs from 6 to 12 lbs. Under most circumstances wary and difficult of approach, this eagle nevertheless is often surprisingly tame and unsuspicious. Unprovoked it rarely attacks man, although such instances have been reported. It prefers trees for watching and roosting, but in spring sometimes descends to ride the cakes of ice in the river, apparently looking for fish. This species breeds throughout its range wherever suitable places exist, and it has been known to lay and hatch eggs in confinement. In the southern part of the U. S., from Florida to Texas, it breeds very early, depositing its eggs usually during the first half of Dec.; in the Middle States and in California it lays in Feb. or Mar., about the middle of April in Southern Alaska, sometimes in May or even June in the arctic regions. The nest is located nearly always in the vicinity of a stream or body of water. The favorite site is the top of a tall tree. Where there are no trees a rock or a niche in a cliff serves the purpose. The same nest is occupied yr. after yr., and annually repaired or augmented until it becomes an immense structure 5, 6 or even 8 ft. high, and as much in diameter, containing fully a cartload or 2 of material. It usually forms a strong platform with only a slight depression in the center and easily sustains the weight of a man. Ducks of various kinds fall regularly a prey to the bald eagle, and they are stolen from unwary sportsmen just as readily as larger birds. Wounded ducks with those purloined from hunters, form at some seasons a good share of its food. At favorable opportunities this eagle preys upon fawns, and pressed by hunger will sometimes attack a full-grown deer, particularly if the latter be wounded. In most of the states and in many of the Canadian provinces the bald eagle is protected by law, either specifically or by general enactment, but in a few it is still specially exempted from the provisions of the general nongame-protection acts.

In Memoriam.

In memory of my beloved husband and daddy, Robert Walker Seymour Jr., who died suddenly, Dec. 15, 1917:

Just one year ago you left us—
How we miss you, daddy, dear.
You are gone but not forgotten
By the ones who love you, dear.
Dear daddy, how we miss you,
Since from earth you passed away.
Sad our hearts, but sweet the memory,
As we think of you today.

Sadly missed by wife and son,
MRS. ESTHER SEYMOUR AND ROBERT WALKER SEYMOUR JR II.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of our dear son and brother, Edward W. Bloemker, who departed this life in the service of his country, Dec. 16, 1917:

One sad year has passed away.
Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear son and brother, loved by all.
We little thought that on that day
Our dear son and brother would be called away.
We could not realize what was said
When the message came that he was dead.
Day by day we sadly miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed.
But they little know the grief
That within our hearts is concealed.
He shall never be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade.
Loving hearts will always linger
'Round the grave where he is laid.

Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER AND BROTHER,
8163 South Grand avenue. (c)

Business Romance
What Do You Think of This?

Two ladies, neither having ever sold before, made upwards of $50 each the first 10 days with us, in spite of the fact we wanted time to teach them this new profession.

They became so enthusiastic they couldn't keep from selling. They will be making $75 to $100 each week by middle spring, so great is their opportunity in this business. And so will the other women who take up this work and study and learn the work.

This is a wonderful opening for women who feel that they have unusual ability, who are willing to work and study, and who want the same opportunities as men of leadership.

The specialized subdivision business is the new profession. In this mighty work, we combine the ART of the landscape architect and city planner with the engineer. We render service of the utmost importance.

In this work, you have your own hours, so to speak, though a certain work is required of everyone on the force. You meet the best, most interesting people. The work is refreshing, interesting, remunerative.

St. Louis is entering a big manufacturing era, going into the greatest boom in history. Our population is increasing rapidly. And thousands of people are longing for our modern suburbs. They want to get their families off of hot, congested streets, out into the fresh air, sunshine. They want to get away from stuffy, pent-up apartments.

West End lots, close in, are in big demand. They are advancing rapidly in value. Thousands will make large profits there the coming few years. Does this work appeal to you. We say, frankly, it may be your opportunity, and after all, most big successes in life are due as much to opportunity as to ability.

Come in between 10 and 11:30 and 1:30 and 4, and we will discuss the matter. You may or may not have had experience in selling. We ask that you be out of debt, and under 40.

THE DAVIS REALTY DEVELOPMENT CO., 2d floor, opposite elevators, 816 Olive st.
P. S.—We own more than $1,200,000 of the best, closest-in West St. Louis property.

Famous-Barr Co.

Require experienced saleswomen in the following departments:

Handkerchiefs
Gloves
Neckwear
Art Needlework
Pictures
Hosiery
Housefurnishings
Toys
China

We can also use a number of capable women who are willing to learn selling with pleasant surroundings and good salary while learning. There will be permanent positions with unusual opportunities for those who demonstrate their ability.

Apply Supt's office, Main Floor Balcony.

Xmas Sale Save $100 to $200 ON OUR Fine Used Cars

EASY TERMS—
MONTHLY PAYMENTS

All makes of fine cars will be scarce next Spring—the demand will exceed the supply. Used cars will be higher—from $100 to $200 higher. Such a car as you can buy of us now will cost much more if you wait until March or April.

There never was such an opportunity to save money on a good car. And the reason is just this: The tremendous demand for Hudson Super-Sixes has brought in an unusual number of exchanged cars. Some have been run just enough to limber up the motor, but their owners wanted a Super-Six. They were willing to trade in cars practically new to get a Super-Six. Some Super-Six owners wanted enclosed Super-Sixes, so we can offer the open models at way below value prices.

FINEST SELECTION OF USED CARS EVER OFFERED ST. LOUIS BUYERS

The prices at which they were exchanged enables us to offer them from $100 to $200 less than the same cars would ordinarily bring on the used market.

Even if you plan getting a medium-price new car next Spring, you cannot afford to overlook this saving you can make now.

A HIGH-GRADE, SLIGHTLY USED CAR AT THE RIGHT PRICE IS A BETTER BUY THAN A CHEAP NEW CAR.

They are not worn-out cars. Many have been driven only a few thousand miles, and we have put every one in first-class shape, mechanically, as well as in finish.

BETTER CARS NOW—NOT USED ALL WINTER

Even if you buy next Spring, you couldn't get as good a car, for most of the used cars that will be offered will have been driven all Winter. It's the hardest usage a car gets—rough, rutty streets of snow and ice—not to mention the wear on tires and finish.

That's why we have so many high-grade cars on hand to offer at such attractive prices.

Practically every standard make of car to choose from: Fours, Sixes and Super-Sixes—Roadsters, Touring Cars, Cabriolets, Sedans—every wanted type of car will be found here.

You can save from $100 to $200 by buying now. And remember—you can buy on easy terms. Come before the choice cars are all gone.

Buy only from dependable old established dealers. You know our reputation for selling only GOOD used cars.

ST. LOUISANS TELL OF FINAL HOURS OF WAR

Letters Continue to Arrive Revealing Intimate Scenes on Firing Line Armistice Day.

Letters describing the final minutes of the fighting in France in which St. Louis participated are coming to relatives in this city. The following from Sergt.-Major George E. Schenk of the 128th (St. Louis) artillery to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schenk, 1101 Lawn avenue, tells that that unit spent the final days of the war apart from the Thirty-fifth Division, of which it was a part with the 138th (St. Louis) Artillery and the 110th (St. Louis) Ammunition Train:

"We had been detached from our division which now is somewhere in the rear and were with a new division, advancing about a mile and a half, my battalion working right along with the infantry in open fighting. We were the only artillery in the sector and worked hard though we did not lose a man.

"We had been ordered to cease firing at 11 a. m. on the 11th. About 10:20 we began our last barrage and we fairly burned up our guns for 40 minutes. At exactly 10:60 every gun fired a final shot and all was quiet. The bugles, which heretofore never had been used at the front, sounded 'recall' and a mighty cheer arose from the thousands of Yankees. That night was one which will be remembered by every soldier in France who was at the front. For the first time in four years and three months camp fires lit up the sky—thousands of them—with merry groups of soldiers around each. Before not even the light of a cigarette was allowed at night. Both sides celebrated by sending up thousands of many-colored rockets which the night before would have been the signal for a living hell of fire and steel."

"The last day of the war found me in the trenches and going to the attack. Just 10 minutes after the attack begun and while we were going ahead in No Man's Land, the peace bugle sounded and a runner came and told us that the armistice had been signed. I would not have given 10 cents for my life at 9:20 a. m. on Nov. 11 and at 9:30 I would not have taken $1,000,000 for it."

From Sergt. G. W. Hansen, D Company, 20th Machine Gun Battalion, to his sister, Miss Florence Hansen, 7515 Wise avenue, Richmond Heights:

"We were in a mighty fine place to appreciate the end of hostilities, being in the front trenches. When they stopped firing at 11 a. m., on Nov. 11 we were a delighted bunch of men and no doubt the Germans were also. A bunch of them came over immediately with a white flag and shook hands all around and we talked to some of them. They have since stopped all communication between the sides. The first thing we did was to come from our dugouts and build fires and remove our helmets and unsling our gas masks. You have no idea what a relief it was to be rid of those things."

"Like stepping from hell into heaven" is the way private Harry Miller of K. Company, 356th Infantry, in a letter to his mother, Mrs. James A. Miller, 1027 North Fifth street, St. Charles, describes the reception of the news that an armistice had been decreed.

"When 11 o'clock came" he writes, "and all the firing ceased there was joy everywhere. Such a difference, just like passing suddenly from night to day. You at home will never know what it really meant for those guns to cease firing. Everything was quiet once more for the first time in four years.

"An hour after hostilities had ceased the sun came out, and reminded one stepping from hell to heaven. It certainly is a relief to go to work without a helmet on and other trinkets of war."

Mrs. Margaret Hanvey of 243 St. Louis road, Collinsville, Ill. has received a letter from her son, Edgar Hanvey with Barnes Hospital Unit No. 21 in France, written on Nov. 11.

"At 11:30" he wrote "the whistles started to blow and are still blowing. After dinner all the men from this unit lined up and, headed by our drum and bugle corps, we marched through the hospital whooping and yelling for all we were worth. We got a casket and wrote a sign "Kaiser Bill" and nailed it on top and then went to town.

"By this time the poor old French people were going simply wild. Big masses of people paraded the streets singing and yelling. It lasted for three days. The public buildings were lit up for the first time in four years. The crowds on the streets surpassed the crowds in St. Louis on Veiled Prophet night."

VILLAGERS STAY MARRIED

BLUFFTON, Ind.—Three golden wedding anniversaries were celebrated in one day recently in the town of Ossian, 10 miles north of this city. In each instance the couple was married in the location that their anniversary was celebrated. They are Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Ady and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Archbold.

The first two couples named celebrated with a family gathering, while the latter couple chose only to receive calls from their friends. Ossian has a population of about 675.

SOLDIERS' FARM HOMES ARE UP TO CONGRESS

Southern States and Reclamation Service Complete Classification of 11,000,000 Acres.

NEW ORLEANS.—Classification of the lands that have been offered to the Federal Government for farm homes for returning soldiers and sailors in the six Southern states of Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Texas was completed by representatives of the United States Reclamation Service, when D. W. Ross, engineer in charge of the work in the six states named, left for Washington, carrying with him all of the records and documents for the information of the Department of the Interior and Congress.

The amount of land offered to the Government in the six states aggregates more than 11,000,000 acres. The offerings by states follow:

Alabama, 815,000 acres; Arkansas, 1,872,880 acres; Louisiana, 3,114,240 acres; Mississippi, 905,070 acres; Tennessee, 344,210 acres; East Texas, 1,985,240 acres; West Texas, arid lands, 2,216,250 acres.

The Federal Reclamation Service having completed the inspection and classification of all the lands offered, the next move toward furnishing farm homes for soldiers is up to Congress. Bills are pending in that body to carry the soldiers farm settlement plan into effect, and all of the records of land offerings and classifications are being taken to Washington for the information of the national lawmakers.

PRISON REFORMS ARE PLANNED

Michigan Commission Would Do Away With Farms.

DETROIT.—The annual report of the State Board of Corrections and Charities of Michigan recommends several general changes of policy for State institutions.

It proposes the abandonment of farms at the various institutions, the handling of State printing by some of the institutions, the building of fireproof dormitories only, approval by the State for all county and other local jails and institutions, repeal of the law against use of olemargarine at State institutions which was passed by the farmer vote in the Legislaure, a code for classifying cases more carefully to replace the present indiscriminate sentencing of individuals to the wrong institutions and the abandonment of the fee system in favor of a salary basis for the Sheriffs.

RATIFICATION IN VERMONT

Dry Forces Think the Success Is Assured.

BURLINGTON. — Statistics compiled by the Rev. Clifford H. Smith, superintendent of the Vermont Anti-Saloon League, show that the chances for the passing of the national prohibition amendment in the Vermont Legislature in January are very favorable. Twenty-four out of the 36 Senators are pledged to vote for the amendment and 155 Representatives out of 247 are counted safe for the passing.

It has also been ascertained that the vote on the amendment will be one of the first bills taken up at the opening of the biennial session of the Vermont Legislature.

DOG REVISITS ITS OLD HOME

MYSTIC, Conn.—The cat that came back has nothing on Knight, the bulldog owned by the children of Mr. and Mrs. John Gray of this village, for the cat, when she came back, had to hike in the old-fashioned way, while Knight utilizes modern methods.

The family formerly resided in Noank, seven or eight miles from their present home, and there Knight was brought when a puppy. Since the family has moved to Mystic, the dog at times evinces homesickness for the old place and a number of times has taken French leave and gone back to see it.

He will "visit" with the new tenants of the place until taken back and put aboard the car and sent home. Several times he has been watched, but he never displays any interest in his surroundings or the trolley stations until he hears Noank called.

Statewide Production Campaign.

HOUSTON, Tex.—George S. Bruce, agricultural agent for several railroads, has organized a Statewide increased production campaign. All agricultural organizations and the county agents are interested. A speaking campaign will begin at once.

IOWA PROFESSOR IN SIBERIA

IOWA CITY, Io.—Prof. William F. Russell, dean of the College of Education, Iowa University, has reached the interior of Siberia, whither he went as a member of the commission sent by the United States Government to investigate conditions in Siberia and Russia at large, and inform the people there concerning business, governmental, and educational methods in the United States.

Dean Russell also visited en route in Yokohama where, he writes, the Japanese Government gave the commission a royal reception, and displayed great pride in the institutions of Japan. Russians, the dean adds, are showing much interest in the visit of the commission, and in the bulletins already issued by that body.

WHISKY IN HER BUSTLE

EVANSVILLE, Ind.—The wife of the Rev. Elijah Torrants, a negro minister here, has been arrested by the local police on a charge of bringing liquor into Indiana from Henderson, Ky., in violation of the State prohibition law. When searched at the police station it was found that the woman had a large hot-water bottle filled with whisky, which was used by her as a bustle.

Mrs. Torrants said she brought the whisgy here as influenza medicine.

ATLANTA AS A RENO RIVAL

Judge Says Divorce Seekers Come From Many Cities.

ATLANTA, Ga.—An address was made by Judge John T. Pendleton on the subject of divorce laws to the jury as he dismissed them for the week. He said that Atlanta outranks Reno in the granting of divorces, that people are beginning to flock here from all places because the divorce laws are so lax and decrees so easy to get.

Letters have been received from out-of-town people who say that they have noticed the apparent ease in obtaining a divorce in Atlanta and asking for information as to costs, advancing various reasons more or less sound for desiring the divorce. The divorce evil is growing and not long ago Judge Pendleton predicted that the number of decrees would increase next year from 700 to 900.

SAYS ST. LOUIS SHOULD SEND CENTRAL AMERICA PINK BUTTER

Trade Specialist Declares They Like It That Way, Explaining What Americans Must Do to Get Commerce.

World commerce is coming to the doors of America and St. Louis in order to claim her share to which her position as the capital city of the Mississippi Valley entitles her must be alert as never before, according to David L. Ewing, former assistant director of operations of the United States Shipping Board, now in the city on his way to act as a missionary for business in South America for a New York importing and exporting house.

"St. Louis manufacturers must know two things in seeking world markets," he said. "The first is that they must send abroad not what they want to manufacture, but what their customers want to buy. Central America demands that its butter be colored pink. That may look foolish, but if they want their butter pink, it is the duty of those who supply the butter to see that it is pink. The second necessity is service. The man who gets his product to his foreign consumer well packed and quickly is the man who will get the future business.

Manufacturers must be ready to take a chance. They can expect to lose money for a time, but they will have increased their output, lowered their cost of production and thus be able to sell at home at a greater profit."

THREE OF FIVE OCCUPANTS HURT WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

Two St. Louisans Among Victims of Accident at Clover Leaf Crossing, East St. Louis.

An automobile belonging to the East St. Louis Oil Co., occupied by three men and two women, all employes of the company, was struck by a Clover Leaf passenger train at the crossing of the St. Louis, Troy & Eastern Railroad, just out of East St. Louis, last night at 6 o'clock, and three of the occupants were injured.

One of the victims, J. E. Real, 50 years old, assistant manager, residing at the Statler Hotel, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull. Miss Alvina Stricker, 35, 1621 North Forty-seventh street, East St. Louis, was taken to the Deaconess Hospital, suffering from bruises. William L. Shrader, 22, 4932 Schollmeyer avenue, auditor, this city, was slightly hurt. Miss Gertrude Moose, 1004 Illinois avenue, East St. Louis, a stenographer, was riding on the seat with the chauffeur, Leo Smith, 19, and neither was hurt.

U. S. CHARTERS IN SENATE BILL

Federal Incorporation for Concerns in Foreign Trade Urged by Redfield.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Incorporation under Federal charters of business organizations engaged in foreign trade is provided in a bill introduced today by Senator Fletcher of Florida and offered to the judiciary committee.

It was presented at the request of Secretary Redfield, who said the United States is practically the only great power having no such law and that its enactment would be a distinct advantage in furthering American business interests abroad.

MEDIATION OFFER PLEASES CHILE

Interpreted to Mean U. S. Will Interfere Only if Invited to Do So.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 14.—The American offer of mediation as between Chile and Peru has caused satisfaction in Chile, where, according to advices from that country, it is interpreted as assurance that the United States will not interfere unless invited to do so by both Chile and Peru.

Some of the daily papers of Buenos Aires show chagrin, for, they say, the Argentine Government misinterpreted the original note and went beyond the invitation offering mediation, and is now left alone to act.

Thinks Son Was in Picture.

Mrs. Louisa Hennenhoefer, 2323 St. Louis avenue, said last night that she believed one of the Americans in a group picture of returned American, French and British prisoners printed on the picture page of the Post-Dispatch Friday was her son, Paul, 27 years old, 355th Infantry, whom the War Department reported missing in action Nov. 27.

Mr. Remmert Has Invented A Better Washer

In Which the Washing Method Is Completely Revolutionized—While the Cost of the Machine Is Radically Reduced!

Why Mr. Remmert Invented This New Washing Machine

There are few men in the whole country who have had the practical experience in electric washing machines that Mr. Remmert has had. Years of experience had shown to him that a more efficient electric washing machine could be made.

This has been accomplished in the new Remmert, built on the locomotive type with heater attachment which creates a steam action in the machine.

The washing operation on the new Remmert is accomplished by an entirely new method—a method of increased efficiency that entirely eliminates wear on the clothing.

There is nothing to get out of order. It is built with only two gears. Although it has a large capacity, it does not take up as much room as the present type machines. This simplicity of construction gives both a better machine and one considerably lower in price.

New Republics in Europe --- CZECHO-SLOVAKIA: No. 1

DEMOCRATIC government, after a brilliant essay in ancient Athens, was first revived in modern times by the Swiss. It next appeared in England, though monarchical forms were still retained. The first experiment on a grand scale was made by the United States, and this example was followed by France. During the great revolution, republics sprang up all over Europe; after the fall of Napoleon, they were ruthlessly crushed by the Holy Alliance, headed by Prussia, Austria and Russia. Today, as a result of the war which the promoters of it were far from foreseeing, it seems likely that most of the world will adopt republican government.

The first and most romantic of the republics to emerge from the welter of down-crashing monarchies in Europe is that of Czecho-Slovakia, at the very heart of the one-time citadel of autocracy. This new recruit among free peoples will embrace all of Bohemia and Moravia, and possibly strips of Hungary and German Austria. While the accompanying map does not assume to define the ultimate border line of the Czecho-Slovak republic—the precise boundaries will be fixed at the peace conference—it is based upon ethnographic and other data, and may be considered as having semi-official accuracy.

The district indicated here has a population of 9,000,000, of whom three-quarters are Czechs and the remaining one-fourth Slovaks. The area is about 50,000 square miles, or slightly larger than that of the State of New York. Bohemia alone has a territory of 20,000 square miles; and this state was a famous and powerful kingdom in the days when the Hapsburgs were still obscure Counts in Switzerland. Its ancient metropolis, Prague, will undoubtedly be the capital of the republic; it has a population of 400,000, a university dating from 1348, and a celebrated cathedral.

Prague was the headquarters of the Moravian Brethren, a religious sect of the fifteenth century, which was savagely persecuted by the Hapsburgs. Later many of them found refuge in Pennsylvania, and are notable as the pioneers of music on this continent, through the foundation of the famous Bach Choir at Bethlehem.

More than 50 per cent of the area of Czecho-Slovakia is under excellent cultivation. Nearly every useful mineral and metal is found within its borders. Its rich coal and iron mines enabled Bohemia to assume the industrial supremacy of the former dual empire, and to become one of the leading manufacturing centers of Europe. Almost one-third of all the railways in Austria-Hungary are in Bohemia, which also has a splendid canal and road system. The Czech provinces alone bore five-eighths of the total taxes of the empire. The small map displays the strategic geographical position of Czecho-Slovakia in Europe. Through this position its revolt and subsequent independence dealt a solar plexus blow to the exploded scheme of Mittel-Europa.

An Expert's Study of Influenza

Much curious and significant information concerning epidemic revealed by life insurance official — In 44 cities, comprising one-fifth of total population, deaths in eight weeks were 86,000—In same period, 20,000 soldiers died in military camps —Nine-tenths of deaths in cities and towns, only one-twentieth in rural districts :: :: :: ::

INFLUENZA, which succeeded the war as the chief topic of concern in the United States, is the theme of an address delivered by Henry Moir, president of the Actuarial Society of America, at the twelfth annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, in New York City, on Dec. 5.

He revealed many curious, significant and appalling facts concerning this epidemic, which seemed to break forth simultaneously in such widely separated districts as India, South America and South Africa, and which raged with a virulence unknown in the 500 years of history of the disease, particularly on this side of the Atlantic.

The fatality of the scourge in the United States was more terrible than most persons imagine; in one period of eight weeks possibly half a million persons died of influenza and pneumonia following it. But the plague seems to have reached its zenith in Brazil. It is reported that in Rio de Janeiro there were 700,000 cases at once, and deaths came so thick and fast that the bodies were pushed out into the streets, to be collected by trucks.

Perhaps the most sinister thing about the influenza in this country is that it picked for victims the young and robust. The average age of the dead is placed at below 30 years. Mr. Moir frankly states that this was an unexpected trial to the insurance companies, as most of those dying were "good risks," and had been insured for only a few years. Extracts from the paper follow.

Facts About Influenza

INFLUENZA is not a new disease, as many suppose; it has been known under that name for 200 years, and indications of it are found as far back as the fifteenth century.

In 44 cities, comprising one-fifth of the population of the United States, 86,828 deaths from influenza and pneumonia following influenza occurred in the eight weeks ending Nov. 16. If this proportion was maintained through the whole population, the total deaths for the period were 434,140.

In the army camps, during the eight weeks ending Nov. 15, occurred more than 20,000 influenza deaths; the normal number of deaths from disease would have been 992.

New York suffered in one week 5222 deaths from the epidemic, and Philadelphia 4597. Durthe same period, the maximum number of deaths in St. Louis (for the week of Nov. 10) was 243.

The age of maximum virulence is under 30; whereas, in the influenza epidemic of 1889-1891, it was the old and feeble who succumbed.

Nine-tenths of the deaths have occurred in city and town districts; the remaining one-tenth are divided equally between rural districts and military camps.

The disease has been more virulent on this side of the Atlantic than in Europe; pneumonia is more common as a sequence, and there have been more fatalities.

Of the total deaths, 13 per cent have been due to influenza alone and 87 per cent to pneumonia following influenza.

The statistics give no indication that the use of alcohol in moderation or smoking is either beneficial or harmful, so far as influenza is concerned.

INFLUENZA is not, as is frequently supposed, a disease of recent origin. Under the name of influenza it has been known for about 200 years, and descriptions of epidemics running back to the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries indicate that it was common in those times also—although not under the same name.

Previous to the present time important epidemics of influenza occurred in 1848 and in 1880, lasting from a month to six weeks at a time. There was a revival in 1891, and influenza has been more or less present at all times, though not to such extent that it could be called epidemic. One reason for its ready diffusion is that infection is present in the early stages. It has also for a long time been remarked that liability to attack is increased by depression, either physical or mental.

We may speculate as to whether or not "Spanish influenza" has resulted from the war. Life in the trenches, the unburied bodies, the multitude of rats and vermin, all point to conditions favorable to disease. It is never easy to prove any imaginative thought of this nature; though it has been observed that some epidemic of disease has scourged the nations in the course of or following nearly every prolonged war in history. War, famine and pestilence are three words which seem to belong to one another in this sequence. There is little doubt but that the spread of influenza must have been facilitated by the general strain under which so many nations have suffered for four years. The bringing together of large groups of men in barracks, in prison camps, in trench fighting and elsewhere, must all have had an effect upon the epidemic, giving this deadly foe too good a chance.

The Bureau of the Census has for some considerable time issued a weekly statement dealing with the health of 44 of the principal cities of the United States. This statement has proved of unusual interest since the influenza epidemic appeared. We can trace the progress of the epidemic over the country; we can also get a fair idea of its first appearance, its increase to a maximum point, and the subsequent decline.

Early appearances were in Boston, and the maximum mortality point was reached there in the week ending Oct. 5, when over 1200 persons died in that city from influenza and pneumonia. In Worcester the maximum point was in the week ending Oct. 12, when 230 people died in that town, with more than one-fifth of the population of Boston; in Providence, the maximum point was in the week ending Oct. 19. In New York City the first important appearance was in the week ending Sept. 28, and the maximum point was in the week ending Oct. 26, when over 5200 persons died from influenza or pneumonia. In Philadelphia the high point was reached in the week ending Oct. 19; in New Orleans the maximum point was in the week ending Oct. 26; in Chicago, the maximum point was also Oct. 26. In San Francisco, the maximum point was reached in the week ending Nov. 2. The climax of the epidemic in the United States was apparently during the week ending Oct. 26.

In the foregoing I have combined deaths from influenza and from pneumonia. There are always some cases of death from pneumonia which are not preceded by influenza; but the number is small in relation to the recent epidemic conditions. For example, the total deaths from pneumonia in the week ending Sept. 14 in all of the towns and cities were 299; whereas during the maximum week ending Oct. 26, they had increased to 1732. During the same week, Oct. 26, the deaths attributed to influenza were 13,114. In the eight weeks ending on Nov. 16 the number of deaths from influenza and pneumonia in the 44 cities and towns were no fewer than 86,828. The population of these communities represents about one-fifth of the population of the United States and influenza carried off more than 4 per 1000 of the people of these cities in eight weeks. There is no means of computing the total deaths over the entire country from this epidemic. While many of the smaller towns suffered just as severely in proportion as the cities about which we have approximate information, it would appear as if many country districts had thus far been almost exempt.

In order to verify some hazy ideas on questions affecting this epidemic, I obtained from seven life insurance companies statistics regarding 655 death claims filed in October and arising from "influenza" or from "pneumonia following influenza." The first clear indication is that deaths from influenza alone are but a fraction of the total deaths caused by this epidemic. The vast majority of them are from pneumonia following influenza. The largest proportion of influenza cases in any one of the companies was 20 per cent, with 80 per cent pneumonia following influenza; the smallest proportion was 7 per cent influenza and 93 per cent from pneumonia following influenza. The average of all the companies from which reports were obtained was 13 per cent of the deaths from influenza alone, and 87 per cent of the deaths from pneumonia following influenza. This proportion is entirely different from that indicated by the Census Bureau statistics. Classification of life insurance claims is probably much more accurate; it is in every case the report of a duly qualified medical practitioner.

The next serious question for life insurance companies deals with the ages at death. The average is exceedingly low; less than 2 per cent of the cases were over 55, over 80 per cent of the cases were under age 40; and over 60 per cent of the deaths were under age 35. It is interesting to observe further that each of the companies separately had about the same experience. The average age at death of all the cases submitted was 33 years; the lowest average of any one company was 32 and the highest 34. We should remember that the average age at death in the population at large must be lower than it is amongst insured lives—much lower, because the proportion of insured lives is small in youth and early manhood. From the figures before me I would gather the impression that the age of maximum virulence of this epidemic has so far been under 30.

This average age at death of influenza cases is not much over the usual age at entry of applicants for life insurance. From normal disease the average age at death of men insured in a well established company may be taken as from 55 to 60. This new form of influenza, therefore, has been taking the young and vigorous—those whom we expected to undertake much of the world's work. We may say that there is an average economic loss of about 25 years of active life in the case of each of the thousands of deaths from influenza.

In the 1889-91 epidemic of influenza the old and the feeble seemed most liable to succumb; it was then remarked that club men, after middle life—especially those with a "past"—had a small chance of recovery in comparison with young, vigorous and strictly temperate people. This condition does not seem to hold now, and millions of the best years of life have been stolen by this scourge.

It necessarily follows that the policies thus becoming claims have not been long in force, the average duration is only about five and one-half years; the average age at entry of those who have died from influenza is, therefore, about 27 1-2 years. It is a much more serious matter for life insurance to experience an epidemic of this nature, which affects recent policies, than it would be to have the experience of 1889-91 repeated, when older men were most affected. But if any argument is needed to show the beneficence of life insurance this affliction of the past two months is the strongest that could possibly exist, for most of the life insurance companies have a sufficient surplus to meet such conditions and pay all claims as they arise. We are being forcibly taught that a good surplus fund is a necessity of sound management.

We hear occasional whisperings as to the effect of alcohol or of smoking on an epidemic of this character. Of the cases investigated about two-thirds weere teetotalers and one-third temperate. Life companies do not accept as standard risks those who are intemperate; accordingly we are limited to the two classes. The proportions seem to be just about normal, and in accordance with the general tendencies of young men who take life insurance. The statistics do not give any definite indication that the use of alcohol in moderation is either beneficial or objectionable, so far as influenza is concerned.

The matter of smoking is now viewed by life companies as a minor and immaterial one, with the result that only two of the seven companies could give me any information as to whether the deaths took place amongst smokers or nonsmokers. The two companies indicated proportions of about two-thirds smokers and one-third nonsmokers, and as these proportions seem about normal, it follows again that there is no indication that smoking has any effect, adverse or favorable. In the matter of family history, those showing a good family record seem to be just as susceptible to the disease as those whose family does not show longevity.

A large proportion of the deaths took place in city and town districts—about 90 per cent of them. Nearly 5 per cent were in military camps and just a little over 5 per cent in rural communities. The proportion in military camps is high and the proportion in rural communities is low, but this is to be expected, as epidemics spread much more slowly throughout country

The Curious Case of Marie Dupont

"Yes, he told me. I understand. Don't worry about that."

"It was so ungrateful to you and Aunt Alicia. I shall never forgive myself. But I must tell you about tonight. You see, the suspense all day had been terrible. Then your coming here, and with that other man. It was so odd. I didn't understand. And when you went into the study and I went upstairs again, I felt that if I could get out into the cold air and walk a little I might feel better. I didn't say anything to anyone. I expected to come right back. But—at the corner I met Miss Niklova."

"Niklova?"

"The Russian girl who plays the violin for our dancing class. She stopped me; she was on her way here to see me, she said. Someone was dying and wanted me, someone who had known me in Paris and thought me dead. He was dying, she said. I didn't know what to do."

"Didn't she tell you his name?"

"Not then. 'Wait, you'll see him,' she said when I asked her. We took the elevated. She had tickets. I had no money. I had taken no purse, but only my key. Well, we rode and rode and when at last we got off we walked east. It was getting dark and I could see the lights of the boats on the river. We went into a house and upstairs into a room"——

She stopped, shuddering.

"Oh, that room, Hugh! It was so bare and cold and desolate. And he was lying there on a bed—the man I had come to see.

"Then Miss Niklova came over to the bed and touched him. 'Alix is here,'" she said.

"He didn't speak, just looked at me for a long time. I didn't move. There was such a queer look in his eyes that I couldn't stir. It was as if any moment he would speak to me. Suddenly he raised up in the bed and stretched out an arm toward me—his right arm—and I saw that he had no hand"——

Hugh gave an exclamation of surprise.

"Yes. I saw that he was reaching for me and I stepped a little nearer, near enough for him to touch me. But he did not touch me. He pulled back his arm and lay down again. 'I'm dreaming,' he said.

"The doctor hurried to him and Miss Niklova cried out to me: 'He's dead, he's dead—you've killed him!' But the doctor told her he had only fainted from the shock of finding that I was real and not a vision. 'Who is he?' I asked, and then—Miss Niklova told me."

"Told you he was your husband?"

Marie nodded.

"What else did she tell you?"

Briefly she pieced together the facts she had learned from Irma Niklova; of Andrus' life in the tenements, of his struggle to train his left hand to replace the right, lost in an accident; of the portrait which the Russian girl had recognized as hers, of the gown so like the one she had danced in, of what Andrus had said of her, that she had been a dancer and was now dead. He had taken the portrait away that afternoon and sold it to get money because he was ill and was going to a hospital, but when he came back to leave the money with Irma he had fallen unconscious and she had put him to bed. Then the doctor had come and declared it was a question of hours. And the sick man had called for Alix—Alix, his wife, and in his delirium he had talked of the portrait, Alix's portrait. It was that which gave the Russian girl her clew and she had determined to bring to him the woman he loved before he died.

"She said cruel things to me," Marie went on. "Of course, she didn't understand. She thought I had deserted him in his misfortune, that I was deceiving everyone now, pretending to be somebody I was not. I couldn't explain; there was no time, and she wouldn't have believed me. Besides, what did it matter what she thought of me? All I could think of was that here at last was someone out of the past I had forgotten, someone who loved me and had grieved for me all these years. Whatever I could do to make amends must be done. At last he regained consciousness. But he was very weak and lay quite still, noticing nothing. The doctor watched him, feeling his wrist. Miss Niklova knelt in a corner and prayed to an image. Not seeing what else I could do, I knelt by the bed and waited."

"Poor child!" said Hugh.

"At last he opened his eyes and saw me. He was whiter now and weaker and I don't think he knew where he was, for he accepted my presence as natural."

"Did he say anything?"

"Very little—just the name, Alix, over and over. He smiled at me and kept putting out his right arm to touch me, as if he had forgotten that the hand was gone. All at once his expression changed, his eyes looked blind. Then he spoke. 'It's getting dark, Alix,' he said. 'I can't see to paint any more. Kiss me, sweetheart, and hurry home, or they will scold.'"

Marie broke off and hesitated. "He lifted his head a little and I—I—put my arm about his neck and—kissed him. I felt his lips meet mine, then his head fell back—he was dead."

She sobbed as she finished speaking and bowing her head on the arm of her chair she wept uncontrollably.

"Poor child, poor child," Hugh repeated pityingly.

She looked up, her face streaming with tears. "When I saw that he was gone I cried out and jumped up. The doctor said it was all over and Miss Niklova screamed and ordered me to leave. 'He's mine now,' she said. 'Go back to your fine home and fine friends. You're a cruel, wicked woman.' I tried to reason with her, to explain. She wouldn't listen. She pushed me from the room and told me to explain to my friends. She was crazed with grief.

"The hall was very dimly lighted and I had to feel my way down the steps, then through other dark halls, and down more steps until I was again in the street. It was night. To the east I saw the lights along the river, to the west the tracks of the elevated. That was the way home, I thought; then I remembered that I had no money, that I should have to walk. So I went along the street where the elevated ran"——

"You walked home! Why didn't you take a cab?"

"There were none, for one thing, and if there had been I shouldn't have taken one. What right have I to comfort and luxury? Everywhere about me as I walked I saw poverty and wretchedness; back in that room I had left poverty and sorrow; what had I left behind me that morning seven years ago? That was what I kept asking myself. Perhaps I had had parents, sister and brothers, perhaps—a child."

"Marie!"

"How can I know, Hugh, how can I know?"

"You were nothing but a child yourself."

"I had a husband. How can I tell that somewhere in the world there isn't a little child, poor and unfortunate, or maybe—in its grave. That is the thought that won't leave me."

"That was not your fault, dear child; you had lost all memory of them."

"Perhaps they were very poor. The poor are so helpless. Perhaps they thought I had meant to leave them. Perhaps they thought I was dead."

"We know now that they thought you were dead, Marie. They thought you were murdered."

"Murdered?"

"Listen, my dear."

man who shot Robert Canwell to death some time in the last week in October,' and so on. The bills purposely contain a misstatement of fact. Canwell was killed with a knife, and twice you've spoken of it. Twice you've correctly stated how he was killed, although only Regan, the Coroner, the Sheriff and a few others knew the truth. How did you know he was knifed when the posters say he was shot?"

Bane gnawed his under lip furiously. Suddenly throwing aside all restraint, he yelled: "Well, he was spoiling my game and planning to send me to prison. I killed him, jest as I'll knife ye—ye hound. Ye've got the goods on me here—but ye ain't got the proof back to Regan yet."

With the last word he ducked and lunged under the table, the exploding automatic ripping a furrow down the back of the heavy mackinaw.

The scaler fell back against the wall, still erect, but held motionless by the table pressing against him. The situation was most peculiar and held a threat of death over each.

"Lafond! Bingo!" his muffled voice called, as he felt the ponderous impact of Bane's efforts registering on his chest.

The Frenchman crawled from beneath the bunk and Bingo darted in through the door.

The man called Bingo deftly clicked handcuffs about the brawny wrists before Bane could fight them off. "Now truss up his legs while I shift to warmer clothes. Lafond, the officer and I start early in the morning to take him out. Till you hear from Regan you're to run the camp."

Bane spoke but once while being made fast, and then it was to execrate: "To think of that low hound of a loafer being the detective!"

Here's the Most Remarkable Man Alive Today

THE most remarkable man in the world has been found in a Canadian soldier who happened to contract no more serious a disease than the mumps. This is an unquestionable conclusion to be drawn from a description of the extraordinary warrior in the London Lancet.

The man is a Breton sailor, aged 37, who emigrated to Canada eight years ago and enlisted in the Canadian army in 1916—nothing very unusual in that. But he is absolutely insensitive to pain, and has undergone serious operations without any anesthetic, without, indeed, any discomfort. His body is plentifully strewn with scars of wounds and burns that he has inflicted on himself for bets or to astonish the onlookers. The authors of the article in the Lancet tell of seeing him hold a burning match against the skin of his arm and then pick off the charred fiber. He has never suffered from headache, toothache or pain of any other description.

The patient owns no sense of touch. He cannot feel the ground with his feet, and has to control his movements by sight. There is a complete inability to recognize articles placed in his hand when his eyes are shut.

He cannot distinguish between heat or cold, whether in the temperature of food or of the weather, and fever and chills cause him to perspire or shiver, but without any sensation of cold or heat.

No sense of muscular position seems present, and the man says that he cannot tell whether his arms or legs are moving or not. This seems very strange with the fact that he can walk and swim well enough. He has no sense of fatigue. The only way he is made aware of failing strength is by his falling to the ground. He is unable to find his nose without guiding his hands by sight.

There is no sense of taste present, and the subject states that he is in the habit of eating uncooked—when he can get them—such animals as rats, mice or snakes. He can eat anything at all, although he is incapable of feeling the sensations of hunger and thirst. He states that on bets he has gone for long periods without food or drink, with no other effect than a tendency to sleep for abnormally long periods.

All notion of smell is absent. Even fuming nitric acid was ineffective when strongly inhaled.

Finally, the man seems to be without the ordinary emotions. This man is mentally sound and rather above than below the average of intelligence.

Over One Million American Women Are Now Using La-may Face Powder

There are actually three thousand different brands of face powder now sold in America, some on the market as long as fifty years. A new face powder has become the most popular among all of these other three thousand powders, and it is only a few months old. Yet it is now selling faster than many on the market for fifty years. Why did this new powder become famous so quickly? For two reasons: First, it is guaranteed absolutely pure. It does not contain rice powder, white lead or any injurious substance. Second, it stays on better than any other powder. This improved formula is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). The large size is fifty cents and the trial size twenty-five cents. When you see how wonderfully it beautifies your complexion you will understand why La-may is now used by over a million American women.

Consul Frost's Summary of Submarine Warfare

American official stationed at Queenstown, who interviewed thousands of survivors, offers authentic study of German methods —Never gave warning to single passenger ship, though carrying women and children — Sworn statement that U-boat commanders showing compassion were tortured to death on return to fatherland — Instances of inhumanity cited in indictment of German Government :: :: :: ::

AMONG the great popular documents concerning the war will rank high the reports made upon submarine warfare by Wesley Frost, who formerly occupied the strategic post of Consul at Queenstown, Ireland, and, therefore, had the most spacious opportunity of any American to study at first hand the progress of the U-boat campaign from its beginning until it attained the maximum of depravity and degredation.

Frost is a lawyer, and by mental habit scrutinized from a judicial point of view all of the voluminous evidence that poured into his office from survivors of submarine attacks. In addition, he had lived in Germany as a youth and was possessed, as were many Americans, by the now utterly exploded myth of German kindliness and goodness of heart. As the facts of submarine atrocity rolled up before him he confesses to suffering a disillusionment of a most distressing character.

So pleased was the American Government with Frost's painstaking and accurate reports that a cablegram of commendation was sent to him by the Secretary of State, an unusual expression of merit in the consular service. Last spring he was summoned home to take the lecture stand for the Bureau of Public Information. One of his lectures has become somewhat of an international classic, and has done wide service in the British Isles under the title of "Devils of the Deep," and also in translations into French and Spanish. His reports, although written several months ago, when the undersea ravages were still continuing, have just been published, under the title of "German Submarine Warfare," and the subtitle, "The Crime of the Lusitania" (Appleton). Excerpts are given herewith:

FOR convenience in treatment, the German manner, or practical tactics, of conducting the U-boat campaign may be considered under five general groups of divisions, although something will then remain to be said regarding the spirit of the campaign. The five groupings are as follows:

1. The manner of attack upon unarmed ships, usually sailing ships or the poorer class of steamships. In cases involving such vessels the submarines have been able to emerge and maneuver freely on the surface of the sea, with very scant misgivings as to danger.

2. The manner of attack upon freight ships of fair size, which might be presumed to be armed. In cases of this sort the submarines have done their work while submerged and have used torpedoes instead of shellfire or bombs. This class of cases is, of course, the heaviest and most important.

3. The fact as well as manner of attack upon ships that might be presumed to carry passengers. The large size of passenger liners, and the ethical and legal aspects of cases involving them, obviously place such cases in a class by themselves.

4. The manner in which the submarines treat survivors while still on the scene of attacks, either in the lifeboats or in the water. The personal demeanor of the U-boat officers and men toward their victims is fairly uniform, irrespective of whether the vessel concerned belongs to the first, second or third of the above classes.

5. The fact as well as the manner of leaving survivors to the mercy of the elements, far away from land. This feature, also, is common to the attacks upon all three classes of ships.

IN the early days of the war, to be quite fair, it was the ordinary custom of the submersibles to warn a sailing ship or small steamer by two or three wide shots. A typical case was that of the Cardiff barque Cardonia, a coal carrier. The U-boat fired two shots, palpably designed merely as a warning to heave to. The Cardonia, of course, complied; the Germans informed the master that he might take 30 minutes to abandon his ship, or more if he could show a reason. Later the submarine came up to the lifeboats in friendly fashion and gave them correct and helpful advice about making for land.

But as the campaign progressed, notably during the late summer and autumn of 1916, the submarine's manner of dealing with these helpless little steamers and sailers became increasingly harsh and severe. Instead of firing two or three warning shots, they would fire six or eight, aimed apparently to hit the ship. Instead of allowing such time as seemed desirable for taking to the boats, they began to set very narrow time limits—15, 10 or even five minutes—and to enforce these limits with Draconian rigor.

By the end of 1916 and early part of 1917 the U-boat men were plunging deeper and deeper into inhumanity. Their so-called warnings had degenerated in the main into unremitting and vicious bombardments—without pause or pity.

A full-rounded example is the case of the Madura, a little Russian barque carrying creosoted pine timber from Pensacola. It was attacked by a submarine just before noon one day in the spring of 1917. The submersible appeared less than half a mile astern and promptly began a merciless shell fire. The master of the Madura signaled submission instantly, even going to far as to cut down his mailsail upon the submarine's first shot. The submarine utterly ignored this pitiable self-abasement. It came up shooting, and continued to fire incessantly into the Madura.

Thirty minutes later, when the Madura's lifeboat was rescued by a friendly craft, it was a perfect shambles. The master, a huge black-bearded Finn, sat safely in the stern sheets with his wife beside him; but at their feet two dead sailors lay weltering in blood, and a third was just coughing out his life. Four other occupants of the boat were gory with lacerations from shrapnel. These inoffensive workingmen had been slaughtered and torn after they had surrendered, and while they were trying desperately to comply with any command the Prussians might have been graciously pleased to manifest.

I can cite you instance after instance like this, in which a frail and unarmed craft has made submission and pleaded for quarter, like a little dog that rolls over on its back and begs, and then has been pounded and raked with shell fire, sometimes with the most sickening casualties.

The changing character of the German use of gunfire became apparent only gradually, and for several months we were puzzled about its purpose. In the first place, bombardment seemed perfectly pointless, since we knew that the vessels were habitually surrendering precipitately upon the submarines' initial shots.

The great purpose of these wanton bombardments, as you will now be in a position to understand, was the terrorizing of the crews of the ships attacked. The idea was to induce among the merchant seamen of all nations a strong horror of entering the zone infested by the submarines. And in order to compass this purpose it was desirable that as many deaths and injuries as possible might result from the shelling.

AN argument propounded by the German chancellery itself is that a vessel which seeks to escape from a submarine places herself outside the protection of international law. It has been a rule of the laws of war that an innocent merchant ship is bound to submit to visit and search by a belligerent vessel of war, and must not seek to evade it. A noncombatant vessel that is so unwilling to undergo examination that it resorts to flight may be attacked by a war vessel to compel submission, and may even be destroyed.

But it was not from this civilized visit and search that ships' crews tried to escape in the present war. They tried to escape from being hustled with violence into fragile boats and left to be the sport of ocean tempests. The crime for which many died was that they preferred a chance to escape to the certainty of being hounded into little boats in mild weather and left alone on the face of the deep.

The Eavestone, a craft of only 1063 tons, outward bound to the Mediterranean, was attacked at noon in February, 1917, when 95 miles off the Fasnet. Her injudicious valor in trying to give the submarine a run seemed to irritate the superman in charge of the latter quite beyond his superself-control. He brought his craft rushing up to the poor little Eavestone, firing at every jump. The Eavestone's men tumbled into their two gigs and pulled pluckily away from the ship. As soon as they came clear of the stern the submarine turned her gun upon them, finding their range by trial shots, and then shot down the master, the steward, the donkey man and two seamen. One of the seamen was a Baltimore negro named Richard Wallace.

TO the minds of Admiral von Tirpitz and his satellites, the fact that a freight ship has been guilty of fiendishly mounting a little gun for self-defense, and wickedly trying to use it when the U-boat undertakes its benign work of shelling them into the lifeboats, placed that ship wholly outside the pale of common human consideration.

Take the case of the East Wales. This steamship of less than 3000 tons register was attacked by shell fire by two German submarines at 6 o'clock in the morning in October, 1917. She mounted a defensive gun aft and proceeded to make a gallant Fabian fight, handling her weapon so smartly that one of the pursuers was driven off and probably disabled. But the other U-boat proved too much for the merchant fighters. Two of the lifeboats were shot away, and it became the part of wisdom to abandon the ship before the other boats were destroyed.

Here was the German opportunity magnanimously to recognize a gallant foe after he had been vanquished. And the Prussians lost no time in doing it—in their own happy manner. They circled raging about the lifeboats and fired into them with the utmost malice, killing two men and wounding seven. One of the murdered men was James Dawcy Fringer of Roanoke, Va.

IN taking up the second group of the subject matter —the attacks upon freight steamers of fairly good size and speed, it may be said first and foremost that the larger the ships the more apt is the submarine to remain submerged and use a torpedo without warning. The Germans asserted that they had been constrained to this policy because the better class of us to sing 'Meet Me in St. Louis, Louis,' which we did. He also told us he was the liaison officer between the French and American troops, and he didn't know whether he was prouder of being French or American.

Life of a St. Louis Nurse in France

The eagerness of the American soldiers and the intrepid dash that characterized their charges is described in one of the letters:

"The Australians who came in last night from the push of the Fourth, and who went over with our boys, say the Yanks are wonderful fighters, but too eager; they say they can't keep up with them, and there is no holding them back when once they are started. We hear the same tale from everyone who has come in, so it must be so. They say our men will have a big casualty list, inevitably, if they kept it up. They are steady, quiet and cool, until the order comes to go over, and then they are like something wild."

The long-range artillery attacks on Paris, made by the Huns at intermittent intervals, following the spring drive, are described in a letter written Aug. 7, following the writer's return from her trip to Paris. "The day before I left," she wrote, "'Bertha' began 'coughing' again, and I found it very exciting, especially as a shell killed six people a block from J.'s (Miss Stimson's) house, and another fell a block in the other direction, an hour later. The day I left she was still at it. It is really rather terrifying, much more so, I think, than raids, for it suddenly appears, a bolt from the blue, with no warning whatever, and there is absolutely no place to go or anything to do, and one is quite as safe indoors as out. The French are so funny about it; it doesn't alarm them at all, but it does make them mad, and no wonder."

In her next letter, written in the middle of August, Miss Cobb, who was then nursing gas cases, makes reference to the first American boy to die in her detail from the after effect of the gas. He was a Chicago boy and his death greatly impressed the nurse, who tried so hard to save him. "He was so pathetic," she wrote, "was delirious most of the time and called for 'Mom' all night long. I am going to write to his mother; it may be a little comfort to her. Most of the gas cases get well, fortunately, but when it runs into pneumonia there isn't much hope. I have several on the line now in that condition. The other patients are so good to them. I have many 'walking wounded' on the line, too, and they help look after the others when we are busy.

About this time the German bombing planes made several visits to Rouen and extraordinary precautions were necessary to protect the hospital and its charges. In her note to her mother Miss Cobb makes light of these Hunnish attentions and assures her that there is no danger. The raiders shot up the city in places, but none of the bombs struck the hospital. "The patients are so good during a raid," she wrote, "and want to take care of Sister all they can. All who can, go to the trenches, and that's nearly all on this line. But I have these bad pneumonias, who, of course, cannot be moved, and I try to stay with the delirious ones during these raids. They sometimes are very excitable and are hard to keep in bed. My trench master doesn't leave me for long when a raid is on, and I know there isn't anything he wouldn't do for me if we were hit. If there was no element of danger in it, a raid would be a beautiful spectacle. The flash from the big guns, the flares of bombs sent down by Fritz, occasionally a burst of flame in the sky, the bullet chasers, which are dashes of light, and always the searchlights. The noise is terrific. The guns are very close and the jar and reverberation are pretty deafening."

That humor would crop out even in the midst of distressing surroundings is evidenced by a remark caught from a wounded Yank who, in reply to the plaint of a fellow sufferer, replied: "Yes, it's a hell of a war, but it's the only one we've got."

How the morale of the troops went up in bounds as the cheering tidings of continued victories everywhere came in, is described in a letter written early in October. While out for a walk Miss Cobb passed a British regiment lined up for inspection, preparatory to going to the front. The men were all singing and were seemingly in the best of spirits. A Sergeant-Major who stopped to speak to the nurses remarked that the soldiers had heard of the Bulgarian collapse and that Cambrai was surrounded and about to fall. This, he said, explained the jubilant frame of mind of the troops. As these soldiers passed they saluted Miss Cobb and the others and shouted back: 'Save a bed for us, Sister; we're coming back.'"

With the cool weather of October came the chilblains, which caused much suffering among the nurses the previous fall and winter. The rubber gloves worn by the nurses were considered very bad for the "chillies," as Miss Cobb termed them. "When you see our boys come in all shot to pieces," she wrote, "trifles like 'chillies' are hardly worth mentioning."

Commenting on the attitude and demeanor of the soldiers toward the nurses, Miss Cobb made this interesting comparison between Tommies and Yanks: "After taking care of Tommies, it is so strange to have these boys. They haven't the same respect in their demeanor, I regret to say, that the Tommies show, although I know they feel it. One of the boys, a nice New Yorker, saw one of our Virginia nurses, a lovely, fascinating little piece, come into the ward this morning, and called out most gleefully: 'Hello, Cutie! I was afraid you weren't coming back!' Of course, she had to talk to him severely, but he only meant to be friendly. They all want to get back to the lines and are perfectly furious over being wounded. One big, fine-looking Sergeant, shot through one arm and both legs, called me to him when he first got off the stretcher, and said: 'Now, see here, nurse, can't you get me fixed up right away? I can't stay down here but a day or two. I promised the fellers I'd be back next week!' Poor lad, he has some weeks of hospital before him and then a long convalescence in Blighty, and the war will probably be over by the time he's fit again."

An Easy Way to Apply Medicine

Catarrh and Colds Relieved by Smoking a Certain Combination of Medicinal Herbs, Leaves and Flowers

Smoking is a very simple method by which medicine may be introduced into the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs, yet no other means can so easily reach many of these inaccessible places.

Dr. Blosser is the originator of a combination of medicinal herbs, leaves and flowers which are smoked in the form of a cigarette which he manufactures, or in a neat little pipe. The fumes of this Remedy are inhaled into the lungs or exhaled through the nostrils; thereby applying a warm, penetrating medication directly to the inflamed mucous membranes, producing a stimulating yet soothing effect.

It Contains No Tobacco

Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Remedy is absolutely harmless to man, woman or child. It is pleasant to use, and not sickening to those who have never smoked.

There may be some doubt in your mind that it can be so easily done even when a case is an old chronic one, but you can satisfy yourself by sending your name and address with ten cents (in coin or stamps) for a Trial Supply to THE BLOSSER COMPANY, Box 4689, Atlanta, Ga. This Trial Outfit contains some of the ready prepared cigarettes; a bag of the Remedy for smoking in a pipe, and a dainty new pipe.

A regular package of Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Remedy costs $1.25 by mail (either one hundred cigarettes or a thirty-day supply for pipe use). If you suffer from Catarrh you should order a regular package today, or send ten cents for the Trial Outfit.

"Cure Your Rupture Like I Cured Mine"

His Remedy and Book Sent Free.

Captain Collings sailed the seas for many years; then he sustained a bad double rupture that soon forced him to not only remain ashore, but kept him bedridden for years. He tried doctor after doctor and truss after truss. No results! Finally, he was assured that he must either submit to a dangerous and abhorrent operation or die. He did neither! He cured himself instead.

"Fellow Men and Women, You Don't Have To Be Cut Up, and You Don't Have To Be Tortured By Trusses."

Captain Collings made a study of himself, of his condition—and at last he was rewarded by the finding of the method that so quickly made him a well, strong, vigorous and happy man.

Anyone can use the same method; it's simple, easy, safe and inexpensive. Every ruptured person in the world should have the Captain Collings book, telling all about how he cured himself, and how anyone may follow the same treatment in their own home without any trouble. The book and medicine are FREE. They will be sent prepaid to any rupture sufferer who will fill out the below coupon. But send it right away—now—before you put down this paper.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given By One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

Cigarette Habit

How to Overcome It Quickly and Easily

Unless you have been exceptionally careful the cigarette has a hold which you cannot shake off by will power.

The lure of the cigarette is powerful. Is it the nicotine that is poisoning your system, making you nervous, heart weak, dyspeptic, eye strained and irritable?

Are you troubled with sleeplessness at night and dullness in the morning until you have doped yourself with the nicotine of cigarettes or pipe, or chewing tobacco? They're all the same, you know.

Give your poison-saturated body, from your pale yellowish skin right into your pale yellowish liver, a chance to be free from the mean slavery of nicotine.

Get rid of the vicious habit. Lengthen your life. Become contented and spread happiness among others. Enjoy tranquility combined with forceful thought and real efficiency.

I know what will conquer the tobacco habit in three days. You gain the victory completely and privately at home.

My new book will be very interesting to you. It will come to you in a plain wrapper free, postpaid. Write to Edward J. Woods, TC-28, Station F, New York, N. Y. You will be surprised and delighted.—ADV.

SAVING MONEY INSTEAD OF .. BURNING IT UP IN THE FURNACE

Expert advice on the care and management of the heating plant in flat or house—Simple rules for getting the most heat out of your fuel

WAR conditions which sent the price of coal to record-breaking figures and placed the entire system of distribution under the drastic rules of the United States Fuel Administration, have proven a sore trial to most householders, but, as in other setbacks and ills, the law of compensation has stepped in to offer some alleviation. The consumer has received, and is still receiving, some practical education on how to manage his furnace, so as to get a maximum of efficiency out of his coal supply. When he looked at his bill and saw that prime bituminous coal that used to cost him $3.50 per ton had gone up 100 per cent, and only a limited supply at a time, he began to give the subject some real study. He suddenly acquired a deep interest in dampers, flues, fireboxes and other parts of his furnace that had received little attention before the war, and the abnormal prices that came with it, as a necessary corrolary. With coal plentiful and selling at pre-war prices, he did not care how much coal was fed in at the firedoor, so long as his house or flat, as the case might be, was comfortable. He did not concern himself about what proportion of his gas and carbon went out of the chimney, to blacken his own and his neighbor's family wash, that happened to be hung out to dry. Neither did he care very much whether the chains working the drafts were in good order or not. War prices which upset so many other calculations changed his entire perspective and created a new-born interest in the furnace and its essential parts. Furnace dealers and coal men report that the education is progressing, and predict that if the consumer does not lapse into his old indifference, he will be in a position to save a large part of his annual outlay.

There are printed directions accompanying most furnaces and the careful householder keeps this poster conveniently hung in his cellar, so as to consult the rules as occasion demands. Most householders, however, did nothing of the kind. They just got in the habit of running the furnace any way that suggested the least work and trouble, and never took the time to figure how many buckets of coal went in or how many cans of ashes went to the pit in the backyard. While they might have been applying efficiency methods to other matters, there was neither time nor inclination to try the same system on the furnace. Reports from all sections of the country show that the conservation program, so intensively pushed by the Fuel Administration through its many organizations, has effected a sweeping reform, with an astonishing resultant saving.

During the automobile show conducted at the old Southern Hotel last February, a demonstration was given on this important subject, under the auspices of the Missouri organization. One-minute speeches were made nightly by furnace and fuel experts, and the demonstration included everything from a laundry stove to a steam heater of sufficient radiating capacity to supply a very large home. This educational campaign, according to the report of the experts who conducted the tests, elicited the astounding fact that only four persons in every thousand knew how to run their furnaces so as to get all of the heating efficiency possible out if the coal. This conclusion was based largely on the questions asked by the great number who listened to the talks of the demonstrations. One of the volunteer demonstrators who served at this show was E. B. Langenberg, an engineer of heating and ventilation, who has specialized in hot air furnaces. Studying the accompanying diagram, prepared for a furnace burning anthracite, to illustrate the proper and the improper way of managing the furnace, he characterized it as a pretty fair exposition of the subject. He added, however, that 75 per cent efficiency was a difficult achievement under the most efficient firing possible, even with hard coal fuel. He said that from his study of the consumption of soft coal in furnaces, he would place the waste at 40 per cent, which, he added, was a muchbetter showing than was made generally before the conservation campaign was inaugurated.

"It is true, he said, that the domestic consumers as well as the great industrial plants, have been giving much attention to this important matter. That the householders are getting good results from their study of their furnaces is evident from what we hear every day.

THE STORY OF COAL WASTED AND MONEY LOST

The wasteful coal user bought 10 tons costing at least $100. Of this amount, $75 worth was wasted and he got heat from only $25 worth. He lost $40 because he either did not have or did not use the check draft damper and turn damper; and he let most of the heat go up the chimney. His heater and heater pipes were not covered with asbestos, causing a $20 loss; $10 was wasted because smoke pipe and heater flues were not clean of soot; $5 was wasted because when shaking fire he allowed live coals to fall into ash pit. He opened the coaling door to check fire, which was absolutely wrong.

"After all, it is not such a difficult matter to run a furnace, whether it is a hot-air, steam or hot-water affair. If I were asked to stress any particular injunction, I would say: Keep a bright spot in your fire and coke your coal, for when you coke the coal, you utilize your gases. That, of course, will not work with a furnace that is full of soot, and choked with ashes. When the fresh coal is introduced with enough heat there to start the coking, the gases generated in the process are united with the air that comes through the feed-door slide and is carried over the bright spot, towards the flue opening. Your gas is thereby converted into heat and that heat stays in the house. Another thing to remember is that the largest consumption of coal by no means produces the greatest volume of heat. In a recent test, I saw the coal supply for a hot-air furnace reduced from 12 to 4 buckets a day, without any loss of heat efficiency.

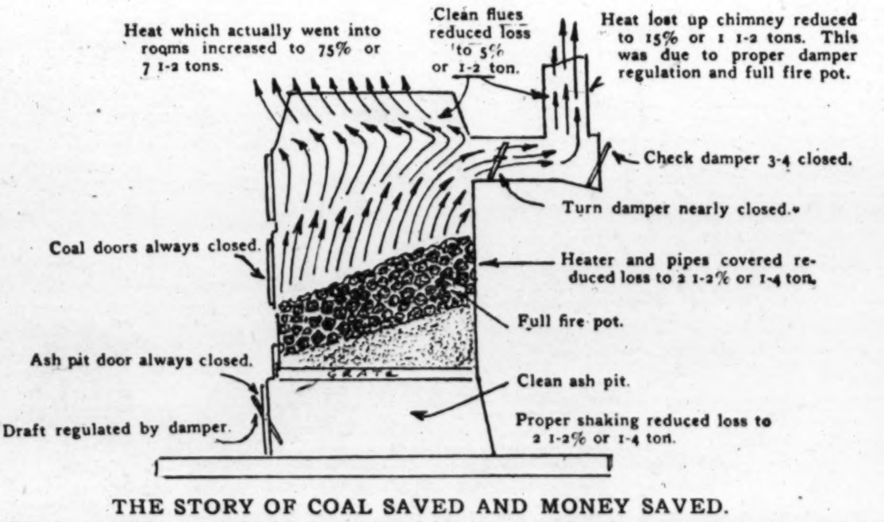
"Another thing for the man with the furnace to remember when the winds swoop down from the Northwest in blizzards and near-blizzards, when the rooms on one side of his house are hot and the others freezing, is this: Close off the heat in the pipes down in the cellar that are supplying the warmth to the hot rooms. He will soon notice a rush of warm air to the rooms that need it most. With a wind blowing 20 miles per hour, the average leakage of cold air into the house on the cold-air side, is approximately 50 cubic feet per minute per lineal foot, around a window or door. Weather strips save about 10 per cent of this leakage. In such exfreme weather, the heat can be forced against the wind only by shutting off the supply for the rooms on the lee side, and the only effective way with the air furnace is to do this by closing the dampers in the hot-air ducts in the cellar, instead of closing the registers in the rooms. Another thing to be remembered, if we are to get the furnace working properly and the thermal units out of our coal, is to get the heater in proper shape, either at the beginning or the end of the season. It is a good idea, at the end of winter, to take down the smoke pipe connecting the furnace with the wall flue, wrap it up in papers and put it away. No matter how good a pipe it is, it will corrode and rust, when the moisture coming down the chimney mixes with whatever soot it may contain. A smoke pipe will last 10 years if this precaution is taken; and a leaky pipe causes endless furnace trouble."

Six firings a day, properly administered, should appease the fuel appetite of any well-behaved furnace, according to Langenberg's formulae, and this supply should answer, whether it is hot-air, steam or hot-water heat, assuming, of course, that soft coal is used. He would also place a ban on the opening of the firedoor except for the purpose of putting in coal. The practice of leaving this door open is absolute waste, as the heat always gets away from its objective. His plan requires that the slide in the top of the feed door be kept partly open at all times and particularly when soft coal is used; also that the smoke pipe damper be never entirely closed. Another injunction is that the furnace should be cleaned much more frequently with soft coal consumption than is necessary with anthracite.

According to Langenberg's investigations covering the various types of hot-air furnaces, 65 per cent coal efficiency should be averaged, though in isolated cases, with excellent fuel, a record of more than 80 per cent has been obtained. Roughly speaking, the coal produces 40 per cent carbon, 40 per cent gas and 20 per cent ash. The carbon will burn anyhow, and it is the business of the man firing the heater to get as much of the gas as is possible.

Another warning sounded by this authority deals with clinkers. He would have these barnacles of the furnace banished before they get a good start. The clinkers come usually from the coal ingredients running together under the stress of intense heat, created by strong draft. When they accumulate and form large chunks of slag, the heat value of the coal is lost, as the oxygen cannot penetrate this armor. Other points urged have to do with cleanliness about the furnace proper, the smoke pipe and flues. To clean out the smoke pipe and flues, Langenberg says it is only necessary to raise the check draft and shove burning papers into the opening. These will quickly ignite the accumulated soot and send a shower of sparks out of the chimney. The furnace can be renovated by applying the same treatment through the cleanout opening at the side, near the bottom. When this operation is under way the damper in the smoke pipe must be wide open to permit the greatest draft possible. With soft coal, soot will gather in the firebox and against the door even under the most favorable conditions. To remedy this the suggestion is made that the inside be cleaned out at least once a week. The Langenberg treatment is to take an old brush or whisk broom and brush down the adhering accumulations. This applies as well to steam and hot-water furnaces, since they are all of necessity burning soft coal this winter.

With hot-air furnaces it is essential to watch the very large pipe which admits the air from the outside. In bitter cold weather this should be regulated by the dampers so as to take the air current from within.



Heat which actually went into rooms increased to 75% or 7 1-2 tons.
Clean flues reduced loss to 5% or 1-2 ton.
Heat lost up chimney reduced to 15% or 1 1-2 tons. This was due to proper damper regulation and full fire pot.
Check damper 3-4 closed.
Turn damper nearly closed.
Coal doors always closed.
Heater and pipes covered reduced loss to 2 1-2% or 1-4 ton.
Full fire pot.
Ash pit door always closed.
Clean ash pit.
Draft regulated by damper.
Proper shaking reduced loss to 2 1-2% or 1-4 ton.
GRATE

THE STORY OF COAL SAVED AND MONEY SAVED.

The householder who efficiently operated his heater ordered ten tons of coal, costing $100. Of this he received $75 worth of heat; only $25 was used in creating draft. Little better can be expected. To accomplish this, he learned how to use the draft damper and the turn damper, cutting chimney losses. He covered heater and heater pipes with asbestos, utilizing much heat. He shook his fire only until a glow appeared in the ash pit—not allowing hot coals to drop. He cleaned smoke pipe and heater flues of soot and kept coaling door closed, except when putting on coal.

freighters carried guns. If the Germans had originally put forward this excuse at a time when many freight ships were really carrying guns, they would have had a strong case. But they were pumping this plea, with full tremolo effects on the "more-in-sorrow-than-wrath" variety, long before one merchantman in a half-dozen bore armament.

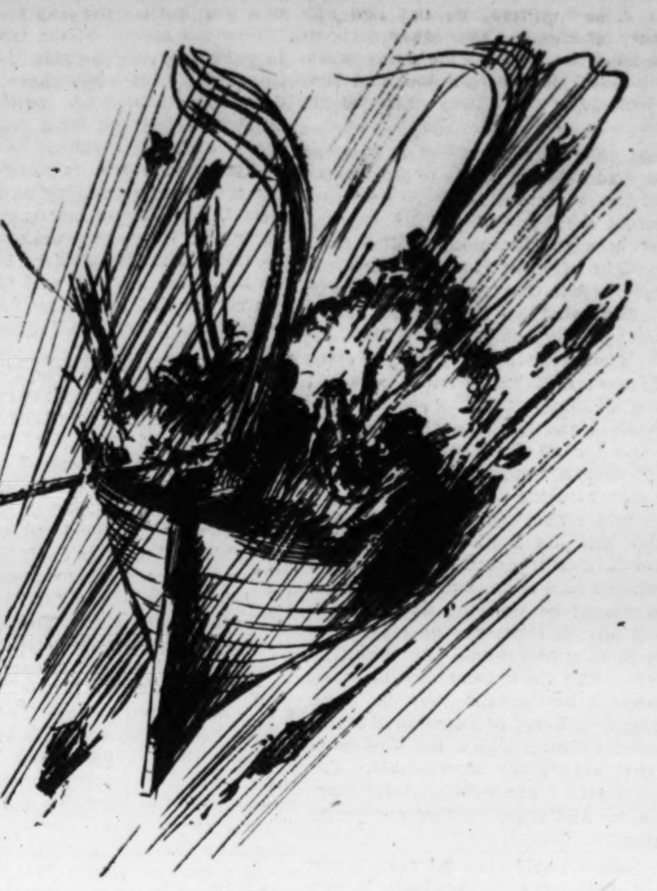
The argument was an empty and impudent pretext at the time it was fabricated to cloak a shark's appetite for victims. The truth of the matter is that the Germans determined to sink any and every ship at sight, and to do their work free of any "sentimental" warnings which might embarrass the triumph of their cause.

A fair hit by a torpedo is apt to sink a ship in remarkably short order. If the Queenstown criteria are trustworthy, I believe that at least one-half of all ships struck by a torpedo without warning sank within a space of 10 minutes or less.

A Cork packet boat, the City of Bandon, torpedoed without warning at 10 o'clock on a bleak winter night, sank in 60 seconds, with a loss of all but four of 32 men. Her sister ship, the Ardmore, also torpedoed without warning, sank instantaneously, with a loss of all but a single member of her crew. The Barnton sank in 30 seconds, with 14 men lost and nine saved. The Richard de Larrinaga sank in three minutes, with the death of 35—including several Americans—out of her 48 occupants.

On the sea floor at the bottom of the broad tract of sea known as the South Irish Channel there are lying several thousand corpses of murdered seamen. The dangers attending upon warningless torpedoing are by no means confined to actual drowning from the sudden engulfment of the ship. In at least one case out of every three there occur boiler explosions. If the submarine makes good shooting the torpedo strikes amidships and induces an engine explosion, with fatalities more horrifying than those from shell fire. I saw the magnificent Scotch chief engineer of the Salmo frightfully scalded about the head and torso; and when I left Queenstown he was said to be dying in agony at the civil hospital there. In a score or more of cases I have listened to the most sickening stokehold stories of how brave men, frequently Americans, were blown into ribbons or boiled to death in live steam from bursting pipes.

The use of repeated torpedoes to dispatch a sinking ship is not infrequent, and affords one more evidence of the utter disregard for life or death with which the submarines put through their attacks. In the case of the Falaba, a third torpedo launched by the submarine in broad daylight, from within a few hundred yards, struck squarely beneath a crowded lifeboat, killing two score or more passengers and seamen.



A third torpedo, discharged at the sinking Falaba in broad daylight, struck directly under a crowded lifeboat, killing two score or more passengers and seamen.

THIS brings us to the third class of submarine attacks, the most dumfounding, the most saddening of all. We have seen that the submarine murdered people who have made surrender, and that they killed from behind without a qualm as to the character of their prey. But the assaults upon passenger vessels constituted war upon women and children—there is no other phrase for it—a course which since the invention of movable type had been unknown among the Caucasian races.

Let me state immediately, and insist upon the point, that neither in the case of the Lusitania or the Arabic, or in any other passenger case whatever or wheresoever, has there been the slightest forewarning on the part of the submarine. The U-boats have at various times had the grace to give warning to every kind of freight vessel; but they have never permitted themselves to give any notice of assaults impending upon ships carrying ladies and children. The observation that passenger ships are the quickest of all ships to sink after being torpedoed is a commonplace wherever the submarine campaign extended.

The impossibility of stopping a big vessel after a torpedo explosion has time and time again played a deadly part in submarine tragedies. The classic instance, as you know, is that of the Lusitania, from which several hundred of the 1200 deaths occurred because of the vis inertia which carried the great leviathan headlong forward at just the critical juncture when the lifeboats should have been launched. I venture to estimate that one-third of all the loss of life in the submarine campaign—at least from passenger vessels—has resulted from the difficulty and delay which the ships' momentum caused in launching the lifeboats.

A passenger liner waylaid and sandbagged was the ship Abosso, concerning which the American public seems to have heard very little. This fine vessel carried 126 passengers, many of whom were wives and children of British officials in West Africa. She was coming up from the Gold Coast and was torpedoed with not a hint of warning, at 9 o'clock in the evening, when 300 miles off the southwest corner of Ireland.

The engines were instantly put out of control by the explosion, and for a full half-hour the gallant ship plunged hither and thither, yawing and veering erratically in her extremity like a stricken animal. A lovely sunset aftermath still lingered in the west, and a crescent moon and evening star were witnesses of the pitiful scene. Desperate attempts were made to fill and launch the lifeboats; but the anguished vessel repeatedly smashed and flung off the boats, spilling and strewing the sea with human beings like grains of dust. And when deep night closed down over those remote waters, out of 300 men and women and children who had struggled to save their lives, nearly 100 had become bits of inert flotsam on the long sea swells.

The Abosso was one of those ships which the U-boats have deliberately followed during daylight hours and deliberately attacked upon the advent of dusk. Unbelievable as it seems, these poltroons have in many instances marked down their victims while it was light and slunk furtively behind them until night should fall to cloak the attack. That is to say, they have chosen for the moment of assault the time when their victims have the worst possible opportunities for self-preservation. The Germans used this vile strategy against many other ships.

ONE more passenger case, to exemplify still another submarine characteristic, must not be omitted. The feature in this case is the U-boat hatred of wireless. Their fear of any radiograph communication amounts to an aberration. In the presence of wireless apparatus they behave with the same desperate nervousness which a woman shows in killing a snake.

The Mantola affair, in which seven deaths occurred, is an excellent illustration. This British-India line passenger boat, outward bound for the Cape and Calcutta, was torpedoed without warning in heavy weather in the winter of 1917, when 185 miles off the Fastnet. It so happened that although abandoned in haste, the ship remained afloat for a quite a time, and after her survivors had stood by in the lifeboats for an hour and a half the wireless operator and chief engineer returned bravely on board to send off an S O S call to bring help to the women and children.

But at the first click of the radio key the submarine, which had been lurking on the murky horizon, picked up that message of distress and forthwith began a wicked bombardment of the derelict, so that the attempt to ask for rescue had to be abandoned. There was no rational chance that any admiralty ship would be near enough to balk the submarine in its triumph, nor was there any conceivable reason why that cry for succor should not have gone out across the sea. We are squarely faced with the raw dilemma of whether the submarine was simply the most jaundiced super-craven ever extant, or was black dastard enough actually to desire that those innocent people should perish on the sea, without help.

IN discussing the way lifeboats are treated, the case of the Cairnhill stands out pre-eminent. This freighter was bound for New York to Havre with a general cargo, not long before America entered the war. Her chief officer sighted a torpedo which passed astern and missed. No warning had been received. The Cairnhill got up increased steam. The submarine emerged four miles astern and set itself to overhauling the American ship, firing from time to time. Within 20 minutes it was within half a mile of its prey, shelling the defenseless ship steadily. The men on the Cairnhill were wounded and the starboard lifeboat had been carried away. It was necessary for 14 men to crowd into the captain's gig and 20 into the port boat. The wind was between fresh and strong and the wave action rough and choppy.

The U-boat immediately came up to the boats and commandeered the large one, placing the occupants on its own deck forward of the conning tower and taking the mate a prisoner below. Then the submarine's crew, under regular supervision of the officers, entered the lifeboat and deliberately threw overboard the food, the water, the sails and even the bandana handkerchiefs full of the little treasures the poor sailors were trying to save. To put a point upon this hideous jest, they actually filled the sweet-water cask with salt sea water! The description called before me involuntarily, as I heard it, the loathsome tomfoolery of a troop of playful orangoutangs.

While engaged in bombing the Cairnhill the Germans sighted smoke on the skyline and rightly conjectured that a destroyer was in the vicinity. After setting their bombs, which they took pains to do carefully and effectively, they returned to the submarine and went below with angry brusqueness. No sooner could they close the hatch than the submarine abruptly submerged, with not a hint of warning, leaving the 19 men from her deck struggling in a cross sea, 150 miles from land. It was in the highest degree probable that most of them would drown, but by energy, heroism and luck at the end of 30 minutes the last man was pulled into the boat.

I WILL mention a case which I have on hearsay only, from a merchant officer. This gentleman assured me that a submarine was definitely known to have captured a steward and his wife and put them through a "third-degree" examination for information on the submarine's deck. When they proved intractably loyal and silent, the Germans submerged suddenly and left them to their fate in the water. In consideration of the otherwise proved nature of the Genus Squalus in dealing with womanhood, this story met spontaneous acceptance in my mind, and I still believe it.

Postmaster Huges of the British navy has been cited as authority for the recent case in which the crew of a captured German submarine tried to leave British prisoners, bound and gagged, on board to drown when her captors left her.

Alfred Noyes is authority for an instance in which a U-boat granted towage to a lifeboat for an hour or more, and then suddenly and capriciously submerged without warning and without freeing the tow line. Only the victims' quickness and strength in whipping out knives and sawing through the stout rope saved them from being dragged below the surface of the ocean!

—o—

AN American merchant officer named Adolph Colstad, born in Norway, but for 30 years an American citizen, chanced to be serving in the autumn of 1916 as mate on board the steamship Harpalus. This collier was attacked 38 miles southwest of Galley Head, Ireland. For nearly three hours after the attack it befell that Colstad remained in the company of the German officers of the submarine. After a short time he ventured to tax them for an explanation of the cruelties of the submarine campaign. To his astonishment, they assured him, with tears in their eyes, that if ever they withheld their hands for the sake of showing mercy, and if their crew informed upon them on the return to Germany, they would be put to death by slow physical torture. They further stated that two different German submarine commanders had actually been tortured to death in the fatherland for acts of compassion as to which their crews had "peached" on them. Colstad insisted upon swearing to the truth of this incident in an affidavit.

Life of a St. Louis Nurse in France

Letters of Miss Ruth B. Cobb of Washington University Unit describe deluge of wounded pouring into hospital at Rouen, the impressive funeral of an American Brigadier-General, precautions against aerial attacks, French celebration of Fourth of July, and long-range bombardment of Paris :: ::

SIDELIGHTS on the war, from the point of view of the Red Cross nurse, are graphically written to Mrs. C. W. S. Cobb of the Buckingham Hotel by her daughter, Miss Ruth B. Cobb, one of the volunteers in the Washington University Unit. Unit No. 21, organized immediately after the declaration of war, was one of the most thoroughly equipped bodies of science, skill and mercy to go overseas. This group, which has done so much to favorably impress the French and English with St. Louis, left here on a special train in May, 1917, just a little over a month after the United States had accepted the German challenge with a formal war declaration. It was complete in every detail, and was on the way to where its ministrations were sadly needed before the first post hole was dug for the first American cantonment. The surgeons, physicians and other specialists have done their work well, and that the skill and zeal of the nursing staff was recognized is attested by the appointment of Miss Julia Stimson, its head, to the high station of chief of the army nurses in France, an executive post that placed her in direct charge of some 8000 nurses.

Miss Cobb was no novice in the nursing profession when Washington University called for volunteers. She had taken up this work some time before and had completed her training before the unit was organized. Since its arrival in Europe, the University contingent has undergone some changes in personnel and has furnished nuclei for other units, but the main body has spent most of the time as British Hospital No. 12, on the racetrack inclosure, three miles from the pretty French city of Rouen, where it is still stationed. That it has been a hard-pressed and sorely driven machine is evident from the letters of Miss Cobb, which speak of long hours, frequent danger from boche air raids, inconveniences, personal discomforts and heart-rending scenes, but nowhere does she find fault or register anything but satisfaction with her profession, and determination to administer to the sick and wounded Americans, Tommies, poilus and other victims of Prussian kultur. The first cases were not Americans; these did not come until later, but when the fortunes, or, rather, the misfortunes, of war sent the boys from her own country to No. 12, she and her sister nurses were there, eager and ready, self-sacrificingly, to do their essential work.

Under date of April 6, last, the anniversary of America's entrance in the war, Miss Cobb wrote as follows:

"This is a memorable day and we are celebrating, although I feel that we oughtn't to call it that. Maj. Murphy is giving the entire personnel of the camp a chicken dinner tonight. Of course, we eat in our separate messes, but we all are to have a fancy dinner, with flowers and fixin's. Such a two weeks it has been! Certainly there can never be anything worse in store for us. In the first place, the flow of convoys, coming and going, was absolutely continuous. They operated night and day; had two separate teams, of course, and kept six tables going at a time. The men came down, straight from the dressing stations for the most part, with splints over their khaki, and sometimes with only the field dressings on, applied by themselves.

"No account you ever read could begin to describe the condition they were in, or the deluge that poured into this camp. They lay on floors, on stretchers; they filled the Y. M. C. A., and the grand stand was full of walking cases—poor things, so dirty and so tired—and all we could do was to feed them dress their wounds and send them on, either to a convalescent camp or to Blighty. We are still sending cases to England, and I wonder whether they can live to get on the boat, to make room for others even worse. We all worked just as hard and as fast as we were capable. When night came we crawled into bed, and were dead until dawn.

"Many of the nurses broke down and had frequent attacks of hysteria—the strain is something terrific. To send one man after another to the operating room, and to see him come back legless and armless, to work like mad to pull him through, to have him die after hemorrhaging, and then to see another waiting outside for his bed before he is carried out, is something awful. Most nerves break under it after a few days.

"The gas gangrene has been especially bad during this last push. You know, that has nothing to do with gas shells, but comes from the gas bacillus and is a very virulent and deadly infection, and almost always amputation is necessary to save life."

MISS RUTH B. COBB.

In this letter Miss Cobb describes the arrival of reinforcements to the staff of nurses, in this strain:

"Monday night at midnight, in a pouring rain, 15 forlorn, homesick little nurses rolled up to our doors. We didn't know they were coming, or how many, or where from—one never does in the army, you know—but J. had a marquee up, fortunately, and the beds were up, but no mattresses. Poor little things, they looked so young, and they had just come—a part of a mobile unit, to be sent wherever needed, and all from Kentucky. I can tell you the next few days were about all they could stand."

Writing on June 6, Miss Cobb describes the precautions taken at the hospital to protect the camp from bombing attacks. She wrote: "I found the camp very much upset, with trenches being dug everywhere and sandbags piled against all the huts to the height of four feet, so unless the hut is hit on the roof, it is pretty well protected. We all have our trenches assigned to us and 'tin hats' issued, and we are as ready as we can be."

In another paragraph, dated the following day, Miss Cobb tells of the funeral ceremonies over the body of Gen. M., an American Brigadier-General, who died of heart disease on a train between Le Havre and Rouen. Soldiers of five nations participated in these ceremonials, which the writer describes at some length. "The casket," she wrote, "was covered with the flag and great wreaths from all the allies, and four Americans stood at attention all the time. They chose the biggest men in the company, and when the Sergeant notified a bix six-foot Kentuckian, who weighs 250, what his job was to be, I heard him say: 'Well, Sergeant, I ain't very bent on guarding no dead body all night, but I reckon I'll have to do it, and I want to tell you nothing I ever guarded ever got away yet.'

"We all assembled in the grand stand for the event and promptly at 2:30 two companies of Tommies, headed by a brass band, marched into the paddock and lined up at the foot of the marquee. They went through various maneuvers and finally stood at rest, and were closely followed by two companies of French soldiers in their beautiful long blue coats—the prettiest uniforms in the war, and carrying their guns so differently from the Tommies. Their officers were so smart, with their swords and all the gold lace and decorations the French always wear.

"They lined up opposite the marquee and were followed by two companies of our boys, who were unarmed, as they were attached to a medical unit. Well, they lined up to the left of the tent, and then the officers, French, British, Belgian, Italian and American, formed a big group at one end, with a group of civilians at the other that included our Consul and the Mayor of Rouen. Finally, the band played 'Nearer My God, to Thee,' and a French gun carriage, drawn by four great black horses, each one ridden by a poilu, drove up to the marquee, eight American N. C. O.'s lifted the casket to the carriage, and they drove off, while the band played the dead march, and in turn, one company after another followed, the two chaplains marching directly after the carriage. It was so impressive and so perfectly done that it seemed unreal. Miss Taylor is going to write the details to his family—it will be such a comfort to them to know."

Responding to her mother's anxious inquiries concerning the attacks made from the air on the hospitals, Miss Cobb reassures her mother in this manner, in closing her letter: "Don't worry; remember, if I happened to be a boy, I'd be in the trenches."

The Fourth of July celebration in Rouen is the theme of a long letter by Miss Cobb. In this interesting note she tells of the elaborate preparations made by the French and of the spirit and dash put into the program by all of the allies represented. There was an American regimental band there, which came a very long way to supply appropriate martial music for the day. It was made up mostly of Chicago musicians, and the leader, in the pre-war period, was at the head of a big band in that city. There was a ball game, of course, and athletic events of all kinds, for all the soldiers who desired to take part. The band which had come such a long way arrived near the close of the ball game and received an ovation its members will long remember. The celebration ran into the night and closed with patriotic music and speeches in the Rouen Opera House. Miss Cobb and her party had the box next to the Cardinal's for the evening exercises.

"Our band," she wrote, "was in the orchestra's seats, and in between speeches gave us real American songs, which we all sang and called for more. The program consisted of speeches by, first, a French General, in French, which was very dramatic and flowery. Second, a set speech by the British Doctor of Medical Service for France. He read it and stated in most careful terms the admirable quality of the work done by the Americans under his command. After that came a lovely Belgian General, very aristocratic looking, who told us in very halting, broken English of what his country owed to ours. Then a beautiful American General (so big and plain and simple and American) made a really splendid speech, which he began with: 'Today I have received an official note from Washington that there are 1,000,000 American soldiers in France.' We all cheered until we were hoarse, and it was some minutes before he could go on. Well, after the speeches we had movies of American soldiers in France, which were preceded by an announcement in French, by a French officer, which he finished in perfect English, telling us that he had been in St. Louis at the time of the Fair and he wanted

War Provides Harvest for Stamp Collectors

THE end of the war does not bring to a close the most fascinating chapter of the history of philately. Many pages are yet to be written, covering the movement of troops, which may mean fresh issues of postage stamps, and covering also the period of reconstruction, which will certainly bring forth new franking labels, which will be classed as war stamps, for the reason that but for the war they never would have appeared.

These new stamps of the days of the armistice and of the world's renovation will be issued for numerous reasons. French troops have occupied parts of Austria and Hungary and Germany; American and British and Belgian forces have entered Germany, Italian soldiers have gone into terrain formerly claimed by Austria. It will surprise philately if new stamps do not come forth to signify one or more of these phases of occupation.

Meanwhile, various states which formed the German empire have declared themselves republics, and the old stamps of monarchical days are likely to be retired and new ones may be expected. Germany herself will undoubtedly withdraw her "woman in armor" labels—the stamps upon which the militaristic figure of "Germania" has been the central design for many years—and displace them with ones of milder character, significant of the political changes. The abdication of Emperor Charles of Austria will be followed speedily by the retirement of the Austrian labels which bear his portrait.

Those Ukrainian and Polish Governments which were established under German tutelage have recently issued stamps which are certain to disappear from circulation as these Governments fall and others are set up in their places, and the new Governments will in turn issue stamps.

When colonies which were formerly German are disposed of at the peace table, these transfers will mean the elimination of stamps provisionally used under Entente occupation. New stamps will be issued, of a permanent character.

New nations will arise out of the war and the peace conference; and these Governments will have philatelic identity. Czecho-Slovakia already has established its own postal system and has joined the family of stamp-issuing countries. The coming political and military developments in Russia and the Orient all assure new stamps.

It is not improbable that Alsace-Lorraine, once more joined to France, will memorialize this homecoming by preparing a special issue. The Italian Irredenta may be expected to take similar action.

Belgium, Rumania, Montenegro, Servia, all have had their peoples subjected to the use of occupation stamps imposed upon them by German or Austrian or Bulgarian invaders, and will be quick to associate their own national postage stamps with their rebirth of liberation.

There will be innumerable commemorative issues. Newfoundland is preparing a series, to appear about New Year's, with inscriptions relating both to European battles in which her troops participated and to her Royal Naval Reserve; and it is not probable that the postal administrations of France and Belgium will fail to depict scenes of war history on franking labels; and other nations will do likewise.

There will be peace stamps. Switzerland some months ago selected designs for a series of such adhesives, to be issued after the war. The 2-cent and 5-cent stamps which the United States Government had intended to issue to commemorate 100 years of peace among English-speaking peoples, and particularly between America and Great Britain, were not put forth in 1914, as had been intended, because of the advent of the war. It is understood the plates for these already had been prepared, and it is a matter of speculation as to whether these stamps will now appear. Other nations may be expected to prepare peace labels.

In philatelic circles consideration is given to the suggestion that, with the formation of a league of nations, the issuing of postage stamps by nations may eventually cease. The argument has been advanced that great expense would be eliminated if universal stamps were prepared, good for postage from any one country to any other country. This situation is one of conjecture only, however, as many difficulties lie in the way, including the fact that there is no universal system of coinage.

With the lifting of censorship restriction, news will come of stamps which, issued in the days of the war, have hitherto been concealed from the knowledge of collectors in America. These concern particularly the philatelic developments in Russia, where the stamp situation has been confused since the days of the Russian revolution. From the Balkans may be received information which slowly moving and censored mails have either delayed or kept out altogether.

Philately already is aware of the existence of approximately 3150 stamps which but for the war would not have come forth. Roughly, these may be classed as follows: Charity or Red Cross; military, for use by troops; occupation, for use by peoples of invaded lands; war tax, for use on mail in addition to regular adhesives; commemorative, issued especially because of events related to the war; revenue, or fiscal labels, for facilitating collection of levies on commodities or documents, and provisional, necessary because of shortage of customary paper, or increase of postal rates, or exhaustion of stamp supplies, or scarcity of dyestuffs; or any of a dozen and more other reasons.

The Powers associated against the Teutonic Alliance issued more than three times the number of war stamps put forth by the countries of that alliance. Of the total of 3157 known war stamps, the United States and allies have put forth 2274 varieties, or more than two-thirds. The Central Powers issued 689, or less than one-fourth. Thus it may be seen that the neutrals have not been idle. At least 10 neutrals, including the Scandinavian and Holland and Switzerland, have been forced by the exigencies of war to issue adhesives—chiefly due to increased postal rates.

The appended table includes in its revenue column only stamps of this character issued in this country, as American collectors are not interested in foreign ones:

	Charity.	Military.	Occupation.	War Tax.	Commemorative.	Revenue.	Provisional.	Total.
United States and Associated Powers	351	23	810	219	..	186	685	2,274
Neutrals	24	..	...	...	..	...	170	194
Totals	489	42	1,046	219	12	186	1,163	3,157

Truly, the period of the world war has been the most interesting that stamp collecting has ever known.

An Expert's Study of Influenza - -

districts; moreover, a large proportion of the people who carry life insurance reside in cities and towns. In the matter of build there is an indication that stout people are more liable to a fatal termination than thin, there being more death claims in the case of men weighing above than below the average.

The practical utility of a study like this, dealing with a history of conditions now past, lies in the application of the knowledge we can thus acquire to our present life or to the problems of the future. It would appear as if the effects of the influenza had been more serious in America than they have been in Europe—at least if we can judge from the somewhat meager reports so far available. It may be, however, that the seriousness of the war in Europe has dwarfed a matter of this kind, which in normal times would have been made prominent. France, Spain, Germany, Great Britain and other European countries were afflicted during the summer months. Apparently the type of disease has been more virulent on this side of the Atlantic; pneumonia has been more common as a sequence, and there have been more fatalities.

We cannot be sure that the danger is past. We learn that influenza is now revisiting Europe and this time there are indications that it may be more objectionable than the milder form of midsummer. We should, therefore, take warning from this recurrence and observe watchful care to prevent further infection.

We are all interested in the health of our army, for all of us have relatives or friends in service, and epidemics to which soldiers are liable touch us closely. We have seen published articles extolling the unusual healthfulness of the camps. Health conditions have been better than in many previous camps, and improvement of this kind is to be highly commended. At the same time, the articles gave an impression that general conditions were excellent, and it is well to examine this subject from a dispassionate, scientific standpoint.

If you have an enemy, you must watch him, learn his tricks and strategems and match his treachery by your strength and fortitude. Nothing is gained by looking the other way and pretending he does not exist, or in pacifist fashion assuming that he is really and truly a warm friend! This road leads to disaster, yet it is the method often followed in giving news to the people. Epidemic disease is an enemy of humanity; the more it is publicly known, the better. Information should be given in such form that we can see not only the betterment of conditions, but may judge whether these conditions are the best attainable.

We should discuss not only the relative health of the soldiers as compared with former campaigns and commend those in charge for improved conditions; but we should also study the situation to see whether existing conditions approach the ideal. The young men have all been medically examined and re-examined since the army was organized and subsequent to the declaration of war in April, 1917. They are therefore of a similar class to young men examined and accepted for life insurance. It becomes desirable to compare deaths amongst young men in military life with those of young men in their homes and attending to their regular business. The new mortality experience enables us to do this through reports issued from the Surgeon-General's office in Washington dealing with the year ending Aug. 31, 1918. The annual military death rates within the United States were as follows:

	Camp Death Rates Per 1000
All troops (disease only)..................	6.4
Divisional Camps	6.6
Cantonments	7.3
Departmental and other troops............	5.2
Highest death rate in any one camp.......	19.2
Lowest death rate in any one camp........	1.7

How do these death rates compare with the first year's death rates of young men who have effected life insurance according to the experience during 1900-1915?

Such death rates are as follows:

	Civilian Death Rates Insured Lives Per 1000
20	2.7
25	2.9
35	3.2

If we view the death rate amongst insured lives during the first year as the ideal to which military camp experience may closely approach, it is clear that the rate during the year ending Aug. 31, 1918, cannot be described as favorable, notwithstanding the fact that it may be immensely better than any army camps in South Africa during the Boer War or in this country during the Spanish American War. Since the average age is doubtless under 30, it would appear as if the camp death rate were double the rate amongst healthy civilians. Moreover, while seven or eight camps even surpassed what I have called the ideal, thus proving that it is not unattainable, this fact merely casts a deeper shadow upon those which fell so far behind.

From another part of the report we find that the epidemic diseases, pneumonia and meningitis, were responsible for many of the excessive deaths. Indeed, pneumonia accounted for approximately two-thirds of the total death rate from disease in the year prior to Aug. 31.

Coming now to the effect of influenza on our troops, the weekly reports issued from the office of the Surgeon-General did not mention influenza until the week ending Sept. 27. Presumably, therefore, it was of no consequence at all prior to September. The cases reported were as follows:

	Military Camps Cases of Influenza
During the week ending Sept. 27...........	37,943
During the week ending Oct. 4............	88,479
During the week ending Oct. 11...........	90,393
During the week ending Oct. 18...........	43,799
During the week ending Oct. 25...........	19,966
During the week ending Nov. 1............	18,175
During the week ending Nov. 8............	6,887
During the week ending Nov. 15...........	4,485

	Deaths
During the week ending Sept. 6............	95
During the week ending Sept. 13...........	108
During the week ending Sept. 20...........	170
During the week ending Sept. 27...........	1040
During the week ending Oct. 4............	2537
During the week ending Oct. 11...........	6266
During the week ending Oct. 18...........	5669
During the week ending Oct. 25...........	2757
During the week ending Nov 1............	1272
During the week ending Nov. 8............	1032
During the week ending Nov. 15...........	603
Total for last eight weeks.............	21,140

If we assume that the normal death rate, apart from influenza and any resulting complications, was as high as 124, the average of three weeks ending Sept. 20, we should deduct 992 from the eight weeks' deaths ending Nov. 15; we then find that the deaths during those eight weeks from influenza and its complications were in excess of 20,000.

FULL DRESS AT REGAN'S

By HUGH PENDEXTER

SIME BANE, camp boss for Regan back of Puzzle Mountain, cocked his shaggy head and critically surveyed his work. As an amateur taxidermist he often showed his skill in mounting small forms of wild life, and just now was at work on a Canada jay. The loggers stood round him, gravely watching his big fingers deftly arrange a wing in lifelike pose. Bingo, recently drifted in and of no account, burst forth into garrulous praise.

Bane could welcome homage from the regular crew, but detected sycophancy in Bingo's lavish admiration, and roughly ordered: "Keep shet, or I'll break yer jaw. In the morning ye dig out and nail them reward bills between here and the north line."

The loggers grinned approval. It was a job on which Bingo could not "soldier." The deep snow and intense cold would keep him moving, and if he slighted his task his negligence would be quickly discovered. The "reward" bills had been recently received from old man Regan, owner of all the timber in Siscohos Township, and would be about as resultful, the loggers maintained, as so many orange trees in the Arctic Circle. But Regan was supreme and it was for camp bosses to do as directed, without questioning his wishes. Ever since Canwell, for many years scaler for Regan, was found killed on the trail, Regan had neglected no efforts to find the assassin. But to placard the standing timber of Siscohos with an offer of $1000 for the capture of the murderer struck the loggers as being absurd. If ever Regan found his man it would be among the city dives, where he must have made for once he had the scaler's wages in his pockets. However, it was just and meet that Bingo, shirker, known in the ironic argot of the woods as "camp inspector," should be assigned to the senseless task.

"Shet up, ye scum!" roared Bane, "or I'll turn ye loose without any snowshoes. Ye stick them bills a mile apart till ye strike the north line. Git yer breakfast with the teamsters so's to start early. If I don't find the 10 bills in place when I cruise that trail in a few days there'll be one less loafer in this neck of the woods."

Bingo cowed and fell back and Bane returned to his work, scowling blackly. The jay was difficult to mount in a satisfactory position. The boss, despite his huge bulk and rough ways, possessed something of the artistic temperament in his makeup, and grunted and swore into his pipe as he patiently repeated his efforts to pose the bird. The regulars were too wise to irritate him when he was thus absorbed. Bingo was fortunate to have escaped the bronzed knuckles.

At the crucial moment when Bane was delicately adjusting the stubborn wing for the tenth time, a man entered the bunkhouse, stood his snowshoes in the corner and approached the group by the big stove. Being a stranger, he was closely scrutinized by all except the boss, who had eyes for nothing beyond his work. The stranger put a low question to Lafond, veteran teamster, who grinned and pointed his pipe at the bowed figure.

The newcomer advanced and touched Bane's elbow, just as the hand was gently pulling a thread which would effect the desired result, and began. "I'm the new"——

With a howl of rage Bane leaped to his feet, his heavy fist catching the man on the side of his head and sending him flying through the circle, and his deep voice roared: "I'll larn ye to interrupt a funeral!"

The stranger brought up against the low door and came to his feet with much elasticity. He rushed back, his yellow eyes blazing with fury. With a deep intake of breath the loggers gave room, joyously welcoming this break in the long evening's monotony. The stranger was some 40 pounds lighter than Bane, but was not lacking in skill to supplement his courage. At the first clash he glided under Bane's iron arm and sent him reeling with a clout in the neck. Something besides skill and pretty footwork is necessary, however, when one goes to battle back of Puzzle; and now the boss was set for the fray, his wide mouth stretched in a ferocious grin. Light as a cat, he came back to meet his man, and this time rough and tumble tactics took all the honor. The stranger exclaimed in pain as Bane's moccasin smashed against his kneecap. As he staggered back the clawing fingers raised a red ridge across his forehead, narrowly missing his eyes. The next moment he was smothered and overcome and hurled senseless to the rough floor by an onslaught made up of all the foul and unfair tactics the lumberjack is capable of.

It was fully a minute before the defeated man came to his senses and managed to struggle to a sitting posture. His first move was to tenderly examine his eyes. "I most had 'em," rumbled Bane. "Next time I'll git 'em clean—damn ye!"

"As I was about to remark, I'm the new scaler," faintly informed the stranger. "My name is Black"——

"Yer name'll be mud if ever ye bust in again on me when I'm busy," Bane harshly cut in. "D'ye git that?"

"Yer camp is the shack beyond the cookhouse," growled Bane, the edge now taken off his temper. "We're breaking out new landing half a mile up the lake. On yer table ye'll find the tally sheets of the man who had the job last." With this he returned to his work and the scaler limped to the deacon seat and carefully inserted a pipe between his puffed lips.

"He's touchy when anyone butts in," chuckled Lafond. "One of the men, called Bingo, nearly got his just 'fore you come. The way you started made me believe you'd last longer'n you did." The last tinged with regret.

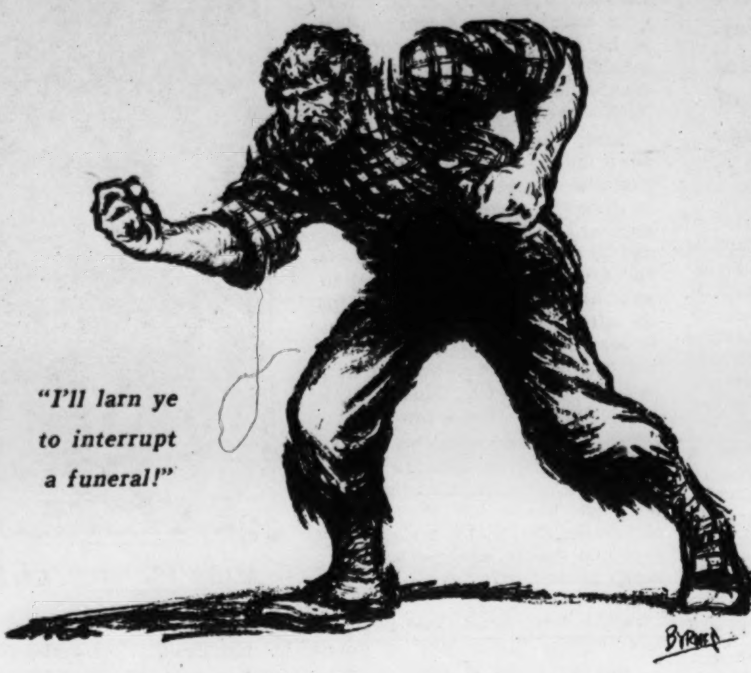
"My terminal facilities were lacking," groaned the scaler. "I'm always a good starter."

This was the new scaler's introduction to Regan's, back of Puzzle Mountain. By degrees it became known he had been brought up in the woods, but had spent several years in the city office. For some reason Regan had shifted him back to where he had started in life.

Bane seemed to resent the fact he had lived in town, although after that first night he treated him civilly enough. Truth is, scalers are not to be knocked about with the same promiscuous carelessness a boss may practice on a simple logger. A knowledge of figures gives a man dignity in the North woods, as evidenced by the scaler occupying his own shack. Again, Bane knew that should the scaler report the matter to the city office there might be trouble. There was only one person in the world whom Bane feared—old Regan. As the boss smoked his pipe one evening, and moodily watched the scaler making friends with the men, even giving a cheery word to the good-for-nothing Bingo, he pictured Regan's wrath should he learn how his special representative, independent of all camp bosses, had been welcomed.

But as the scaler made no reference to the subject and seemed fully occupied with his duties, the boss took to speaking to him a bit after the supper hour. Usually his remarks consisted of slighting comment on city life and an implied contempt for those who took to it as a preference. Yet his tenacity in reviving the subject was curious.

"Oh, the town ain't so bad," lightly replied the scaler. "It has its advantages, especially in the evening, after the work is done. Still, it ain't a hardship to get back to the bush again."



"I'll larn ye to interrupt a funeral!"

"Back because ye and the old man couldn't work in double hitch, eh?" Bane insinuated.

"Why, as for that, we didn't always hold the same opinion. Yet I'm working for Regan. Guess he hasn't it in very deep for me."

"When ye send in yer report I s'pose ye'll tell about our fracas?" defiantly probed Bane.

"'Bit of fun,'" softly repeated Bane, darting a glance of admiration at the scaler. "Well, that's good! I see ye ain't a squealer. Mebbe I was too quick that night."

"You certainly was too quick for me," laughed the scaler. "I shouldn't have butted in."

"If anything gits me riled, it's to have someone joggle my elbow when I'm trying to mount one of them cussed moose birds," apologized Bane. "I've tried a dozen and ain't got one yet to suit me. If there's anything ye want to know jest come to me."

"And I won't be butting in?" chuckled the scaler. "Thanks. I'm curious right now. Why advertise up here for the man who shot Canwell? Strikes me as being funny."

Bane shrugged his shoulders and replied: "The old man's notion. He thought a heap of Canwell, I guess."

"Yes; they were boys together. Canwell never worked for anyone but him."

"Of course, it's foolish to look for the feller up here, but orders is orders," Bane completed.

"Yet Regan can't suspect any of the men here. All of them have worked steady for him," mused the scaler.

"All old hands—that is, except that tramp, Bingo," slowly corrected Bane, his eyes suddenly lighting. "He come here a stranger, in the middle of the season. He hates work and ain't no good, an out-and-out camp inspector. Yet he seems keen to stick along. A dozen times I've been on the p'int of telling him to go h'ist his turkey and blow."

"I see," muttered the scaler, puffing his pipe thoughtfully. He seemed to be nursing a thought he was unwilling to share, and Bane shrewdly guessed its nature. An old woodsman had been killed on the trail. A stranger, detesting work, had sought a job in midseason. Bane glanced up the room at Bingo, who, disconsolate on the edge of his bunk, was trying to play solitaire with half a pack of cards, and remarked:

"Funny about that feller. No one knows where he came from. Don't even know his real name. The boys tagged him Bingo and it stuck. He's mighty close-mouthed. Knows jest enough about the work to earn his board, if ye keep prodding him up."

"Er-hugh?" mumbled the scaler absent-mindedly.

"Oh, I've boxed a little," deprecated the scaler.

"It's all right for play, but in real milling one has to fight all over," continued Bane in what, for him, was a genial mood.

"I'm beginning to suspect as much," the scaler grinned.

Bane chuckled in high good nature, and digressed: "About this city life. I ain't seen any of it except what I caught in front of the saloons on the water front when the drive was passing through. I guess we didn't see many mackinaws in perlite society down there, eh?"

"Very few," smiled the scaler.

"And them pictures of dudes in swaller-tail coats and vests with open front, like my watch—did ye ever happen to wear any of them duds?" There was a curious note of eagerness in the query which consorted oddly with his usual derision of the city and its ways.

"Ye don't say," sighed Bane. Then laughed sheepishly, and said: "D'ye know, I've got a fool weak spot in my head. Ye'd never guess it. I've always had a sneaking hankering to try on one of them dod-rotted riggin's. Wonder how I'd look?"

"Swell," enthusiastically declared the scaler. "You've got a bully figure for any kind of clothes. You're as awkwardly placed. I shall have to proceed with caution and must be allowed to do so in the way that seems best to me. Since the cross is the property of Prince Xico it will be restored to him. In the meantime, of course, it remains in my keeping."

"But certainly," said Szemere. "It is most valuable, however, and I take the liberty of imploring you to have great care of it."

"If I may suggest," Hugh remarked, "the Cosmopolis Bank keeps its vaults open all night for women who want to return their jewels after wearing them. You might take the cross there if you want to get it out of your hands."

"An excellent idea," said Gavock. "I'll go there at once."

He put the ornament in his pocket and carefully buttoned his coat over it.

"Good-night, Mr. Senior. Good-night, Guy. I hope the end of your troubles is near."

His cab waited at the curb and behind it stood Szemere's. The two men parted with brief farewells and were presently on their way to their respective destinations. Guy had remained behind.

Having stopped to leave the cross at the Cosmopolis Bank, Gavock was somewhat delayed and found Miss Lowther anxiously awaiting his return. In the face of her disappointment at his failure to bring the pendant, however, he was glad that so little time was given her to bewail the fact. He felt enough like a brute and a double-dealer as it was.

"You must give me that name and address now," he reminded her, and reluctantly she did so.

"The name is Dr. Jules Aubert, and the address 80 East Fifty-fourth street."

"I'll write that down," said Gavock. "Will you spell it? Ah, yes, thank you—a French name."

"Yes, he is French."

"Come now—we must hurry."

She caught her train to Chicago by a narrow margin and as he watched it pull out of the station Gavock fervently hoped he had seen the last of her. In accordance with his plan he immediately dashed down to the Pennsylvania station and, hurrying to the gate for the Chicago train, inquired for the manager of the theatrical company that was aboard. Miss Lowther had said he would probably be waiting near the gate to see that all his charges went through.

His question of the gate keeper was answered at once by a fat man standing near.

"I'm him—what do you want?"

"A member of your company, Miss Lowther"——

"Lowther!" The manager grabbed his arm eagerly. "Know anything about her?"

Gavock opened his mouth to reply, but at the moment he felt someone brush up from behind him and wheeling he met the black eyes of the stranger with the Van Dyke beard whom he had encountered that afternoon at his hotel. So that was Dr. Aubert! Caution was in order.

"I wanted to say good-by to her. Is she on the train?" he substituted for the words he had meant to speak.

With a grunt of disappointment the manager dropped the arm he had seized.

"No, she ain't, but she ought to be. I've got nervous prostration standing here waiting for her. No more society dames for mine. Never again!"

Gavock listened to the disgorging of rage and disgust; but Dr. Aubert, who had doubtless heard it before, walked off. Looking after him, Gavock was again struck by the curiously free movements of his lithe body.

"One minute more," warned the gateman, and Gavock seized the chance to deliver Miss Lowther's message.

"Why in h—— couldn't you say so before?" demanded the theatrical man.

"Too many listening," said Gavock, with a glance toward Aubert, who was again approaching.

"Oh—I see!"

"What does he see, I wonder?" thought Gavock as the gate clanged shut and he was left alone.

CHAPTER XXI.

WITH the departure of Gavock and Count Szemere from Hugh Senior's house, an awkward silence fell on the two men left together in the library. The same thought was in the mind of each, but both found it hard to utter. The disappearance of Marie had not been mentioned during the interview just closed, not so much from any intention of concealing it from Gavock, as because Szemere, the cross within reach, had not broached the subject. His goal sighted, his interest in the girl had ceased. He no longer needed her.

Finally Guy broke the pause. "Has she come back?"

"No."

"It's nearly 10 o'clock; it's been five hours."

"Yes."

Hugh rose as he spoke and crossed to the fireplace. "Sit down here, won't you. I want to talk to you. I don't know where she went or why, but I know she will come back," he said. "When she does—what then?"

Amarinth said nothing.

"It will be up to you, you know. With Szemere eliminated, the question becomes a personal one between you and her. You are married, but under the circumstances it won't be hard for you to regain your freedom, if that is what you want."

"You mean an annulment?"

"So you've thought of it already?"

"Can you blame me?"

A log, burnt through, fell from the irons, sending out a spray of sparks. Amarinth shoved his chair back to avoid them, while Hugh caught up the tongs and replaced the fallen ends upon the irons. The noise of their own movements prevented the two men from hearing the step which at that moment sounded in the hall.

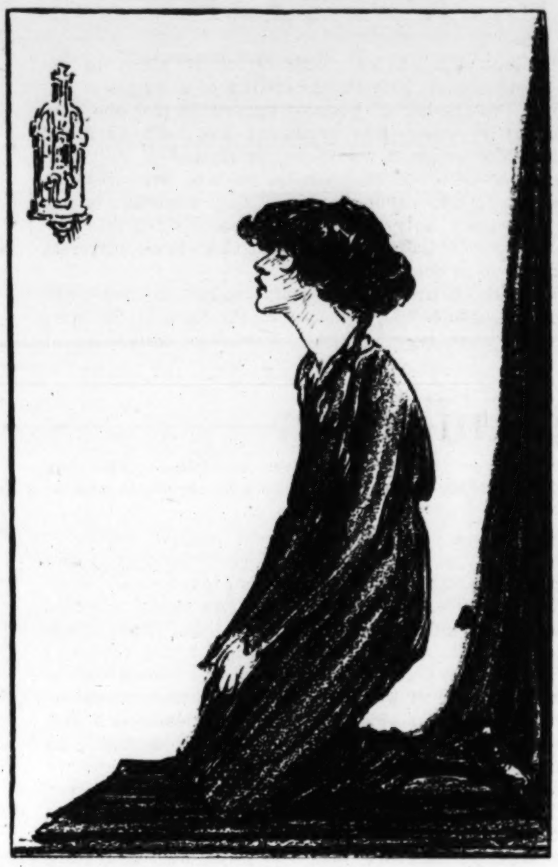
Marie Dupont appeared in the doorway. Her figure drooped wearily and her eyes, dark-rimmed and half-closed, gave to her face an expression of utter exhaustion.

"I don't see how you can blame me," Guy declared as his companion dropped back to his seat. "No man would want—such a woman for his wife."

"Then you are satisfied that Marie is this Alix Floria?"

"How can I doubt it? God knows I would if I could. But what doubt is there?"

"There is the girl herself," Hugh returned quietly.



Miss Niklova knelt in a corner and prayed to an image.

"As I know her and as you know her, she is all a man could wish a woman to be, isn't she?"

"Yes; but lots of women have deceived men that way. How can you know what she was or was not before you knew her?"

The girl in the door stood now as if made of stone.

"It isn't possible—it isn't possible!" Hugh went on. "No woman could so completely change her nature."

"Oh, what's the good of generalizing?" Guy demanded, with a tinge of irritation in his voice. "The facts are there. You can't get away from them—at least, I can't. Gavock recognized her, so did Szemere. There's the exact agreement in dates, there's the necklace and the coat. And there's her dancing—don't forget that! Besides, where is she now? Why did she go away, if not to avoid Szemere?"

"Perhaps to avoid you."

"Me?"

"You came here, her husband, and you didn't speak to her, nor touch her hand, nor even look at her except with suspicion. I know. I watched you. What must she have thought or felt?"

"I did look at her and she wouldn't meet my eyes. She was afraid. She had deceived me. She had no right to marry me, knowing what she did about herself."

"Knowing! I tell you she knew nothing but what I know, not as much. Her mind is a blank as far as her past life is concerned. If there was ever in her mind the memory of any shameful thing, the loss of memory left her mind clean of it."

"Did it leave her body clean?"

"Amarinth, you're a"——

He bit back the word on his tongue and curbed his fury. "Don't you love her at all?" he asked after a moment.

"No!" Guy retorted sharply. "I may be whatever you were going to call me, but I can't love a woman I don't respect."

Their hostile eyes clung together. In the stillness the clock on the mantel ticked loudly. The girl had not moved.

"It's going to be hard for her," Hugh said at last. "She loves you. Try to remember that. Whatever you decide to do, remember that and spare her as much as"——

"Hugh, stop!"

The cry came from the door. Both men wheeled.

"Don't humble yourself or me to him!"

"Marie!" Hugh crossed to her. "Where have you been?"

"I'll tell you when he's gone," she answered. "It doesn't concern him, where I have been. Nothing I have ever done concerns him."

She paused and took a step toward Amarinth.

"I've heard all that you said about me, and I'm glad I heard it. Perhaps I am what you believe—I don't know. But whatever I am now or have ever been in the past, however notorious or vile, I still have one thing to thank God for. I am not your wife!"

Guy's head shot out with a startled stare. "What do you mean?" he muttered.

"I mean that our marriage last night was not legal."

"Not legal?"

"I was already married. My husband has just died—in my arms."

On the final words she swayed and would have fallen, if Hugh had not caught her.

"Ask him to go! Please ask him to go!" she begged.

Guy did not move. "I don't understand," he said. "What does she mean? Is that true?"

"What does it matter to you as long as you're free? Please, please, go away."

She was trembling and her breath came in gasps. Hugh waved Guy to the door. "You'd better go, I think," he said.

But Guy remained there, irresolute, until, reaching a decision, he started for the door.

"Wait! I have something of yours!" she arrested him suddenly.

He turned back to her. She drew away from Hugh's supporting arms and ripping her gloves off, unbuttoned her coat and let it slip into his hands. Then she felt within her dress and brought out a ribbon on which were strung the rings Amarinth had given her the night before. With trembling fingers she untied the loop that held it secure about her neck and drawing off the rings laid them on the table between them. Then leaning forward she pushed them across to him.

"Take them, please."

He made no move to pick them up, but looked at Hugh.

"I want to speak to her alone," he said.

"No, no! I've nothing to say to you."

"You owe me some sort of explanation!"

"There's nothing to explain. There are your rings. Please go."

"Very well, then, I will," Guy declared shortly. He snatched the rings up and without another word turned and left the house.

The outer door slammed loudly behind him and at the sound the girl recoiled as if she had been struck. Hugh led her to a chair by the fire.

"You are cold. Your hands are like ice," he said.

"I'm so tired," she moaned. "I walked and walked. I thought I should never get here. You see, it was this way"——

"Wait. Don't talk yet. Just rest here until you feel better."

Suddenly, with a start, she sat up.

"How is Aunt Alicia?"

"All right. She's asleep. She doesn't even know you've been away."

"I was so afraid she would worry about me. I wanted to phone, but I had no money."

She shivered and held her hands out to the warmth of the fire. On his knees beside her Hugh took her hands in his and chaffed them vigorously.

"When I left the house this afternoon I meant to be gone only five or 10 minutes. I felt that I must get out where I could breathe. It was as you thought, as you told him just now. It was his coming here and not speaking to me, hardly looking at me—I didn't know what that could mean. All day I had waited for word from him. Of course, I knew you didn't know how serious the matter was to me, that we were married. That troubled me, too. I wanted to tell you last night, but I had promised him"——

Bane studied him stealthily and, not detecting any sarcasm, resumed: "Queer stuff for us to be talking about up here, a hundred miles from nowhere, with the snow five foot on the level and the weather 15 below zero."

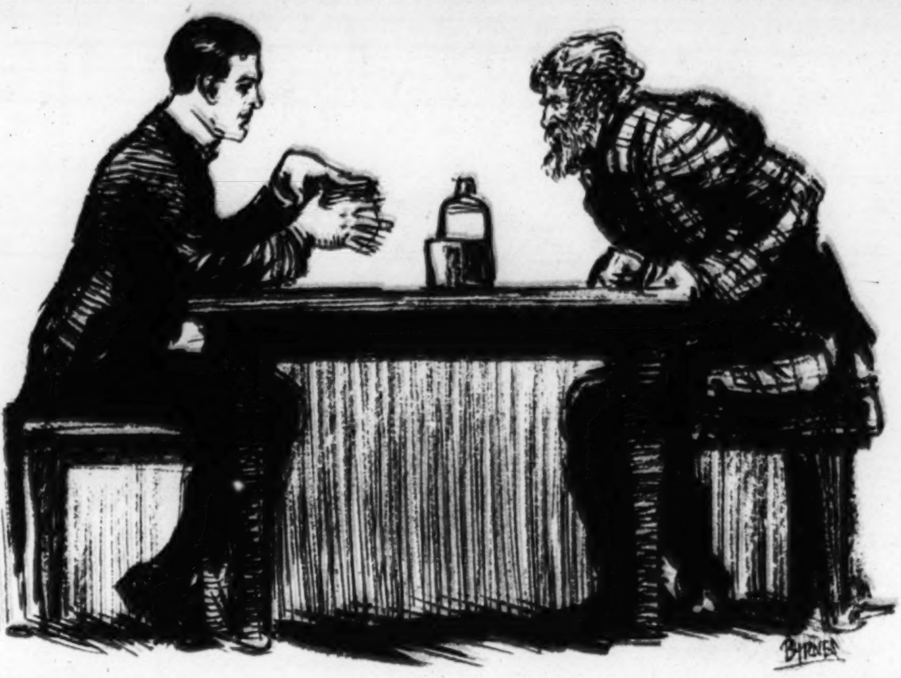
"No queerer than for city folks to dream and talk about the woods and roughing it," the scaler earnestly reminded him.

Bane shook his huge frame as though striving to abandon the line of thought, and lamented: "Well, it can't never be, as I ain't got the eddication to back up the duds. But if anyone let on that I'm satisfied with this dog's life in the bush, tell 'em for me they're liars, and I'll back it up quite proper." With this unexpected avowal he rose, knocked the heel from his pipe and passed out.

As the evening chats between the boss and the scaler became a part of the bunkhouse program, their places on the deacon seat were left open for them, with the men withdrawing a bit to give them privacy. More and more frequently during their conversations did Bane revert to city life, displaying an avidity to learn about it, his eagerness at times being almost pitiable. This hungering for urban fleshpots impressed the scaler as being an abnormal mental growth, yet he catered to it. As an exponent of the outdoors, magnificent in stature and built to fight life in the open, Bane's earnestness in dwelling on the inanities of town society often sounded sacrilegious. Each night, as the scaler listened to the revelations of the bearded lips, he found additional food for thought. Thus the two talked of the town more thoroughly to the exclusion of all other topics as the boss threw down his reserve and betrayed more and more fully his hopeless ambition.

"If I had a wad I'd go to town and live," he declared one stormy night. The scaler, as was his wont, nodded sympathetically, but made no comment. After a pause Bane continued: "A single man oughter git along—like a gentleman—for quite a few years on, say, ten thousand?"

"That would depend on how fast he spent it," the scaler gravely replied.



Clutching the edge of the table till the knuckles showed white, he hoarsely whispered: "Jest what might ye mean by that?"

Further confidences were precluded as Bingo, passing to the door, stumbled over a chopper's foot and fell headlong across Bane's knees. With an infuriated roar the boss rose to his feet, clutching the man by shoulder and thigh, and with his wonderful strength, raised him above his head and stepped toward the red-hot stove as though to hurl him against it. The scaler dropped the stick he had been aimlessly whittling and sprang before the boss, saying:

"Are you mad? Lower him to the floor."

"Out of my way or I'll smear ye!" bellowed the boss.

"Let him down—easy," commanded the scaler, presenting the point of his long knife against the taut chest muscles.

Bane growled impotently, felt the steel pricking his skin, and allowed his victim to drop to the floor. Then, springing back, he savagely yelled: "Damn ye! Ye'd knife me same as Canwell was knifed! Drop that knife and I'll"——

"Don't lose your head and act the fool," crisply warned the scaler. "I've stopped you from killing a man on a hot stove and from going to prison for life."

Bane glared round the circle of exalted faces and realized his fiendish temper had carried him too far. "I wasn't going to hurt him," he sullenly defended. "Jest scaring him a bit."

"Then I had no business to interfere, and let's forget all about it," pleasantly urged the scaler. "Sit down and we'll begin where that idiot interrupted the talk."

But Bane was in no mood for further conversation, and with a murderous glance at the cringing Bingo hurried forth into the storm.

This incident disturbed the harmony between the boss and the scaler for two nights, although they spoke in passing. On the third night the scaler handed a haberdashery magazine to Bane, who hesitated, then sulkily accepted it, fascinated by a picture of men in correct evening dress enjoying elegant leisure.

"Thought you might want to get acquainted with this kind of clothes before going to town," carelessly ventured the scaler. "There's a form chart which shows just what a man in society should wear at different periods of the day. If you follow that you can't go wrong."

"Them's the thing," murmured Bane, his deep voice sinking to a reverential whisper as he stared longingly at a group attired in evening clothes. "Ain't it some trick to git into a harness like that?"

The scaler placed his pipe aside and, clapping his hand on the boss' knee, whispered: "I'm going to tell you something. You may think me weak-minded, but I brought my evening clothes with me. No wonder you stare; but it was bring them or leave them in a boarding house to be lost or stolen. And they're in the bottom of my trunk right now. If you'd really like to see how they look"——

"On a man," choked the boss.

"If you'd really like to see how they look on me I'll go over and slip into them and you can follow in half an hour. Only, for the love of Mike, never let on to the men or they'd kid me to death."

"Great hemlock! You've had 'em all the time and I never knew. Say, it'll be great." And the boss rubbed his hands joyously. "To think of a full dress suit of clothes up here back of Puzzle! I guess it's the first outfit ever toted into Siscohos Township. I won't bleat a word, only hustle along. Are ye sure ye got all the fixings?" The last very anxiously.

"Even to the patent leathers," laughed the scaler, rising. "Give me half an hour to make the shift."

It was a fantastic spectacle, the rough room and its rude furniture and the scaler faultlessly attired in evening clothes. Outside the wind howled 40 miles an hour through the tops of 70-foot birches. For miles about the cold moon cast a pallid light over illimitable waste places.

The scaler gingerly advanced his feet toward the roaring fire, trying to dispel the chill of the shining shoes. Someone tapped on the door. He smiled grimly, drew on his white kids, rearranged a blanket over the bed, then demanded:

"Who is it?"

"Me—Bane."

Opening the door just sufficient for the boss to enter, the scaler stepped back before the fire and posed for inspection.

Bane gaped long and respectfully at the immaculate figure and, in unconscious homage, removed his red toque and finally blurted: "Ye look simply grand, Mister Black." No one in Siscohos ever before heard him "mister" anyone; even Regan, his employer, always being styled "the old man."

With a gesture the scaler invited the boss to be seated by the plank table, and quickly set before him a bottle and glasses; then stepped back and lighted a cigarette. Scarcely shifting his worshipful gaze, Bane fumbled for the bottle and poured himself a drink. Then loudly demanded: "On the level, would I look like that?"

"Sure. Only you'd make a better appearance, as you have a better figure," warmly assured the scaler, changing his pose.

"It beats the Dutch!" gurgled Bane, slapping his knee. Then meekly: "And ye've got on everything what goes to make up the outfit, Mister Black?"

"I am quite correctly attired," the scaler assured, stalking across the room and shrewdly measuring the boss' reverence. "Drink up. I'll give you a letter to my tailor and he'll supply you with everything. When do you go?"

With a jerk of his shaggy head, Bane pushed back his glass without drinking, and suspiciously answered: "I don't know. When I git the money."

A tap on the door brought an expression of annoyance to the scaler's face, and, touching his finger to his lips for silence, he opened it a crack. For a moment he listened to a muffled voice, then impatiently replied: "I'm busy, Bingo, with the boss. Some other time, when I'm not working."

"That d——d skunk comes here," wrathfully demanded Bane, his gaze bristling.

"He feels grateful for my saving him from the hot stove," chuckled the scaler, seating himself at a table and rapidly glancing over a thin package of papers. "Now, Bane, your heart's set on a fling at city life. Why don't you go now?"

"Matter of coin," muttered Bane, twisting uneasily.

With mouth agape, Bane stared into the stern face across the table for a count of 12. Then his eyes closed till they were mere slits, and, clutching the edge of the table till the knuckles showed white, he hoarsely whispered: "Jest what might ye mean by that?"

The scaler brought his heels back on either side of his stool and slowly replied: "I mean you have more than $10,000 this minute deposited in the First National Bank in town—$10,000 which you've stolen from Regan in the last three or four years by means of padding your payrolls."

Bane was stunned, and stared as if bereft of his senses. When the full import of the accusation seeped through his slow mind he gave a rumbling roar and started to rise, his eyes flashing murder. But before he could more than crook his knees the scaler's hand darted to his bosom and the next second found the boss gazing stupidly into the muzzle of a heavy automatic.

"Sit still!" warned the scaler gently. "I've got you right, Bane. While you've been attending this dress rehearsal your camp's been overhauled and these papers taken from your strong box." And he tapped his breast pocket.

"Damnation! The papers"—— He stopped and settled back from the table, his hands half raised, his fingers tensely set like claws.

"Don't!" warned the scaler, resting his elbow on the table and dropping the muzzle of the gun till it covered his broad chest. "I can change you into a sieve before you can count two. Now listen: Regan has suspected you for the last two years, but wanted to make sure, as you were an old employe. He sent a man to watch you. That man secured the data in these papers," and again he tapped his pocket. "That man wrote a letter, giving a summary of his discoveries, and announced the details would be brought out in person. The tote team brought the letter to the nearest settlement and Regan received it; but the papers failed to arrive, the inspector failed to arrive. Canwell was the man. He was murdered on the trail and the papers taken from his body. Just how you discovered he had spied upon you I don't know. But you did learn it and you followed him from Blackstrap camp and did for him and took the papers. Only you didn't know the crime was useless because of the letter which had come through. You see, Bane, the letter is his avenger. It announced he was bringing papers which would prove you guilty of extensive thieving. When his body was found, with no papers, we immediately suspected you must be guilty. Easy! Another move and you'll go out as Canwell did!"

"Ye devil! Ye slick devil!" Bane sobbed in impotent rage, his huge frame writhing and twisting.

"So we sent a detective here. He was sure you did for Canwell, but he needed help. And I was taken from the city office by Mr. Regan and sent here. One man had no chance to go through your camp and find the papers which would convict you, providing you had not destroyed them—and it will always be a mystery to me that you did not."

"A detective!" muttered Bane, his gaze ranging about the room as though beholding a ring of enemies. "A detective and I never got wise." With a sudden transition he shrieked: "Who's the hound? I'll kill him with my bare hands. Any papers found in my camp he planted there. It's a lie! I never stabbed Canwell."

With a low laugh of triumph the scaler advanced the pistol an inch and with the other hand pushed one of the reward bills across the table. "Read that," he commanded. 'One thousand dollars' reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE.

Guy Amarinth is secretly married to the beautiful and accomplished Marie Dupont, whose past is involved in a mystery to which Hugh Senior, her legal guardian, holds the only key. A vital clew is an antique necklace, from which has been stolen the pendant, a jeweled Greek cross. The necklace has been claimed by representatives of a Rumanian Prince, who was murdered in Paris seven years before. The cross turns up in the possession of Sibyl Lowther, a New York society dancer, who leaves it with Roger Gavock as security for a sum of money he has promised to lend her.

CHAPTER XVIII (Continued).

GAVOCK took the cross from his pocket. An idea flashed into his head. He brought the portrait of Alix Floria from his bedroom and studied it closely under the full light of the chandelier. No trace of painted jewels was visible through the overcoat of flesh tint. Yet, he noticed for the first time that the brush work of the neck and bosom was not as free and sure-handed as in the other parts of the canvas. Andrus must have done it later with his left hand. In that case the paint beneath must have been well dried.

Opening the telephone book he hunted up an art dealer whom he knew.

Two hours later the picture "restorer" had come and gone. His task had not been easy, but his work though slow had been successful; the necklace lay uncovered and suspended from it hung a cross.

Fortunately for Gavock's purpose the cross was painted with considerable minuteness of detail and it was possible to make out from the tiny points of red and green the arrangements of the stones.

Taking Miss Lowther's cross, he held it against the pictured one. In size and shape they were identical. The design, too, as nearly as he could determine, was the same—a huge diamond in the center and rubies and emeralds alternating to the four points. There was barely a chance that the ornament in his hand was the ancient cross sought by the Rumanian Government. He would now feel less like a fool at putting that chance to a test. At any rate he could not return the cross to Miss Lowther until he had done so.

This decision reached, he phoned Amarinth, found him at home, and announced his intention of calling on him at once. As he hung up the receiver the bell shrilled through the room.

CHAPTER XIX.

HE found her in the lounge behind the palms where hours before they had agreed to meet.

"I suppose you wondered what had become of me," she said at once. "You see, after you left me here I found that I had barely time to keep an appointment with a manager about a stage engagement. I had no idea it was so late. I hurried off, expecting to be back soon; but I was engaged and had to go to rehearsal at once, to replace someone who is ill. Since then I've been packing—I leave for Chicago tonight. One reason why I didn't come back here was that I don't, after all, need the money I was going to borrow. Before I leave town, though, I want to thank you and to get my pendant. You have it with you, haven't you?" She held out her hand.

The request took Gavock by surprise. Before he had consciously decided how to deal with it, he heard himself telling her that he did not have the cross with him, that it was at his bank.

"But I must have it! I'm going away! Surely there's some way of getting it," she urged.

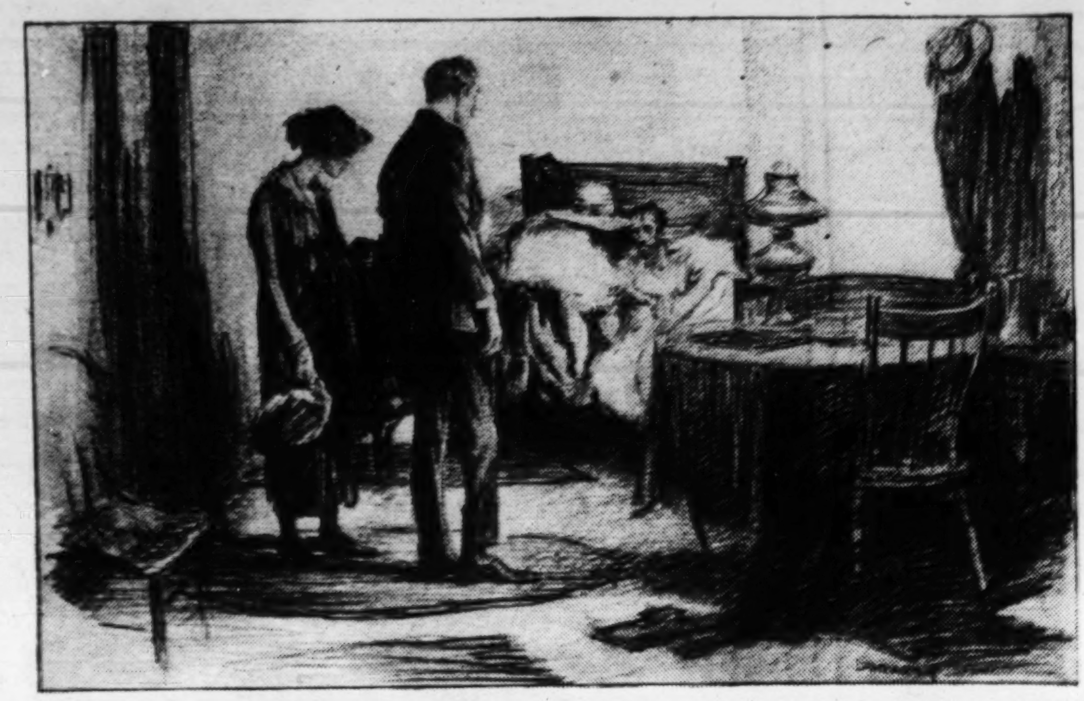
"My dear young lady, sit down and let's talk it over sensibly."

A plan occurred to him.

"It's not yours, you say?"

"Surely you suspected that! Why, I didn't even know it was real until you told me! That's my only excuse for taking it. Yes, I took it—stole it. I'm a thief! But it was that or—something worse. Oh, you don't know what it's been to drag along here, pretending and scheming. You don't dream how hard rich women are and how inhuman. And the men"—— She broke off, shuddering, and turned her eyes away. "Lately things have been going all wrong with me. I couldn't make any money dancing as an amateur, so I decided to go on the stage. But I could get nothing to do. I had no money—I didn't know where to turn. Then—I remembered the cross."

"Remembered it?"



"I—put my arm about his neck and—kissed him. Then his head fell back—he was dead."

"Yes; I'd seen it once; he'd shown it to me and I had happened to see in a mirror where he put it afterward. Well, I went to his house at an hour when I was sure he would be out and said I'd wait—he's a doctor, you see—and when the servant was gone I got the cross. I meant to pawn it for what I could get. But somehow, after I had it, I got frightened. I remembered reading about pawnbrokers identifying people who had pawned stolen things. All day I carried it about and that night I met you. I knew I could trust you and that the cross would be safe with you. It wasn't until you told me that I had any idea of its value."

"And he knows now that you took it?"

"Yes, he found it out late this afternoon. He accused me and I admitted it. I said I would get it back tonight. He said it was enormously valuable, that to lose it would ruin him. He talked so wildly that I thought he had been drinking. He even took down the phone to call the police. He says he will have me arrested if I don't get it back tonight."

"Why not tell him the truth? Tell him he can have it back tomorrow."

"He wouldn't let me leave town unless he had it. He says so. And I must go tonight."

"Then let me tell him for you."

"No, no—he doesn't know you have it. He doesn't know where I am now. I was afraid he'd follow and make a scene. He can be terrible when he's angry. I thought for a moment he was going to kill me! He was wild! I escaped from him by a trick and hurried here; but he knows I am going to Chicago tonight. I promised to meet him at the station and give him the cross."

Gavock sprang up. "Wait. I have an idea."

He hurried away, but was back in a few minutes with several railroad time-tables. "There are two trains for Chicago tonight," he said, resuming his place at her side. "Which station do you leave from?"

"Pennsylvania, at 10:15."

"Good! There's one at 10 from Grand Central. Now this is my plan. It is 8:30. I have thought of a way by which I may be able to get the pendant for you tonight, before you go"——

"Wait. It's only a chance; don't bank on it," he cautioned. "You'll have to wait here for me. I shall return in time to take you to the train, whether I bring the pendant or not. If I do bring it, your troubles will be over, won't they?"

"Yes, oh, yes!"

"If I do not bring it, this is my scheme. I shall take you to the Grand Central and get you a ticket for Chicago on the 10 o'clock train. Then I'll hurry over to the Pennsylvania and tell your manager that—well, that some friends are taking you over the other road in their private car. That will satisfy him and by the time you reach Chicago tomorrow the pendant will have been returned to the owner. How does that strike you?"

"I can't think of anything better," she admitted. "But you don't intend to give him the pendant yourself? Please don't. Just send it back without a word to let him know where it comes from."

"Certainly, if you prefer it. But you must give me the name and address."

She hesitated, then said: "I'll give them to you later—if you don't bring it back tonight. If you do, you won't have to know, you see, and—I'd rather you didn't."

"As you like, of course. But come. You can't wait here. I will arrange for a room for you and you can have an hour's rest."

"Rest!"

"You'll be alone and quiet at least. And you can depend on me. I shall return in time to take you to the station."

A few minutes later he saw the elevator start that was to bear her up to her room. Then he jumped into a taxicab for Amarinth's place.

CHAPTER XX.

THREE-QUARTERS of an hour later Gavock closed the interview he had sought with Count Szemere. It had taken place in Hugh Senior's library in the presence of Hugh and Amarinth. Before showing the pendant Gavock had exacted from Szemere a description of the one missing from the necklace, and the readiness with which the Rumanian supplied this was proof enough of his good faith. And his description had been so accurate, including irregularities in the cutting of certain stones—details Gavock had not noticed, but now found on examination to be facts—that no doubt as to the identification was possible.

The cross lay on the table about which the four men were seated. Gavock was speaking.

"I understand, then, Count, that with the recovery of the necklace and the pendant, all interest in the affairs of Miss Dupont on the part of you or your Government will instantly cease?"

"Perfectly. Prince Lascar is dead. To know how or why he died will not bring him to life again. Tomorrow," continued Szemere, "I shall take measures to establish the claims of Prince Xico to the jewels. I shall communicate with you as soon as I am prepared to do so."

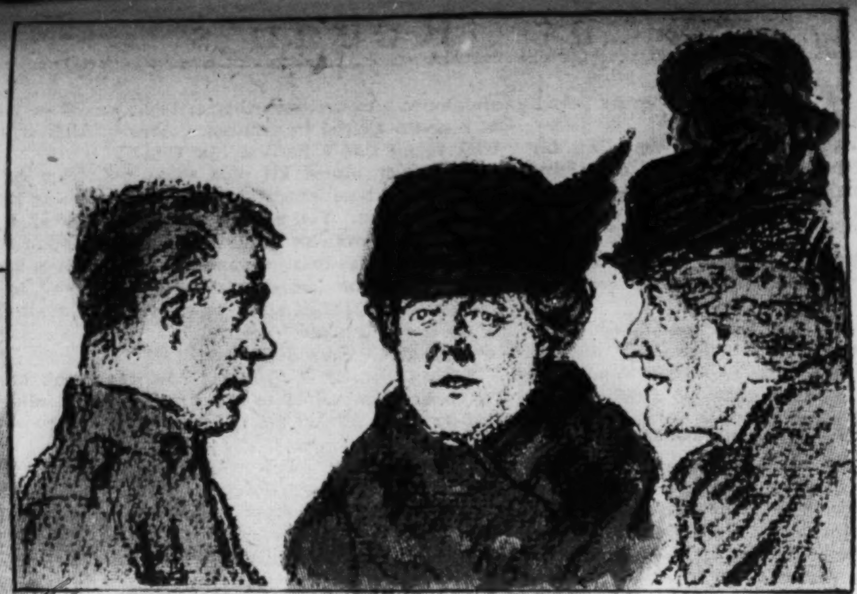
"I trust you quite understand my position in this affair," Gavock said. "The person through whom the cross came into my hands does not claim to own it and is, I am convinced, ignorant of its history. The name of this person must remain my secret. That condition you have already accepted."

"Perfectly."

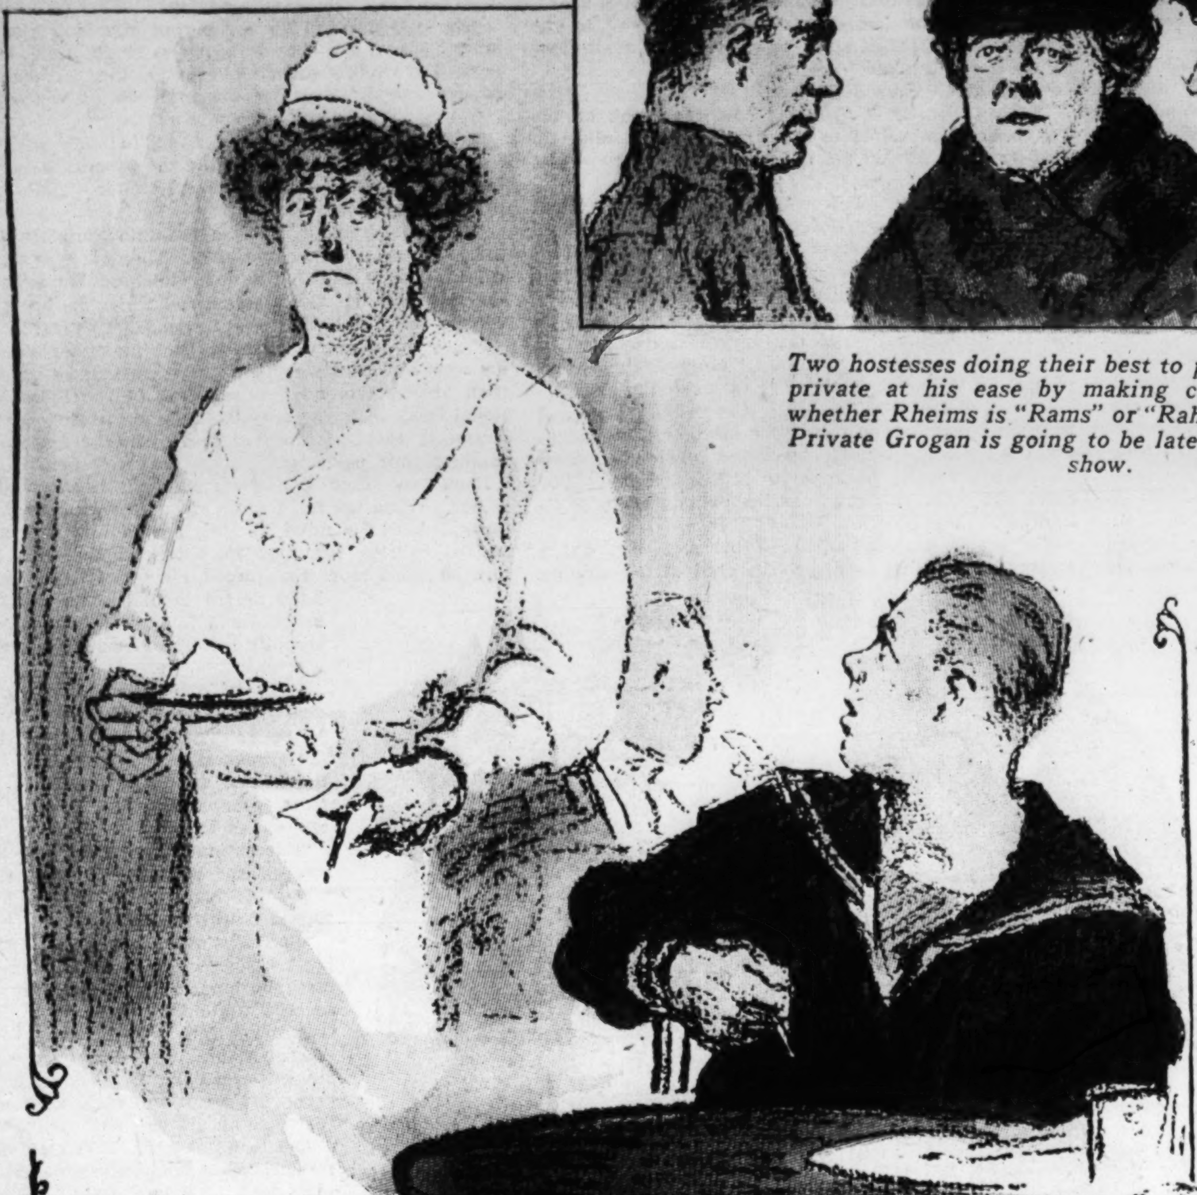
"There is, however, a person who does claim ownership, and what the attitude of this person will be I am not in a position to say. I confess that I find myself

THE SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' CLUB

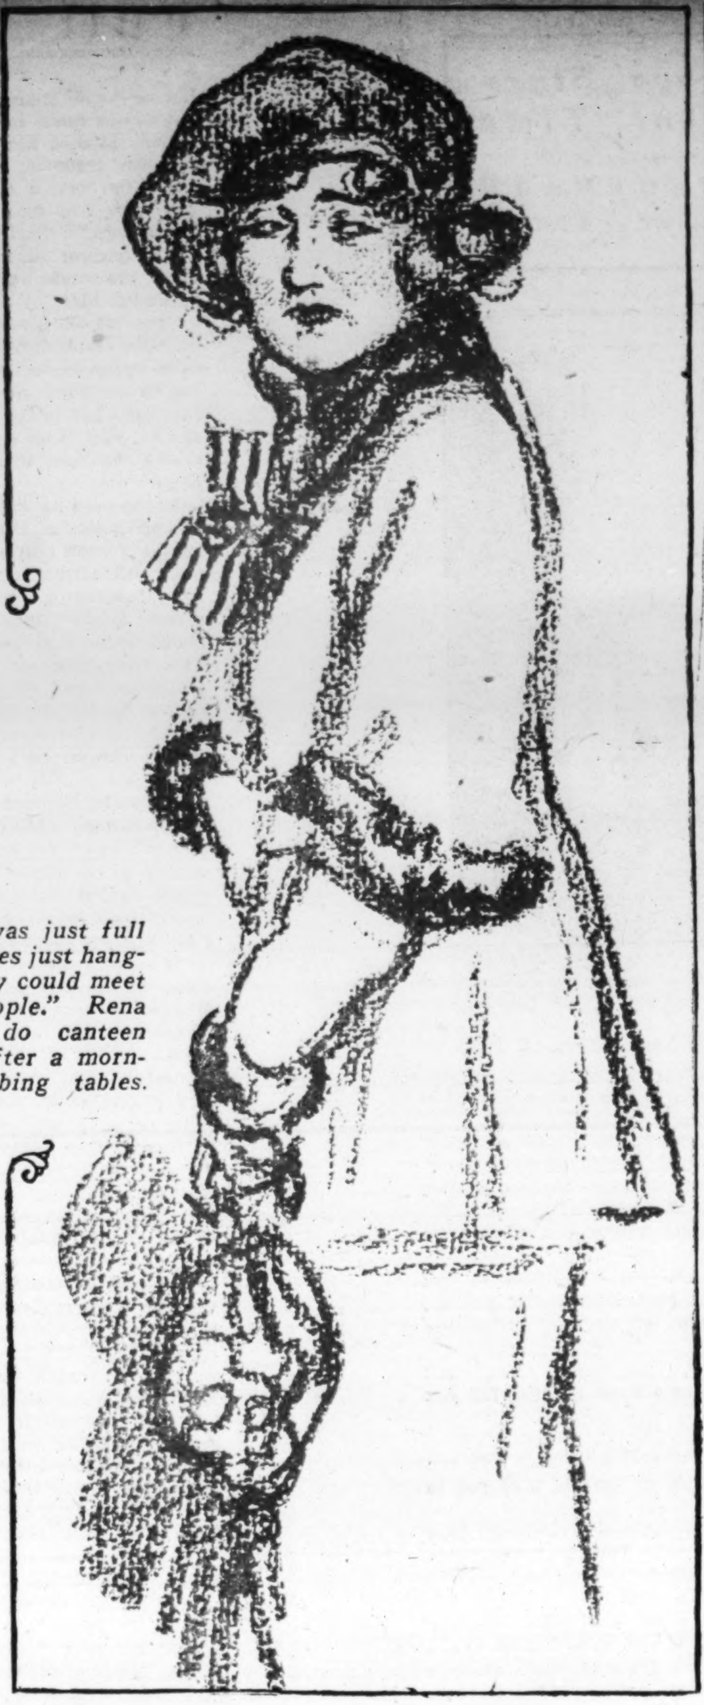
Character Sketches by W. E. HILL



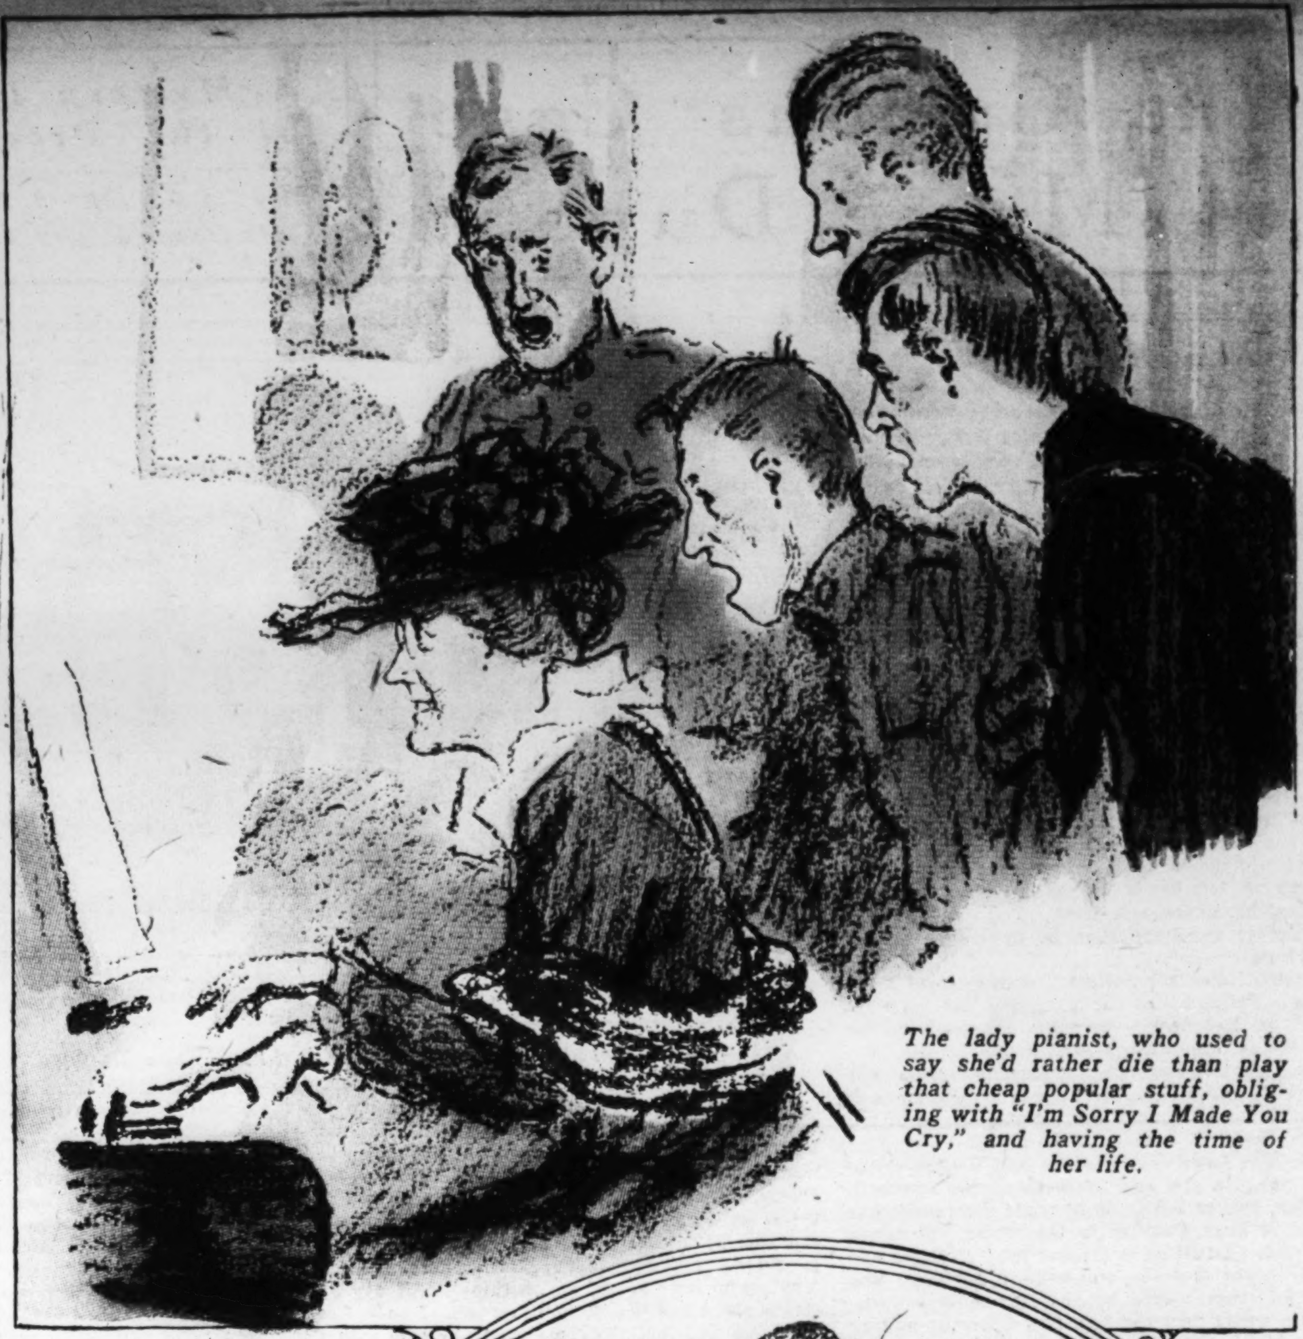
Two hostesses doing their best to put a bashful buck private at his ease by making conversation as to whether Rheims is "Rams" or "Rahms." Incidentally, Private Grogan is going to be late for the burlesque show.



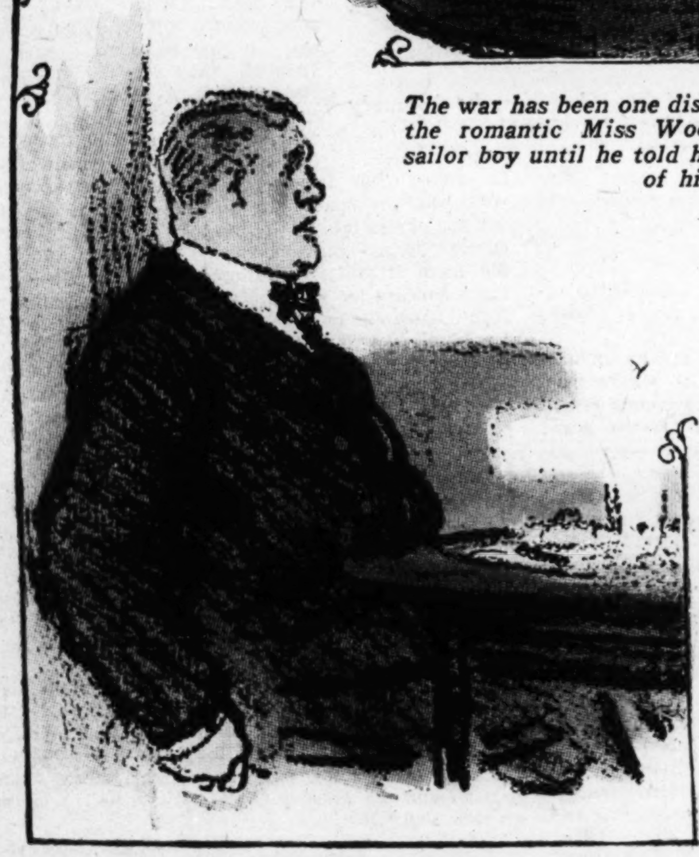
The war has been one disillusionment after another fo the romantic Miss Woodey. He was such a ni sailor boy until he told her she reminded him so mu of his mother.



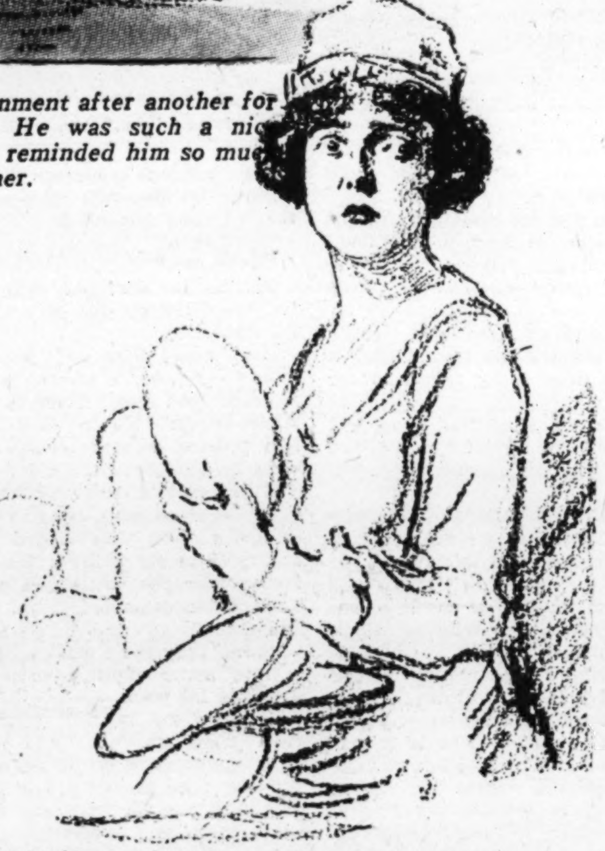
"Gee, the place was just full of old society dames just hanging around so they could meet a lot of new people." Rena volunteered to do canteen work, but quit after a morning spent scrubbing tables.



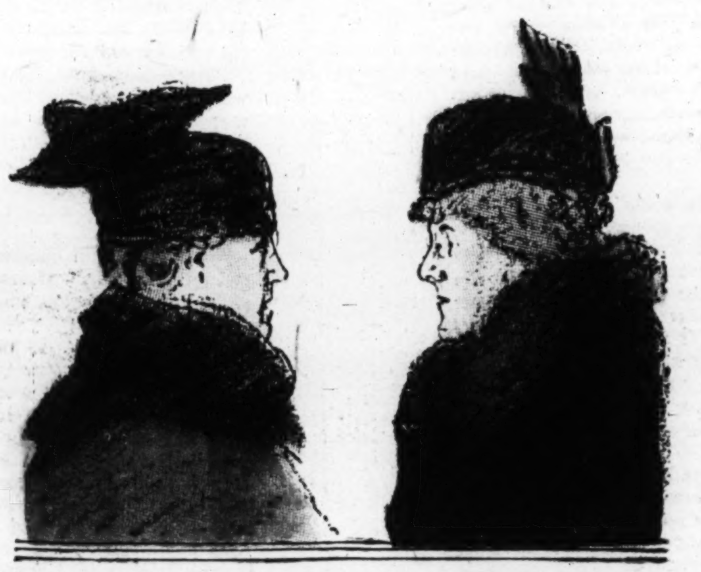
The lady pianist, who used to say she'd rather die than play that cheap popular stuff, obliging with "I'm Sorry I Made You Cry," and having the time of her life.



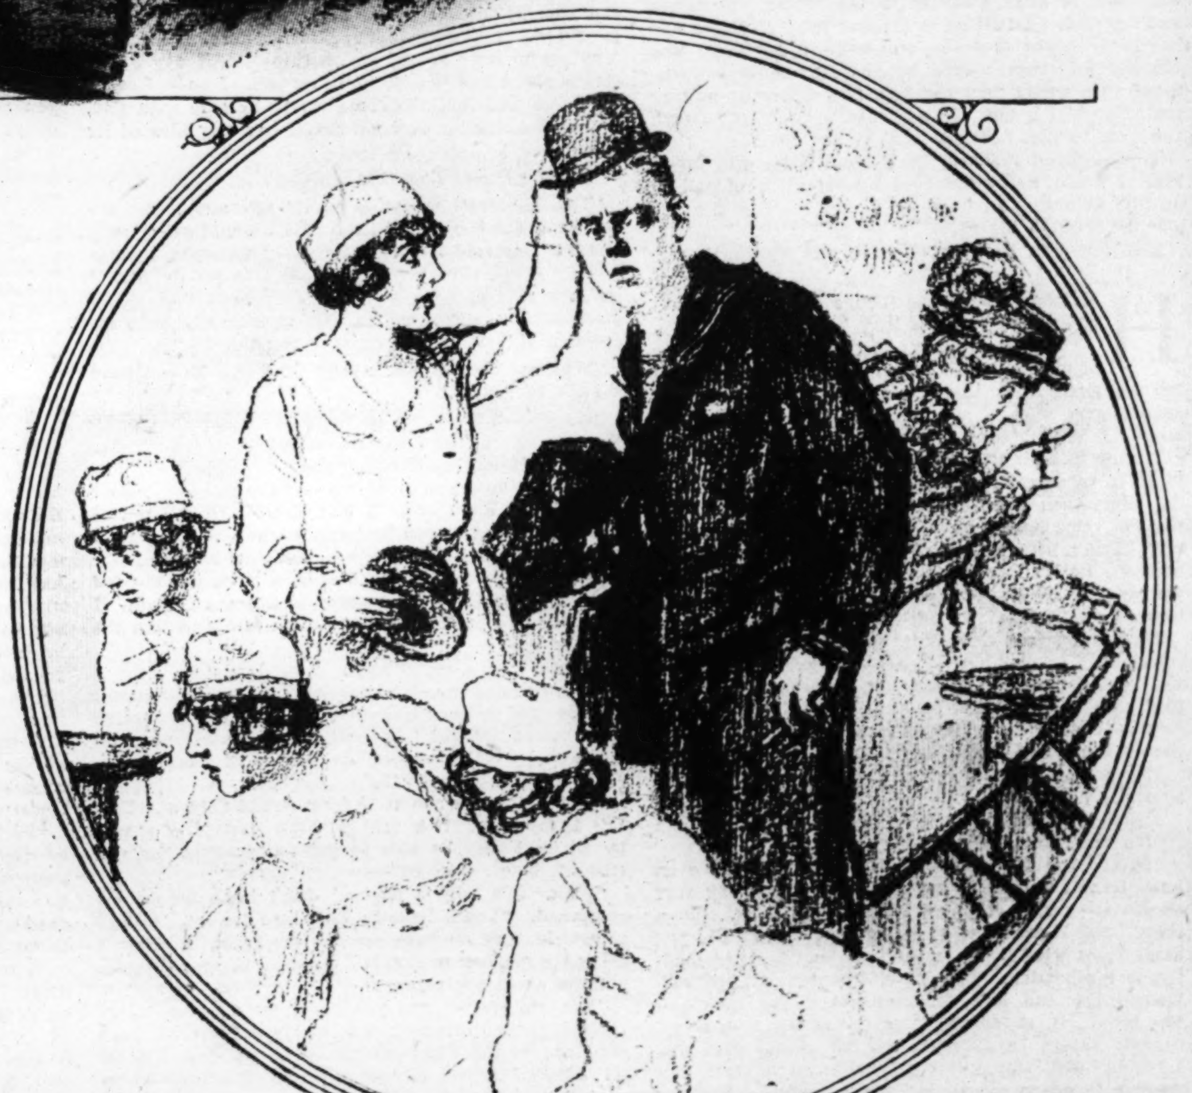
The canteen waitress induced Eddie to take the seat next the wall because it made it so much easier to get around the tables, and then she shoved the table in so it would be still easier. Eddie is dead sure nobody loves a fat man.



Wouldn't you just know they would put Angelica washing dishes instead of serving at the pie counter on the very night those nice boys from Camp Upton were coming in? The hot water is giving her hangnails and Angelica is beginning to "see red."



Mrs. Elmon, who feels a little acrid about Mrs. Topleigh's unusually smart appearance at the canteen, finds it necessary to remark that "military styles are far from becoming to everybody."



It looks as if Roy, whose hat has disappeared from the club, would have to go back to the boat in a borrowed derby.

Rinsing

To start the dirt in soft "soaking" water, then "set" it in hard "boiling" or "rubbing" water is all wrong, yet we all thoughtlessly do this very thing. Soft water all the way through all the "Waters" means the whitest and cleanest clothes.

HRH softens any hard water instantly and with no danger of overdoing it. You can trust any laundress with HRH. Put two tablespoonfuls to a half tub of water and in all the waters. You save more than one cake of soap and a lot of rubbing and scrubbing. And the wash is the prettiest you ever saw.

HRH is but 10¢ a package.

It saves 5 or 6 cakes of soap. It is a twin sister to Absorene, the great wall-paper cleaner, and is sold by Absorene dealers.
